Education Department Says There's No Freeze on Building

A. F. Molyneaux Dies in Hospital

Former Sheriff Was 65; Also Operated Ulster Garage

ABRAM F. MOLYNEAUX

Former Sheriff Abram F. Molyneaux, 65, died at Kingston Hospital early today.

A native of Pine Hill, he was the son of the late Elmer E. Molyneaux and Eliza Cole Molyneaux. He spent his early years on his father's farm and when he was 18 the family moved to Kingston where he spent most of the years of his later life.

After serving as deputy sheriff and day jailor under Sheriff Wright J. Smith, starting in 1930, he became under sheriff from 1933 to 1935 under John Saxe. He was elected sheriff in 1936 and served until 1941. He was Republican candidate for mayor of Kingston in 1945.

At the age of 16, the former sheriff first began serving the public when he took a job as assistant to the station agent of the former Ulster & Delaware Railroad at Pine Hill. He worked during summers and in the winter attended Spencer's Business School in Kingston.

After finishing his education he worked for the D. L. & W. railroad at Chatham and later at Millburn and Summit as agent.

From there, he left railroading to take a position with the National Cash Register Co., in New York and Newark, N. J. During this time he maintained a residence in Kingston, and in 1914 he gave up this position to enter business with his father, who then was engaged in the garage and livery business on Fair street.

Operated Garage

The building known as the Ulster Garage was operated on the property near Wiltwyck fire station, which was first taken over by Montgomery Ward & Co., and later occupied by other concerns including the present Standard Furniture Co. Shortly after the abandonment of the garage busi-

Ban Covers Construction of 'Field Houses' for Use Solely for Sports

The New York State Education Department, Bureau of Building and Grounds, has advised the local board of education that at present there is no freeze on building materials which goes into school buildings or in any gym construction which may be for use of physical education classes. The freeze which was invoked pertains to "field houses" which are used exclusively for sport auditoriums.

In order to relieve congestion which has existed for some time in the high school cafeteria the local board has made a study of a plan to erect a building south of the high school and immediately at the rear of the library for use as a physical education building. The present gym in the high school would then be turned into cafeteria space to give adequate room for that purpose.

For several years there has been inadequate lunch room and corridors and other space has been used for lunch room. It is necessary to serve lunch in shifts in order to accommodate the students.

Since acquiring the area from the high school property over to Andrew street, the board has been investigating the possibility of erecting a plain, inexpensive structure to house the gym and locker rooms and for use by the physical education classes.

Plans Are Drawn

Plans were drawn by Gerard W. Betz for such a building when the "freeze" order was issued. Inquiry was made as to whether the type building proposed was included in the order and the reply that it would not be included has resulted in action by the board to have Architect Betz prepare completed plans and specifications so that the program may proceed.

The plan calls for a large, plain structure which would be erected south of the high school to house all of the physical education program work and for use as a basketball court and for other sports events. Concrete block and brick construction is anticipated.

At the meeting of the board Thursday evening the board, after learning that materials could be procured, voted to proceed with the plan.

Permission was granted the Ulster County Department of Health to use the high school auditorium on February 14 and 28 from 7:30 until 11 p. m. for the nurses basic

President Asks 10-Billion Tax Boost, More Later

Increase Is for 4 Billions for Individuals; Would Bring 64 Billions

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Truman today asked Congress for a quick $10,000,000,000 tax increase and said he will ask still another increase later.

In a message to the legislators, Mr. Truman set out this program for raising the $10,000,000,000:

1. A $4,000,000,000 increase in individual income taxes, already scheduled to yield a record $26,000,000,000 in the fiscal year starting July 1.

2. A $3,000,000,000 increase in corporation income taxes. These with excess profits taxes included, are scheduled to hit a record $20,000,000,000 next year.

Excise Increase

Board Reviews Property Claims On Blast Damage

The board of education took measures last evening toward getting settlements for property owners on Andrew street whose properties were allegedly damaged by blasting operations which have been carried out by contractors on high school property adjacent to Andrew street.

In the removing of a long ledge of rock to make available increased space, several property owners on Andrew street complained that their houses had been damaged by the heavy blasting operations. Claims have been filed and referred to the contractors who are covered by insurance.

Delay Brings Complaints

Delay in making adjustments has been complained of by several of the property owners.

The board has requested the matter be adjusted by the insurance firms representing the contractors but all claims have not been paid. Last evening the board decided to take the matter up directly with the insurance firms and to press for immediate adjustments. Several of the property owners have considered hiring an attorney and bringing legal action to recover their damages. One home owner contends that the blasting caused damage in the amount of $800 to walls in his home.

Area Unemployment Office Has 48 Violators in 1950

The Kingston office of the State Labor Department's Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance with its part-time Saugerties branch uncovered 48 cases of wilful misrepresentation by unemployment insurance claimants during 1950, according to Anthony C. Hart, local office manager.

In addition, 1,179 claimants were either disqualified altogether or had their benefit rights suspended for an extended period.

Of the 48 violations, 31 were tracked down by the Investigation Section of the Division. The remainder were discovered by the local office staff.

Liable to $500 Fine

These violations are listed as wilful misrepresentation of facts in order to collect insurance. Penalties include compulsory repayment of all insurance wrongfully received, and the reduction of future benefit entitlement by five to 20 weeks for each offense. In addition, a person found guilty of wilful misrepresentation is liable to criminal prosecution and fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment of not more than one year, or both.

The names of the alleged violators were not revealed.

A total of 633 persons were disqualified because they were not available for work or not capable of working. In such cases, benefit rights are suspended until the person is again available for work or able to work.

A 42-day suspension of benefit rights was imposed upon 156 persons who were disqualified for "quitting last job without good cause."

Six persons were given a seven-week suspension of benefit rights

Switchmens' Walkout Spreads in Nation Crippling Many of Big Industries

Korea Goods Lag

Mail Embargo Sets Up Complex Pattern in 11 Major Cities

By The Associated Press

A switchmen's strike, which in three days has crippled much of the nation's railroad transportation, today threatened many segments of the nation's economy.

The government pressed to end the walkout. A federal court hearing was scheduled today in Chicago in one of the government's legal actions against the rail union and its officers.

President Truman was reported to be doing everything possible to get the strikers back to work. Two congressmen urged Mr. Truman to intercede.

Felt in All Sections

But the walkout continued to spread and the crippling effects were felt in most every section of the country.

Switchmen appeared ignoring the reported appeals of rail union officials to end their work stoppage, their second in six weeks.

As the strike grew, forcing additional layoff of thousands of workers in other industries, the government imposed a partial embargo on mail.

Mail, freight and express piled high as freight yards in many major cities remained idle. Embargoes earlier had been clamped on freight and express at many places. The "sick" walkouts of rail workers have spread to more than 42 railroads in 40 cities.

War Goods Tied Up

War shipments were halted and a tieup of fuel oil shipments threatened a shortage for many hours. Combat rations for the forces in Korea were tied up in Chicago's freight yards.

As the government prepared for court action in Chicago, new contempt charges were brought yesterday against the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in Washington.

And in Cleveland, a federal judge ordered the union to show cause Feb. 8 why it should not be held in contempt of court. The government contended the current strike violated a Dec. 14 order issued in the three-day strike last December. Similar proceedings were taken in Chicago Wednesday.

Army to Testify

But today's hearing in Chicago is on a contempt citation issued last month in the December work stoppage. Army officers were scheduled to appear to testify how the strike has affected the handling of army shipments. BRT President W. P. Kennedy also was scheduled to appear.

The Post Office Department's embargo on mail was similar to that declared in the previous strike. It directly affected 11 major cities—New York city, Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cleveland, Washington, St. Louis, Atlanta, Trenton, N. J., and Jacksonville, Fla.

Other post offices will not accept restricted mail for delivery in any of those cities. The new mail embargo sets up a complex pattern of zones between which it will not be possible to move bulk mail.

Orders on Mail

In the 11 cities, the order restricted acceptance of second, third and fourth class mail for out-of-town delivery. Air mail service was not affected. Also still accepted are first class mail weighing less than eight ounces, daily newspapers, and emergency package mailing of medicines, drugs and surgical supplies.

Scores of passenger trains were cancelled and many others were running behind schedule. The Pennsylvania railroad said nearly its entire passenger service between Baltimore and the west was dropped.

The effects of the strike mounted hourly as new groups of rail workers joined in the walkout. The vital coal, steel and auto industries were hit hard in the eastern and midwestern sections of the country. Some 70,000 workers were made idle and other

Dewey Urges Two Nations Be Armed To Resist Russia

Governor Calls for Halt to Wobbling in Asia; Should Beat Reds at Own Game

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey urges that Germany and Japan be armed promptly to resist Russian attack.

Writing in Collier's Magazine, Dewey said Russia is "getting set" to seize both countries in its scheme for world conquest.

"Germany and Japan are the grand prize of Russian attack—before taking the world," he wrote. "At all costs and by whatever devices are necessary, we must stop haggling and arm Germany and Japan as rapidly as they are willing to be armed."

Dewey wrote that the United States should "stop wobbling and vacillating" in Asia and announce that Formosa, Japan, and the Philippines will be defended. This country should provide arms to the French and British in southeast Asia, he said.

This policy, he said, would bring "a thrill of hope" to the Orient and result in stiffened resistance to the Communists.

He also called for an intense propaganda offensive by the United States.

Should Send 10

"Where the Russians send one organizer," he said, "we should send ten.

"Where the Russians send one lying movie, we should send ten truthful movies. * * *

"Where the Russians now have the best spy system in the world, we should beat them at their own game with twice as good a spy system."

The Republican New York governor said that Stalin, by seizing the industrial power of Germany and Japan, "would no longer fear American industrial might and, with his vast manpower, he would be in a position to take the final step of conquering the world."

But he said "there is good reason to believe" that Russia's satellites plan to conquer Yugoslavia, either by internal coup or armed might, before an attack on Germany.

"I do not know how late the hour is," Dewey wrote. "Sources of information which have been excellent in the past say that following the attack on Yugoslavia this summer the Soviet will launch the grand assault on Europe when the ground is hard in the fall and the crops have been gathered.

Based on 1954

"Until recently all our government planning has been based on Soviet attack in 1954. I believe that thesis has been finally abandoned and there is now a general belief that the attack may come in 1951 or at latest in 1952."

Dewey warned, however, that American aid should not be sent to Europe or Asia unless there is proof that the non-Communist nations will develop strength for their self-defense.

He said United States help to Europe should be used as "the means for pushing, prodding and encouraging the nations of western Europe toward the goal of European union—and great military strength."

To retreat within our own frontiers and to abandon efforts to contain the Russians, Dewey wrote, would be "national suicide."

Check Snow Radioactivity

New York, Feb. 2 (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission said today it was investigating reports that snow which fell in Rochester, N. Y., this week was "measureably radioactive." The office said the reports indicated "there is no possibility of harm to humans or animals."

There were 200 volunteer firemen in attendance at the annual banquet of Ulster Hose Company last Tuesday when it was held in the San Bar on the by-pass, not 20 as inadvertently announced.

UN Troops 40 Miles From Parallel; Trap Broken in West

Tokyo, Feb. 2 (AP)—Allied forces pressed closer to the Han river today by chewing up, bit by bit, two Chinese Communist armies and diseased elements of the North Korean Red enemy.

Instead of patrol action, there were large numbers of U.N. troops only 10 miles south of the thawing Han, which skirts the age-old capital of Seoul.

This placed the allies 40 miles from the 38th Parallel in the ninth day of a limited offensive which had carried them 20 miles since Jan. 25, against enemy opposition which was weakening daily.

An Eighth Army spokesman estimated that 6,650 Chinese and North Korean Communists had been killed by ground action between Jan. 25 and 31. Air reports listed casualties for that period at 1,442, but some may be duplications.

Opinion Differs

Even so, there was a difference of military opinion as to whether the allies have cracked the main enemy defenses, despite notable losses in manpower and shrinking morale among the Reds.

In Washington there were reports that high officials have decided U. N. troops should stop at Parallel 38, presumably pending further efforts toward political settlement of the conflict.

An Eighth Army spokesman declined to confirm or deny the Washington report.

Chopped up are the Chinese 50th and 38th armies. Resistance has slackened even though the Communist 39th and 40th armies are in immediate reserve, allied commanders said.

Many Are Infected

Reliable sources said the ghastly threat of typhus has made its appearance among North Korean troops, and that tuberculosis, trench foot, frostbite and other wartime diseases likewise were taking a toll among the Chinese allies.

Prisoners of war said 50 to 100 per cent of some North Korean companies are infected by typhus, a disease transmitted by vermin from rats. However, U. S. Eighth Army investigators said there was no evidence that Chinese troops have been affected seriously by the disease.

No typhus cases were reported among inoculated U.N. troops. Army officials in Washington said Russian sattelite countries have had difficulty perfecting an effective vaccine.

On the allied right flank, near the juncture of western and central fronts, French and American elements smashed their way out of a trap set by thousands of screaming Communists who leaped wildly into hand-to-hand combat 12 miles north of Yoju.

The fight took a heavy toll among two enemy regiments—about 6,000 men—who spent 12 hours Thursday trying to squeeze U.N. troops into submission by attacks on three sides.

A.P. Correspondent Don Huth said the allies broke the back of the Communist charge when air power and reinforcements reached them at 6:30 p. m. Thursday.

Battle Shapes Over Sanctions

Lake Success, Feb. 2 (AP)—A behind-the-scenes battle was shaping up in the United Nations today over whether sanctions should be voted against aggressor Red China if peace moves fail.

A top-heavy majority united in the 44-7 General Assembly vote yesterday labelling Mao Tze-tung and his Red hordes aggressors for their attack on U.N. troops in Korea.

But it already is splitting over what would be the most effective step against Red China.

Authorities Say Troops May Stop At 38th Parallel

Decision to Be Given to MacArthur, Is Report; to Try Diplomacy

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—A reported decision to halt United Nations forces short of the 38th Parallel, if they can drive that far north indicated today that this country is ready to keep the way open for a possible diplomatic settlement of the Korean War.

Responsible authorities said last night that such a decision had been reached and would be transmitted to the U.N. commander, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, if it had not been already. Although they were reluctant to discuss the development even privately, the intent appeared to be to create if possible a basis for new efforts at a political settlement.

The old dividing line between North and South Korea is still regarded by officials as having political significance even though it has been crossed and recrossed by both the United Nations and Communist forces in the past.

The idea that a cease-fire arrangement might be worked out by having the Chinese Communists withdraw north of the parallel and United Nations forces remain south of it has been discussed in the United Nations.

Dulles Offers Japanese Pact

Tokyo, Feb. 2 (AP)—The United States today invited Japan to join a collective defense agreement based on American power after a peace treaty is signed.

Ambassador-at-Large John Foster Dulles made the offer in a careful and official speech before the America-Japan Society. Top government and business leaders were among several hundred persons present.

Dulles said Japan could decide for herself. But he warned Japan must choose between joining the United States or inviting Communist aggression, and declared:

"Today the principal deterrent power" to aggression "is possessed by the United States."

Onteora Board Says School Cost Boosted by Inflation

Taking issue with a press release opposing the request of additional money for the construction of a school at Boiceville, the school board of Onteora Central School District contends that the arguments concerning issuance of additional bonds should be "based on facts."

The board stressing that "we try to keep as our guiding objective the best interests of the children and people of our district," emphasizes that the original estimate of $1,850,000 was tentative and that "the only reason it will cost $300,000 more is because of the terrific inflation that has occurred" since the district was formed in May 1948.

Among the chief opponents of the request for $300,000 additional to build the school are Republican Supervisor Claude Bell, Town of Olive, and Robert Haver, the township's Democratic chairman, who issued a joint statement to the press on January 31.

The nine members of the Onteora Central School board are Fred Cure, president, Shandaken; Philip Gordon, Shandaken; Leonard Ford, Shandaken; Lauren R. Peters, Sr., Lake Hill; Harry Ostrander, Willow; Lester M. Shultis, Wittenberg; Albert S. Fox, Olive; Harlowe McLean, Olive and Justus North, Olive.

The school board's statement refutting arguments advanced by Bell and Haver is as follows:

The Freeman of January 31, 1951 carried a press release of Supervisor Claude Bell of the Town of Olive and Robert Haver of the Town of Olive with respect to the public meeting to be held on February 13, 1951 for a vote by the residents of the Onteora School District on the question of

Boy Killed Trying to Save Others

Mother of Three Victims Takes One Child Out of Building; 2 Were Left in Care

3 Bodies Recovered

Identification of Those Found in Rubble not Made Says Trooper

Five children perished today in a house fire at Milton despite heroic attempts of the oldest to save the others.

State troopers investigating the tragedy reported that it was caused by an exploding oil stove.

The victims were two brothers and a sister of one family and a brother and sister of another family.

The boy who gave his life, Joseph Simone, 10, missed by a matter of moments escaping the fire entirely.

He had just left the house to meet a school bus when he heard his mother, Mrs. Victor Simone, scream that the house was afire.

While she rushed out with another son, Victor, seven, Joseph ran upstairs to a playroom where the other children were playing. He agreed with his mother that he would hand them down to her from a second-floor window.

Boy Smashes Window

He smashed the window, but a draft sent up a billow of flame. He died with his brother, Thomas, 6, and sister, Amy, 2, and two of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Conormon's children, Wayne, 3, and Sherry Lynne, 18 months.

The house was reduced to rubble.

Three Bodies Recovered

Hours later only three of the bodies had been recovered from the debris.

The Simone house was located high on a hill on Milton Turnpike and at the time of the fire there was a high wind blowing which fanned the flames and consumed the house in short order. Mrs. Simone, unable to reach the children, went to a neighbor's and notified the Milton fire department. On arrival the firemen found the fire beyond control and the house enveloped in flames. Lack of water made it impossible to fight the fire.

Stove in Living Room

The oil stove which reportedly exploded was located in the living room of the house and the flames spread with such rapidity that all means of reaching the second story of the house were cut off. The fire started about 8:30 o'clock.

Milton firemen under Chief John Matarazo stood by after arrival and assisted workmen in getting out the bodies.

State police from the Highland station were summoned and Coroner Ernest Kelly of this city was called and went to the scene.

Work of recovering the bodies could not be commenced until the fire had died down.

Says Red Oil Overrated

Long Beach, Calif., Feb. 2 (AP)—Edwin Pauley, experienced oilman and former U. S. reparations official, say that Russia's oil resources are highly overrated. "With the exception of the Caspian Sea area," Pauley told a meeting of the Long Beach Ad Club yesterday, "Russia has less oil resources than the city of Long Beach."

Battle Shapes Over Sanctions

Lake Success, Feb. 2 (AP)—A behind-the-scenes battle was shaping up in the United Nations today over whether sanctions should be voted against aggressor Red China if peace moves fail.

A top-heavy majority united in the 44-7 General Assembly vote yesterday labelling Mao Tze-tung and his Red hordes aggressors for their attack on U.N. troops in Korea.

But it already is splitting over what would be the most effective step against Red China.

Decision to Be Given to MacArthur, Is Report; to Try Diplomacy

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—A reported decision to halt United Nations forces short of the 38th Parallel, if they can drive that far north indicated today that this country is ready to keep the way open for a possible diplomatic settlement of the Korean War.

Responsible authorities said last night that such a decision had been reached and would be transmitted to the U.N. commander, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, if it had not been already. Although they were reluctant to discuss the development even privately, the intent appeared to be to create if possible a basis for new efforts at a political settlement.

The old dividing line between North and South Korea is still regarded by officials as having political significance even though it has been crossed and recrossed by both the United Nations and Communist forces in the past.

The idea that a cease-fire arrangement might be worked out by having the Chinese Communists withdraw north of the parallel and United Nations forces remain south of it has been discussed in the United Nations.

Boy Killed Trying to Save Others

Identification of Those Found in Rubble not Made Says Trooper

Five children perished today in a house fire at Milton despite heroic attempts of the oldest to save the others.

State troopers investigating the tragedy reported that it was caused by an exploding oil stove.

The victims were two brothers and a sister of one family and a brother and sister of another family.

The boy who gave his life, Joseph Simone, 10, missed by a matter of moments escaping the fire entirely.

He had just left the house to meet a school bus when he heard his mother, Mrs. Victor Simone, scream that the house was afire.

While she rushed out with another son, Victor, seven, Joseph ran upstairs to a playroom where the other children were playing. He agreed with his mother that he would hand them down to her from a second-floor window.

Boy Smashes Window

He smashed the window, but a draft sent up a billow of flame. He died with his brother, Thomas, 6, and sister, Amy, 2, and two of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Conormon's children, Wayne, 3, and Sherry Lynne, 18 months.

The house was reduced to rubble.

Three Bodies Recovered

Hours later only three of the bodies had been recovered from the debris.

The Simone house was located high on a hill on Milton Turnpike and at the time of the fire there was a high wind blowing which fanned the flames and consumed the house in short order. Mrs. Simone, unable to reach the children, went to a neighbor's and notified the Milton fire department. On arrival the firemen found the fire beyond control and the house enveloped in flames. Lack of water made it impossible to fight the fire.

Stove in Living Room

The oil stove which reportedly exploded was located in the living room of the house and the flames spread with such rapidity that all means of reaching the second story of the house were cut off. The fire started about 8:30 o'clock.

Milton firemen under Chief John Matarazo stood by after arrival and assisted workmen in getting out the bodies.

State police from the Highland station were summoned and Coroner Ernest Kelly of this city was called and went to the scene.

Work of recovering the bodies could not be commenced until the fire had died down.

A. F. Molyneaux Dies in Hospital

Former Sheriff Was 65; Also Operated Ulster Garage

ABRAM F. MOLYNEAUX

Former Sheriff Abram F. Molyneaux, 65, died at Kingston Hospital early today.

A native of Pine Hill, he was the son of the late Elmer E. Molyneaux and Eliza Cole Molyneaux. He spent his early years on his father's farm and when he was 18 the family moved to Kingston where he spent most of the years of his later life.

After serving as deputy sheriff and day jailor under Sheriff Wright J. Smith, starting in 1930, he became under sheriff from 1933 to 1935 under John Saxe. He was elected sheriff in 1936 and served until 1941. He was Republican candidate for mayor of Kingston in 1945.

At the age of 16, the former sheriff first began serving the public when he took a job as assistant to the station agent of the former Ulster & Delaware Railroad at Pine Hill. He worked during summers and in the winter attended Spencer's Business School in Kingston.

After finishing his education he worked for the D. L. & W. railroad at Chatham and later at Milburn and Summit as agent.

From there, he left railroading to take a position with the National Cash Register Co., in New York and Newark, N. J. During this time he maintained a residence in Kingston, and in 1914 he gave up this position to enter business with his father, who then was engaged in the garage and livery business on Fair street.

Operated Garage

The building known as the Ulster Garage was operated on the property near Wiltwyck fire station, which was first taken over by Montgomery Ward & Co., and later occupied by other concerns including the present Standard Furniture Co. Shortly after the abandonment of the garage busi-

Ban Covers Construction of 'Field Houses' for Use Solely for Sports

The New York State Education Department, Bureau of Building and Grounds, has advised the local board of education that at present there is no freeze on building materials which goes into school buildings or in any gym construction which may be for use of physical education classes. The freeze which was invoked pertains to "field houses" which are used exclusively for sport auditoriums.

In order to relieve congestion which has existed for some time in the high school cafeteria the local board has made a study of a plan to erect a building south of the high school and immediately at the rear of the library for use as a physical education building. The present gym in the high school would then be turned into cafeteria space to give adequate room for that purpose.

For several years there has been inadequate lunch room and corridors and other space has been used for lunch room. It is necessary to serve lunch in shifts in order to accommodate the students.

Since acquiring the area from the high school property over to Andrew street, the board has been investigating the possibility of erecting a plain, inexpensive structure to house the gym and locker rooms and for use by the physical education classes.

Plans Are Drawn

Plans were drawn by Gerard W. Betz for such a building when the "freeze" order was issued. Inquiry was made as to whether the type building proposed was included in the order and the reply that it would not be included has resulted in action by the board to have Architect Betz prepare completed plans and specifications so that the program may proceed.

The plan calls for a large, plain structure which would be erected south of the high school to house all of the physical education program work and for use as a basketball court and for other sports events. Concrete block and brick construction is anticipated.

At the meeting of the board Thursday evening the board, after learning that materials could be procured, voted to proceed with the plan.

Permission was granted the Ulster County Department of Health to use the high school auditorium on February 14 and 28 from 7:30 until 11 p. m. for the nurses basic

President Asks 10-Billion Tax Boost, More Later

Increase Is for 4 Billions for Individuals; Would Bring 64 Billions

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Truman today asked Congress for a quick $10,000,000,000 tax increase and said he will ask still another increase later.

In a message to the legislators, Mr. Truman set out this program for raising the $10,000,000,000:

1. A $4,000,000,000 increase in individual income taxes, already scheduled to yield a record $26,000,000,000 in the fiscal year starting July 1.

2. A $3,000,000,000 increase in corporation income taxes. These with excess profits taxes included, are scheduled to hit a record $20,000,000,000 next year.

Board Reviews Property Claims On Blast Damage

The board of education took measures last evening toward getting settlements for property owners on Andrew street whose properties were allegedly damaged by blasting operations which have been carried out by contractors on high school property adjacent to Andrew street.

In the removing of a long ledge of rock to make available increased space, several property owners on Andrew street complained that their houses had been damaged by the heavy blasting operations. Claims have been filed and referred to the contractors who are covered by insurance.

Delay Brings Complaints

Delay in making adjustments has been complained of by several of the property owners.

The board has requested the matter be adjusted by the insurance firms representing the contractors but all claims have not been paid. Last evening the board decided to take the matter up directly with the insurance firms and to press for immediate adjustments. Several of the property owners have considered hiring an attorney and bringing legal action to recover their damages. One home owner contends that the blasting caused damage in the amount of $800 to walls in his home.

Area Unemployment Office Has 48 Violators in 1950

The Kingston office of the State Labor Department's Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance with its part-time Saugerties branch uncovered 48 cases of wilful misrepresentation by unemployment insurance claimants during 1950, according to Anthony C. Hart, local office manager.

In addition, 1,179 claimants were either disqualified altogether or had their benefit rights suspended for an extended period.

Of the 48 violations, 31 were tracked down by the Investigation Section of the Division. The remainder were discovered by the local office staff.

Liable to $500 Fine

These violations are listed as wilful misrepresentation of facts in order to collect insurance. Penalties include compulsory repayment of all insurance wrongfully received, and the reduction of future benefit entitlement by five to 20 weeks for each offense. In addition, a person found guilty of wilful misrepresentation is liable to criminal prosecution and fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment of not more than one year, or both.

The names of the alleged violators were not revealed.

A total of 633 persons were disqualified because they were not available for work or not capable of working. In such cases, benefit rights are suspended until the person is again available for work or able to work.

A 42-day suspension of benefit rights was imposed upon 156 persons who were disqualified for "quitting last job without good cause."

Six persons were given a seven-week suspension of benefit rights

Onteora Board Says School Cost Boosted by Inflation

Taking issue with a press release opposing the request of additional money for the construction of a school at Boiceville, the school board of Onteora Central School District contends that the arguments concerning issuance of additional bonds should be "based on facts."

The board stressing that "we try to keep as our guiding objective the best interests of the children and people of our district," emphasizes that the original estimate of $1,850,000 was tentative and that "the only reason it will cost $300,000 more is because of the terrific inflation that has occurred" since the district was formed in May 1948.

Among the chief opponents of the request for $300,000 additional to build the school are Republican Supervisor Claude Bell, Town of Olive, and Robert Haver, the township's Democratic chairman, who issued a joint statement to the press on January 31.

The school board's statement refutting arguments advanced by Bell and Haver is as follows:

The Freeman of January 31, 1951 carried a press release of Supervisor Claude Bell of the Town of Olive and Robert Haver of the Town of Olive with respect to the public meeting to be held on February 13, 1951 for a vote by the residents of the Onteora School District on the question of

Rail Strike Threatens Economy

Switchmens' Walkout Spreads in Nation Crippling Many of Big Industries

Mail Embargo Sets Up Complex Pattern in 11 Major Cities

By The Associated Press

A switchmen's strike, which in three days has crippled much of the nation's railroad transportation, today threatened many segments of the nation's economy.

The government pressed to end the walkout. A federal court hearing was scheduled today in Chicago in one of the government's legal actions against the rail union and its officers.

President Truman was reported to be doing everything possible to get the strikers back to work. Two congressmen urged Mr. Truman to intercede.

Felt in All Sections

But the walkout continued to spread and the crippling effects were felt in most every section of the country.

Switchmen appeared ignoring the reported appeals of rail union officials to end their work stoppage, their second in six weeks.

As the strike grew, forcing additional layoff of thousands of workers in other industries, the government imposed a partial embargo on mail.

Mail, freight and express piled high as freight yards in many major cities remained idle. Embargoes earlier had been clamped on freight and express at many places. The "sick" walkouts of rail workers have spread to more than 42 railroads in 40 cities.

War Goods Tied Up

War shipments were halted and a tieup of fuel oil shipments threatened a shortage for many hours. Combat rations for the forces in Korea were tied up in Chicago's freight yards.

As the government prepared for court action in Chicago, new contempt charges were brought yesterday against the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in Washington.

And in Cleveland, a federal judge ordered the union to show cause Feb. 8 why it should not be held in contempt of court. The government contended the current strike violated a Dec. 14 order issued in the three-day strike last December. Similar proceedings were taken in Chicago Wednesday.

Army to Testify

But today's hearing in Chicago is on a contempt citation issued last month in the December work stoppage. Army officers were scheduled to appear to testify how the strike has affected the handling of army shipments. BRT President W. P. Kennedy also was scheduled to appear.

The Post Office Department's embargo on mail was similar to that declared in the previous strike. It directly affected 11 major cities—New York city, Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cleveland, Washington, St. Louis, Atlanta, Trenton, N. J., and Jacksonville, Fla.

Other post offices will not accept restricted mail for delivery in any of those cities. The new mail embargo sets up a complex pattern of zones between which it will not be possible to move bulk mail.

Orders on Mail

In the 11 cities, the order restricted acceptance of second, third and fourth class mail for out-of-town delivery. Air mail service was not affected. Also still accepted are first class mail weighing less than eight ounces, daily newspapers, and emergency package mailing of medicines, drugs and surgical supplies.

Scores of passenger trains were cancelled and many others were running behind schedule. The Pennsylvania railroad said nearly its entire passenger service between Baltimore and the west was dropped.

The effects of the strike mounted hourly as new groups of rail workers joined in the walkout. The vital coal, steel and auto industries were hit hard in the eastern and midwestern sections of the country. Some 70,000 workers were made idle and other

Governor Calls for Halt to Wobbling in Asia; Should Beat Reds at Own Game

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey urges that Germany and Japan be armed promptly to resist Russian attack.

Writing in Collier's Magazine, Dewey said Russia is "getting set" to seize both countries in its scheme for world conquest.

"Germany and Japan are the grand prize of Russian attack—before taking the world," he wrote. "At all costs and by whatever devices are necessary, we must stop haggling and arm Germany and Japan as rapidly as they are willing to be armed."

Dewey wrote that the United States should "stop wobbling and vacillating" in Asia and announce that Formosa, Japan, and the Philippines will be defended. This country should provide arms to the French and British in southeast Asia, he said.

This policy, he said, would bring "a thrill of hope" to the Orient and result in stiffened resistance to the Communists.

He also called for an intense propaganda offensive by the United States.

Should Send 10

"Where the Russians send one organizer," he said, "we should send ten.

"Where the Russians send one lying movie, we should send ten truthful movies. * * *

"Where the Russians now have the best spy system in the world, we should beat them at their own game with twice as good a spy system."

The Republican New York governor said that Stalin, by seizing the industrial power of Germany and Japan, "would no longer fear American industrial might and, with his vast manpower, he would be in a position to take the final step of conquering the world."

But he said "there is good reason to believe" that Russia's satellites plan to conquer Yugoslavia, either by internal coup or armed might, before an attack on Germany.

"I do not know how late the hour is," Dewey wrote. "Sources of information which have been excellent in the past say that following the attack on Yugoslavia this summer the Soviet will launch the grand assault on Europe when the ground is hard in the fall and the crops have been gathered.

Based on 1954

"Until recently all our government planning has been based on Soviet attack in 1954. I believe that thesis has been finally abandoned and there is now a general belief that the attack may come in 1951 or at latest in 1952."

Dewey warned, however, that American aid should not be sent to Europe or Asia unless there is proof that the non-Communist nations will develop strength for their self-defense.

He said United States help to Europe should be used as "the means for pushing, prodding and encouraging the nations of western Europe toward the goal of European union—and great military strength."

To retreat within our own frontiers and to abandon efforts to contain the Russians, Dewey wrote, would be "national suicide."

UN Troops 40 Miles From Parallel; Trap Broken in West

Tokyo, Feb. 2 (AP)—Allied forces pressed closer to the Han river today by chewing up, bit by bit, two Chinese Communist armies and diseased elements of the North Korean Red enemy.

Instead of patrol action, there were large numbers of U.N. troops only 10 miles south of the thawing Han, which skirts the age-old capital of Seoul.

This placed the allies 40 miles from the 38th Parallel in the ninth day of a limited offensive which had carried them 20 miles since Jan. 25, against enemy opposition which was weakening daily.

An Eighth Army spokesman estimated that 6,650 Chinese and North Korean Communists had been killed by ground action between Jan. 25 and 31. Air reports listed casualties for that period at 1,442, but some may be duplications.

Opinion Differs

Even so, there was a difference of military opinion as to whether the allies have cracked the main enemy defenses, despite notable losses in manpower and shrinking morale among the Reds.

In Washington there were reports that high officials have decided U. N. troops should stop at Parallel 38, presumably pending further efforts toward political settlement of the conflict.

An Eighth Army spokesman declined to confirm or deny the Washington report.

Chopped up are the Chinese 50th and 38th armies. Resistance has slackened even though the Communist 39th and 40th armies are in immediate reserve, allied commanders said.

Many Are Infected

Reliable sources said the ghastly threat of typhus has made its appearance among North Korean troops, and that tuberculosis, trench foot, frostbite and other wartime diseases likewise were taking a toll among the Chinese allies.

Prisoners of war said 50 to 100 per cent of some North Korean companies are infected by typhus, a disease transmitted by vermin from rats. However, U. S. Eighth Army investigators said there was no evidence that Chinese troops have been affected seriously by the disease.

No typhus cases were reported among inoculated U.N. troops. Army officials in Washington said Russian sattelite countries have had difficulty perfecting an effective vaccine.

On the allied right flank, near the juncture of western and central fronts, French and American elements smashed their way out of a trap set by thousands of screaming Communists who leaped wildly into hand-to-hand combat 12 miles north of Yoju.

The fight took a heavy toll among two enemy regiments—about 6,000 men—who spent 12 hours Thursday trying to squeeze U.N. troops into submission by attacks on three sides.

A.P. Correspondent Don Huth said the allies broke the back of the Communist charge when air power and reinforcements reached them at 6:30 p. m. Thursday.

President Asks 10-Billion Tax Boost, More Later

Increase Is for 4 Billions for Individuals; Would Bring 64 Billions

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Truman today asked Congress for a quick $10,000,000,000 tax increase and said he will ask still another increase later.

In a message to the legislators, Mr. Truman set out this program for raising the $10,000,000,000:

1. A $4,000,000,000 increase in individual income taxes, already scheduled to yield a record $26,000,000,000 in the fiscal year starting July 1.

2. A $3,000,000,000 increase in corporation income taxes. These with excess profits taxes included, are scheduled to hit a record $20,000,000,000 next year.

Board Reviews Property Claims On Blast Damage

The board of education took measures last evening toward getting settlements for property owners on Andrew street whose properties were allegedly damaged by blasting operations which have been carried out by contractors on high school property adjacent to Andrew street.

In the removing of a long ledge of rock to make available increased space, several property owners on Andrew street complained that their houses had been damaged by the heavy blasting operations. Claims have been filed and referred to the contractors who are covered by insurance.

Delay Brings Complaints

Delay in making adjustments has been complained of by several of the property owners.

The board has requested the matter be adjusted by the insurance firms representing the contractors but all claims have not been paid. Last evening the board decided to take the matter up directly with the insurance firms and to press for immediate adjustments. Several of the property owners have considered hiring an attorney and bringing legal action to recover their damages. One home owner contends that the blasting caused damage in the amount of $800 to walls in his home.

Area Unemployment Office Has 48 Violators in 1950

The Kingston office of the State Labor Department's Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance with its part-time Saugerties branch uncovered 48 cases of wilful misrepresentation by unemployment insurance claimants during 1950, according to Anthony C. Hart, local office manager.

In addition, 1,179 claimants were either disqualified altogether or had their benefit rights suspended for an extended period.

Of the 48 violations, 31 were tracked down by the Investigation Section of the Division. The remainder were discovered by the local office staff.

Liable to $500 Fine

These violations are listed as wilful misrepresentation of facts in order to collect insurance. Penalties include compulsory repayment of all insurance wrongfully received, and the reduction of future benefit entitlement by five to 20 weeks for each offense. In addition, a person found guilty of wilful misrepresentation is liable to criminal prosecution and fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment of not more than one year, or both.

The names of the alleged violators were not revealed.

A total of 633 persons were disqualified because they were not available for work or not capable of working. In such cases, benefit rights are suspended until the person is again available for work or able to work.

A 42-day suspension of benefit rights was imposed upon 156 persons who were disqualified for "quitting last job without good cause."

Six persons were given a seven-week suspension of benefit rights

Onteora Board Says School Cost Boosted by Inflation

Taking issue with a press release opposing the request of additional money for the construction of a school at Boiceville, the school board of Onteora Central School District contends that the arguments concerning issuance of additional bonds should be "based on facts."

The board stressing that "we try to keep as our guiding objective the best interests of the children and people of our district," emphasizes that the original estimate of $1,850,000 was tentative and that "the only reason it will cost $300,000 more is because of the terrific inflation that has occurred" since the district was formed in May 1948.

Among the chief opponents of the request for $300,000 additional to build the school are Republican Supervisor Claude Bell, Town of Olive, and Robert Haver, the township's Democratic chairman, who issued a joint statement to the press on January 31.

The nine members of the Onteora Central School board are Fred Cure, president, Shandaken; Philip Gordon, Shandaken; Leonard Ford, Shandaken; Lauren R. Peters, Sr., Lake Hill; Harry Ostrander, Willow; Lester M. Shultis, Wittenberg; Albert S. Fox, Olive; Harlowe McLean, Olive and Justus North, Olive.

The school board's statement refutting arguments advanced by Bell and Haver is as follows:

The Freeman of January 31, 1951 carried a press release of Supervisor Claude Bell of the Town of Olive and Robert Haver of the Town of Olive with respect to the public meeting to be held on February 13, 1951 for a vote by the residents of the Onteora School District on the question of

Subsidy Asked For Dame Rumor

The high cost of publication of the Kingston high school paper "Dame Rumor" which has carried high school news for the past 19 years, has caused the management to seek a subsidy from the board of education.

A request for financial assistance was sent the board at its meeting Thursday evening. It was pointed out that the cost of issuing the paper had gone up $40 a month and there was no means of increasing revenue or the subscription price to the students.

The board voted a $500 subsidy for the year, that amount to be placed in the coming budget to cover the item.

Members of the board expressed a belief that the paper was of vital importance to the student body, the teaching staff and was instrumental in many students, who work on it during high school years, pursuing a literary or newspaper career after graduation.

During the discussion it was pointed out that the cost of publishing Dame Rumor was far below many similar school papers throughout the state. During its existence the paper has won many state and national honors in competition with other school papers.

Just one year ago today
Our Lee suddenly went away.
The shock was great, the blow severe
We little knew his death was near.
A precious one from us is gone
A voice we love is still
A place is vacant in our hearts,
Which never can be filled.

Authorities Say

situation in Korea is such that experts here feel a decisive victory by either the Communists or the United Nations forces is virtually impossible and if the struggle is to be ended it will have to be by other than military means.

With respect to a political settlement, the United States in the past has taken the position that an agreement to end the fighting must precede any negotiations on the terms of a final agreement.

Meanwhile, on another but related phase of Far Eastern policy, the State Department has made it clear that the American government continues to disapprove the idea of using Chinese Nationalist forces in Korea or in an offensive against the Chinese mainland in order to divert Communist troops from Korea.

The State Department released last night a letter from Assistant Secretary Jack K. McFall to Rep. Seely-Brown (R.-Conn.) on this issue. Seely-Brown had sent an inquiry to President Truman regarding the use of Chiang Kai-shek's troops.

No Flat Statement

McFall did not say flatly what the government's views are. He said it would be "inadvisable at this stage" to make them public. But he listed four reasons why he said the Chinese Nationalist forces should not strike out from Formosa, either against the mainland or to join U.N. troops in Korea:

1. Chiang's Nationalist ground forces "are outnumbered by Chinese Communist troops by at least eight to one."

2. Preparation of Nationalist workers for action in Korea or on the mainland would require large quantities of military equipment from the United States at a time when this country faces "urgent demand from many quarters" for such materials.

3. The "principal mission of the forces on Formosa must be the defense of the island itself."

4. The United States must keep in mind "the fact that ((since) operations in Korea are U.N. operated the view of the many other countries participating in the operation are factors to be taken into account."

ness, the former sheriff, first entered on a political career.

In 1941 when the nation was at war, he became personnel manager at Island Dock Inc. At the time of his illness, he was employed by George B. Cook Inc., local automobile dealer as sales manager. He was admitted to the hospital Jan. 19 for treatment of a serious illness and was in critical condition until his death at 1:20 a. m., today.

Surviving are his wife, who was Helen Craig; five children: Jay E., of Hurley; Abram F., Jr., Mrs. Roger Baer Schwartz, Mrs. Charles W. Goble, Jr., Mrs. Warren Simmons, all of Kingston, and a sister, Mrs. Benjamin W. Johnston, of Kingston. The funeral will be held from the parlors of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street Monday at 2 p. m. Rail Strike . . .

thousands faced layoffs soon unless the strike ends.

The strike spread last night to new cities—Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Terre Haute, Ind., San Francisco and Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Early today, new "sick leave" walkouts were reported in Kansas City and the Pacific northwest.

Some of the carriers reported that workers other than switchmen were reporting "sick," which spokesmen said was apparent sympathy walkouts.

The switchmen, in dispute with the carriers for months, over wages and hours, have been demanding a 40 hour week at the pay they receive for a 48-hour week.

The agreement reached by the B.R.T. and three other rail unions with the carriers on Dec. 21 was rejected by local brotherhood chairmen. They expressed dissatisfaction with the terms of the new wage scale and officials were told to try for a new agreement.

The government's new wage-price freeze of last week was believed to have touched off the current "sick call" walkout.

President Asks

centrated upon less essential consumer goods." These taxes are estimated to yield $8,222,000,000 next year, under present tax laws.

The schedule outlined would mean a total tax take of $64,200,000,000.

This is nearly a third more than the record collections of World War Two when the take reached $43,000,000,000 in 1945.

The understanding among Congress members is that the further increase Mr. Truman is to request later would raise government revenues to more than $71,000,000,000.

The President left details of how the proposed $10,000,000,000 increase is to be made for explanation by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder.

Snyder will go into this at public hearings to be opened Monday by the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Mr. Truman did give one detail. He said the present $600 exemption should be retained.

Word in informed quarters was that Snyder will ask that normal corporate income tax rates be raised to 55 per cent from the present 47 per cent top.

The President did not specify any rate increase today.

Dulles Offers . . .

prepared to combine this power with that of other western nations, under the United Nations Charter, "so that the deterrent power which protects us also will protect others."

He said the United States would consider retaining defense forces in and near Japan "as a testimony to the unity of our countries."

This was in effect the first official proposal to continue the present actual defense precautions for Japan after the treaty.

Dulles reiterated that the only deterrent to a possible aggressor is "fear of retaliatory power used in the interest of collective security"—the kind of power he offered Japan.

"An armed aggressor" against Japan "would be subject to a striking power, the immensity of which defies imagination," he continued.

Without this power, he pointed out, the Republic of Korea was attacked by aggressors who were "tempted by the probability that reaction to their attack would be localized" because the United Nations never made it clear it would strike back.

Dulles delivered his speech before several hundred Japanese and Americans, including Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida and other government and industrial leaders.

Late Bulletins

Won't Tolerate Tie-Up

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP) — The White House declared today the railroad strikes are "directly injuring our national security" and the nation can not tolerate their continuance

Joseph Short, presidential press secretary, told reporters President Truman had authorized him to make that statement.

"No matter how much the union members may object to what their leaders have done, they cannot be justified in preventing the flow of food and fuel for our people and supplies for our soldiers," Short said.

The reference to union members disagreeing with their leaders was to the refusal of the unions to accept a pay and working agreement which their leaders approved in December.

Need Troops Now

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today the dispatch of additional units of U. S. troops to Europe "soon" would be worth sending two or three times that many later.

He also expressed confidence the western European nations will be able to "build an effective defense force, within a reasonable time."

Eisenhower, who will address the nation by radio and television tonight (10:45 p. m. EST), was making another appearance on Capitol Hill to report on his tour of European defenses against Communist aggression.

Lawmakers who heard him said the general shied away from any estimates on the size of American ground forces that should be sent to Europe. He was reported to have said they would constitute only a "minor part" of the total ground army planned there.

Marine Enlistments Are Still Open

The Marine Corps enlistment quota is still unlimited, it was announced by Staff Sgt. Charles C. Awkerman, local Marine Corps recruiter in Kingston. The sergeant made the statement to "dispel a prevalent but mistaken belief that voluntary enlistments have been halted or curtailed by the Marine Corps as a result of heavy enlistments since January 1.

"Although Marine Corps recruiting has been exceptionally heavy the Marine Corps has not lowered its standards. They have adequate training facilities and centers to take care of an increase such as was expected with the current situation," Sergeant Awkerman said.

The new short term enlistments have been taken by many men eligible to be drafted, who wish to serve with the marines. Men enlisted as reserves will be discharged as soon as the general military situation permits. Either category, regular or reserve, undergo recruit training at Parris Island, S. C.

Has Auto Black Market

Singapore (AP)—Lack of shipping space from the United Kingdom is creating a black market for motorcars in Malaya. Motor dealers say that with high profits from rubber and tin impatient customers are prepared to pay for new cars at a premium. Customers who have booked cars in advance are selling them off on delivery at profits of not less than $500 on each. Dealers are calling for the imposition of government restrictions allocating only one car to each person and forbidding its resale.

Principal Prevents 'Strike' at School

Announcement Thursday that many schools in this area had been closed due to the storm brought about some dissatisfaction among a group of students at the local high school. There was talk of a "strike" at the school but that did not develop when Principal John H. Martin took a hand in the situation.

It was stated at the high school that the difficulty was straightened out when the alleged agitator was expelled from school. No one left the building and none of the students missed a class.

Education Board Awaits Report on Teachers' Raise

The Kingston Board of Education is awaiting the report of the Moore Commission before adjusting wages of local teachers. It is expected that this report will be forthcoming very soon and when that report is received it will serve as some guide for the adjustment of present salaries of Kingston teachers.

Some time ago Governor Dewey appointed a committee under the Moore law to study the teacher salary problem on a statewide basis. Whether this report will suggest a change in the base salary or a bonus system is one of the things many boards of education are awaiting before taking any action.

The matter of salary schedules has been discussed locally several times and the consensus has been that an adjustment must be made.

Expect State Aid

This matter came up again at the monthly meeting of the board Thursday evening and it was agreed that since the Moore commission report is expected very shortly it would be wise to await that report. It is assumed that if the commission makes a report and recommends increase, that the state will probably meet a portion of the increase through state aid moneys.

During the discussion of salaries the matter of the "merit system" now in use for teachers was mentioned. The board members agreed that the merit promotion system, which under the law requires that at least 30 per cent of the teachers be granted promotions under the second step of the system, should not be limited to any certain percentage of teachers but that all teachers in the system who "are doing a good job" would be promoted to the next bracket. Only in the case of a teacher who is not meeting that standard will the promotion be withheld.

Board's Attitude

The board members feel that any teacher who is doing the prescribed work in a satisfactory manner should be moved up to the next salary step, regardless of any percentage basis.

It was also suggested that any teacher whose work is considered "inferior", should be notified now of that fact in order to give any such teacher a chance to improve and meet the requirements for promotion when the next "merit promotion" period comes up.

It was pointed out at the last promotion most of the teachers were advanced and it will be the policy of the board to again promote, without regard to any percentage limit, all teachers who are 'doing a good job."

Vets' Children May Apply Now For Scholarships

This money is paid directly to the college for a period of not to exceed four years. Also included under the scholarships are two stipends each during a fiscal year. Application must be sent to the Bureau of Examinations and Testing, State Education Department, Albany, on or before March 1.

Examinations will be held on March 7 and 8 at approved secondary schools in the state. Examinations will be based on regents scholarship and awards will be made in the order of merit of standing. The law requires first preference to children of servicemen who died in service and children of deceased veterans.

Subsidy Asked For Dame Rumor

The high cost of publication of the Kingston high school paper "Dame Rumor" which has carried high school news for the past 19 years, has caused the management to seek a subsidy from the board of education.

A request for financial assistance was sent the board at its meeting Thursday evening. It was pointed out that the cost of issuing the paper had gone up $40 a month and there was no means of increasing revenue or the subscription price to the students.

The board voted a $500 subsidy for the year, that amount to be placed in the coming budget to cover the item.

Members of the board expressed a belief that the paper was of vital importance to the student body, the teaching staff and was instrumental in many students, who work on it during high school years, pursuing a literary or newspaper career after graduation.

During the discussion it was pointed out that the cost of publishing Dame Rumor was far below many similar school papers throughout the state. During its existence the paper has won many state and national honors in competition with other school papers.

In loving memory of Leeman H. Chase, Jr., who died February 2, 1950.

Just one year ago today
Our Lee suddenly went away.
The shock was great, the blow severe
We little knew his death was near.
A precious one from us is gone
A voice we love is still
A place is vacant in our hearts,
Which never can be filled.

Authorities Say

situation in Korea is such that experts here feel a decisive victory by either the Communists or the United Nations forces is virtually impossible and if the struggle is to be ended it will have to be by other than military means.

With respect to a political settlement, the United States in the past has taken the position that an agreement to end the fighting must precede any negotiations on the terms of a final agreement.

Meanwhile, on another but related phase of Far Eastern policy, the State Department has made it clear that the American government continues to disapprove the idea of using Chinese Nationalist forces in Korea or in an offensive against the Chinese mainland in order to divert Communist troops from Korea.

The State Department released last night a letter from Assistant Secretary Jack K. McFall to Rep. Seely-Brown (R.-Conn.) on this issue. Seely-Brown had sent an inquiry to President Truman regarding the use of Chiang Kai-shek's troops.

No Flat Statement

McFall did not say flatly what the government's views are. He said it would be "inadvisable at this stage" to make them public. But he listed four reasons why he said the Chinese Nationalist forces should not strike out from Formosa, either against the mainland or to join U.N. troops in Korea:

1. Chiang's Nationalist ground forces "are outnumbered by Chinese Communist troops by at least eight to one."

2. Preparation of Nationalist workers for action in Korea or on the mainland would require large quantities of military equipment from the United States at a time when this country faces "urgent demand from many quarters" for such materials.

3. The "principal mission of the forces on Formosa must be the defense of the island itself."

4. The United States must keep in mind "the fact that ((since) operations in Korea are U.N. operated the view of the many other countries participating in the operation are factors to be taken into account."

A. F. Molyneaux

Surviving are his wife, who was Helen Craig; five children: Jay E., of Hurley; Abram F., Jr., Mrs. Roger Baer Schwartz, Mrs. Charles W. Goble, Jr., Mrs. Warren Simmons, all of Kingston, and a sister, Mrs. Benjamin W. Johnston, of Kingston. The funeral will be held from the parlors of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street Monday at 2 p. m. Rail Strike . . .

thousands faced layoffs soon unless the strike ends.

The strike spread last night to new cities—Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Terre Haute, Ind., San Francisco and Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Early today, new "sick leave" walkouts were reported in Kansas City and the Pacific northwest.

Some of the carriers reported that workers other than switchmen were reporting "sick," which spokesmen said was apparent sympathy walkouts.

The switchmen, in dispute with the carriers for months, over wages and hours, have been demanding a 40 hour week at the pay they receive for a 48-hour week.

The agreement reached by the B.R.T. and three other rail unions with the carriers on Dec. 21 was rejected by local brotherhood chairmen. They expressed dissatisfaction with the terms of the new wage scale and officials were told to try for a new agreement.

The government's new wage-price freeze of last week was believed to have touched off the current "sick call" walkout.

President Asks

centrated upon less essential consumer goods." These taxes are estimated to yield $8,222,000,000 next year, under present tax laws.

The schedule outlined would mean a total tax take of $64,200,000,000.

This is nearly a third more than the record collections of World War Two when the take reached $43,000,000,000 in 1945.

The understanding among Congress members is that the further increase Mr. Truman is to request later would raise government revenues to more than $71,000,000,000.

The President left details of how the proposed $10,000,000,000 increase is to be made for explanation by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder.

Snyder will go into this at public hearings to be opened Monday by the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Mr. Truman did give one detail. He said the present $600 exemption should be retained.

Word in informed quarters was that Snyder will ask that normal corporate income tax rates be raised to 55 per cent from the present 47 per cent top.

The President did not specify any rate increase today.

Dulles Offers . . .

prepared to combine this power with that of other western nations, under the United Nations Charter, "so that the deterrent power which protects us also will protect others."

He said the United States would consider retaining defense forces in and near Japan "as a testimony to the unity of our countries."

This was in effect the first official proposal to continue the present actual defense precautions for Japan after the treaty.

Dulles reiterated that the only deterrent to a possible aggressor is "fear of retaliatory power used in the interest of collective security"—the kind of power he offered Japan.

"An armed aggressor" against Japan "would be subject to a striking power, the immensity of which defies imagination," he continued.

Without this power, he pointed out, the Republic of Korea was attacked by aggressors who were "tempted by the probability that reaction to their attack would be localized" because the United Nations never made it clear it would strike back.

Dulles delivered his speech before several hundred Japanese and Americans, including Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida and other government and industrial leaders.

Late Bulletins

Won't Tolerate Tie-Up

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP) — The White House declared today the railroad strikes are "directly injuring our national security" and the nation can not tolerate their continuance

Joseph Short, presidential press secretary, told reporters President Truman had authorized him to make that statement.

"No matter how much the union members may object to what their leaders have done, they cannot be justified in preventing the flow of food and fuel for our people and supplies for our soldiers," Short said.

The reference to union members disagreeing with their leaders was to the refusal of the unions to accept a pay and working agreement which their leaders approved in December.

Need Troops Now

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today the dispatch of additional units of U. S. troops to Europe "soon" would be worth sending two or three times that many later.

He also expressed confidence the western European nations will be able to "build an effective defense force, within a reasonable time."

Eisenhower, who will address the nation by radio and television tonight (10:45 p. m. EST), was making another appearance on Capitol Hill to report on his tour of European defenses against Communist aggression.

Lawmakers who heard him said the general shied away from any estimates on the size of American ground forces that should be sent to Europe. He was reported to have said they would constitute only a "minor part" of the total ground army planned there.

Marine Enlistments Are Still Open

The Marine Corps enlistment quota is still unlimited, it was announced by Staff Sgt. Charles C. Awkerman, local Marine Corps recruiter in Kingston. The sergeant made the statement to "dispel a prevalent but mistaken belief that voluntary enlistments have been halted or curtailed by the Marine Corps as a result of heavy enlistments since January 1.

"Although Marine Corps recruiting has been exceptionally heavy the Marine Corps has not lowered its standards. They have adequate training facilities and centers to take care of an increase such as was expected with the current situation," Sergeant Awkerman said.

The new short term enlistments have been taken by many men eligible to be drafted, who wish to serve with the marines. Men enlisted as reserves will be discharged as soon as the general military situation permits. Either category, regular or reserve, undergo recruit training at Parris Island, S. C.

Singapore (AP)—Lack of shipping space from the United Kingdom is creating a black market for motorcars in Malaya. Motor dealers say that with high profits from rubber and tin impatient customers are prepared to pay for new cars at a premium. Principal Prevents 'Strike' at School

Announcement Thursday that many schools in this area had been closed due to the storm brought about some dissatisfaction among a group of students at the local high school. There was talk of a "strike" at the school but that did not develop when Principal John H. Martin took a hand in the situation.

It was stated at the high school that the difficulty was straightened out when the alleged agitator was expelled from school. No one left the building and none of the students missed a class.

Education Board Awaits Report on Teachers' Raise

The Kingston Board of Education is awaiting the report of the Moore Commission before adjusting wages of local teachers. It is expected that this report will be forthcoming very soon and when that report is received it will serve as some guide for the adjustment of present salaries of Kingston teachers.

Some time ago Governor Dewey appointed a committee under the Moore law to study the teacher salary problem on a statewide basis. Whether this report will suggest a change in the base salary or a bonus system is one of the things many boards of education are awaiting before taking any action.

The matter of salary schedules has been discussed locally several times and the consensus has been that an adjustment must be made.

Expect State Aid

This matter came up again at the monthly meeting of the board Thursday evening and it was agreed that since the Moore commission report is expected very shortly it would be wise to await that report. It is assumed that if the commission makes a report and recommends increase, that the state will probably meet a portion of the increase through state aid moneys.

During the discussion of salaries the matter of the "merit system" now in use for teachers was mentioned. The board members agreed that the merit promotion system, which under the law requires that at least 30 per cent of the teachers be granted promotions under the second step of the system, should not be limited to any certain percentage of teachers but that all teachers in the system who "are doing a good job" would be promoted to the next bracket. Only in the case of a teacher who is not meeting that standard will the promotion be withheld.

Board's Attitude

The board members feel that any teacher who is doing the prescribed work in a satisfactory manner should be moved up to the next salary step, regardless of any percentage basis.

It was also suggested that any teacher whose work is considered "inferior", should be notified now of that fact in order to give any such teacher a chance to improve and meet the requirements for promotion when the next "merit promotion" period comes up.

It was pointed out at the last promotion most of the teachers were advanced and it will be the policy of the board to again promote, without regard to any percentage limit, all teachers who are 'doing a good job."

Subsidy Asked For Dame Rumor

The high cost of publication of the Kingston high school paper "Dame Rumor" which has carried high school news for the past 19 years, has caused the management to seek a subsidy from the board of education.

A request for financial assistance was sent the board at its meeting Thursday evening. It was pointed out that the cost of issuing the paper had gone up $40 a month and there was no means of increasing revenue or the subscription price to the students.

The board voted a $500 subsidy for the year, that amount to be placed in the coming budget to cover the item.

Members of the board expressed a belief that the paper was of vital importance to the student body, the teaching staff and was instrumental in many students, who work on it during high school years, pursuing a literary or newspaper career after graduation.

During the discussion it was pointed out that the cost of publishing Dame Rumor was far below many similar school papers throughout the state. During its existence the paper has won many state and national honors in competition with other school papers.

In loving memory of Leeman H. Chase, Jr., who died February 2, 1950.

Just one year ago today
Our Lee suddenly went away.
The shock was great, the blow severe
We little knew his death was near.
A precious one from us is gone
A voice we love is still
A place is vacant in our hearts,
Which never can be filled.

Authorities Say

situation in Korea is such that experts here feel a decisive victory by either the Communists or the United Nations forces is virtually impossible and if the struggle is to be ended it will have to be by other than military means.

With respect to a political settlement, the United States in the past has taken the position that an agreement to end the fighting must precede any negotiations on the terms of a final agreement.

Meanwhile, on another but related phase of Far Eastern policy, the State Department has made it clear that the American government continues to disapprove the idea of using Chinese Nationalist forces in Korea or in an offensive against the Chinese mainland in order to divert Communist troops from Korea.

The State Department released last night a letter from Assistant Secretary Jack K. McFall to Rep. Seely-Brown (R.-Conn.) on this issue. Seely-Brown had sent an inquiry to President Truman regarding the use of Chiang Kai-shek's troops.

No Flat Statement

McFall did not say flatly what the government's views are. He said it would be "inadvisable at this stage" to make them public. But he listed four reasons why he said the Chinese Nationalist forces should not strike out from Formosa, either against the mainland or to join U.N. troops in Korea:

1. Chiang's Nationalist ground forces "are outnumbered by Chinese Communist troops by at least eight to one."

2. Preparation of Nationalist workers for action in Korea or on the mainland would require large quantities of military equipment from the United States at a time when this country faces "urgent demand from many quarters" for such materials.

3. The "principal mission of the forces on Formosa must be the defense of the island itself."

4. The United States must keep in mind "the fact that ((since) operations in Korea are U.N. operated the view of the many other countries participating in the operation are factors to be taken into account."

A. F. Molyneaux

He was admitted to the hospital Jan. 19 for treatment of a serious illness and was in critical condition until his death at 1:20 a. m., today.

Surviving are his wife, who was Helen Craig; five children: Jay E., of Hurley; Abram F., Jr., Mrs. Roger Baer Schwartz, Mrs. Charles W. Goble, Jr., Mrs. Warren Simmons, all of Kingston, and a sister, Mrs. Benjamin W. Johnston, of Kingston. The funeral will be held from the parlors of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street Monday at 2 p. m. Rail Strike . . .

thousands faced layoffs soon unless the strike ends.

The strike spread last night to new cities—Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Terre Haute, Ind., San Francisco and Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Early today, new "sick leave" walkouts were reported in Kansas City and the Pacific northwest.

Some of the carriers reported that workers other than switchmen were reporting "sick," which spokesmen said was apparent sympathy walkouts.

The switchmen, in dispute with the carriers for months, over wages and hours, have been demanding a 40 hour week at the pay they receive for a 48-hour week.

The agreement reached by the B.R.T. and three other rail unions with the carriers on Dec. 21 was rejected by local brotherhood chairmen. They expressed dissatisfaction with the terms of the new wage scale and officials were told to try for a new agreement.

The government's new wage-price freeze of last week was believed to have touched off the current "sick call" walkout.

President Asks

centrated upon less essential consumer goods." These taxes are estimated to yield $8,222,000,000 next year, under present tax laws.

The schedule outlined would mean a total tax take of $64,200,000,000.

This is nearly a third more than the record collections of World War Two when the take reached $43,000,000,000 in 1945.

The understanding among Congress members is that the further increase Mr. Truman is to request later would raise government revenues to more than $71,000,000,000.

The President left details of how the proposed $10,000,000,000 increase is to be made for explanation by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder.

Snyder will go into this at public hearings to be opened Monday by the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Mr. Truman did give one detail. He said the present $600 exemption should be retained.

Word in informed quarters was that Snyder will ask that normal corporate income tax rates be raised to 55 per cent from the present 47 per cent top.

The President did not specify any rate increase today.

Dulles Offers . . .

prepared to combine this power with that of other western nations, under the United Nations Charter, "so that the deterrent power which protects us also will protect others."

He said the United States would consider retaining defense forces in and near Japan "as a testimony to the unity of our countries."

This was in effect the first official proposal to continue the present actual defense precautions for Japan after the treaty.

Dulles reiterated that the only deterrent to a possible aggressor is "fear of retaliatory power used in the interest of collective security"—the kind of power he offered Japan.

"An armed aggressor" against Japan "would be subject to a striking power, the immensity of which defies imagination," he continued.

Without this power, he pointed out, the Republic of Korea was attacked by aggressors who were "tempted by the probability that reaction to their attack would be localized" because the United Nations never made it clear it would strike back.

Dulles delivered his speech before several hundred Japanese and Americans, including Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida and other government and industrial leaders.

Late Bulletins

Won't Tolerate Tie-Up

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP) — The White House declared today the railroad strikes are "directly injuring our national security" and the nation can not tolerate their continuance

Joseph Short, presidential press secretary, told reporters President Truman had authorized him to make that statement.

"No matter how much the union members may object to what their leaders have done, they cannot be justified in preventing the flow of food and fuel for our people and supplies for our soldiers," Short said.

The reference to union members disagreeing with their leaders was to the refusal of the unions to accept a pay and working agreement which their leaders approved in December.

Need Troops Now

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today the dispatch of additional units of U. S. troops to Europe "soon" would be worth sending two or three times that many later.

He also expressed confidence the western European nations will be able to "build an effective defense force, within a reasonable time."

Eisenhower, who will address the nation by radio and television tonight (10:45 p. m. EST), was making another appearance on Capitol Hill to report on his tour of European defenses against Communist aggression.

Lawmakers who heard him said the general shied away from any estimates on the size of American ground forces that should be sent to Europe. He was reported to have said they would constitute only a "minor part" of the total ground army planned there.

Marine Enlistments Are Still Open

The Marine Corps enlistment quota is still unlimited, it was announced by Staff Sgt. Charles C. Awkerman, local Marine Corps recruiter in Kingston. The sergeant made the statement to "dispel a prevalent but mistaken belief that voluntary enlistments have been halted or curtailed by the Marine Corps as a result of heavy enlistments since January 1.

"Although Marine Corps recruiting has been exceptionally heavy the Marine Corps has not lowered its standards. They have adequate training facilities and centers to take care of an increase such as was expected with the current situation," Sergeant Awkerman said.

The new short term enlistments have been taken by many men eligible to be drafted, who wish to serve with the marines. Men enlisted as reserves will be discharged as soon as the general military situation permits. Either category, regular or reserve, undergo recruit training at Parris Island, S. C.

Principal Prevents 'Strike' at School

Announcement Thursday that many schools in this area had been closed due to the storm brought about some dissatisfaction among a group of students at the local high school. There was talk of a "strike" at the school but that did not develop when Principal John H. Martin took a hand in the situation.

It was stated at the high school that the difficulty was straightened out when the alleged agitator was expelled from school. No one left the building and none of the students missed a class.

Education Board Awaits Report on Teachers' Raise

The Kingston Board of Education is awaiting the report of the Moore Commission before adjusting wages of local teachers. It is expected that this report will be forthcoming very soon and when that report is received it will serve as some guide for the adjustment of present salaries of Kingston teachers.

Some time ago Governor Dewey appointed a committee under the Moore law to study the teacher salary problem on a statewide basis. Whether this report will suggest a change in the base salary or a bonus system is one of the things many boards of education are awaiting before taking any action.

The matter of salary schedules has been discussed locally several times and the consensus has been that an adjustment must be made.

Expect State Aid

This matter came up again at the monthly meeting of the board Thursday evening and it was agreed that since the Moore commission report is expected very shortly it would be wise to await that report. It is assumed that if the commission makes a report and recommends increase, that the state will probably meet a portion of the increase through state aid moneys.

During the discussion of salaries the matter of the "merit system" now in use for teachers was mentioned. The board members agreed that the merit promotion system, which under the law requires that at least 30 per cent of the teachers be granted promotions under the second step of the system, should not be limited to any certain percentage of teachers but that all teachers in the system who "are doing a good job" would be promoted to the next bracket. Only in the case of a teacher who is not meeting that standard will the promotion be withheld.

Board's Attitude

The board members feel that any teacher who is doing the prescribed work in a satisfactory manner should be moved up to the next salary step, regardless of any percentage basis.

It was also suggested that any teacher whose work is considered "inferior", should be notified now of that fact in order to give any such teacher a chance to improve and meet the requirements for promotion when the next "merit promotion" period comes up.

It was pointed out at the last promotion most of the teachers were advanced and it will be the policy of the board to again promote, without regard to any percentage limit, all teachers who are 'doing a good job."

America Is Showing Great Interest in Things Religious

By GEORGE CORNELL

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Key signs today indicate a phenomenal upsurge of interest in religion in America.

While the evidence doesn't show that the country as a whole is more devout, it does hint that organized religion is commanding new, wider attention.

A few of the clues:

1. Seminaries are packed and some of them for the first time are being forced to turn away applicants.

2. Bible sales have nearly doubled in the last decade, increasing between five and 10 per cent in the last year.

3. A radio network's broadcast on religion last month stirred the greatest letter response in the program's 16-year history.

4. The number of newspaper and magazine syndicates handling religious features has jumped from 17 to 45 in five years.

5. Church-building is at an all-time high.

Curricula Is Expanded

6. Most colleges and universities across the country have expanded religious curricula to meet student demands.

7. Present-day touring evangelists have attracted near-record crowds.

8. American industry and advertising men for the third time are backing an unusual, nationwide religion-promotion program.

9. Church contributions and attendance (a basic gauge of church vitality) are considered by officials to be at a peak.

10. Religious and inspirational books in recent years have achieved a regular place on best-seller lists.

Close observers view the sharpened religious appetite of the country as a result of the insecurity of the times.

They also see it as a possible reaction against an age of intense scientific rationalism, and a resurgent conviction that materialistic advances can never fully cope with life's basic needs.

Offers Analysis

One minister, the Rev. Ira W. Langston, of the Park Avenue Christian Church here, offered this analysis:

"People have discovered that the things they counted on most are no longer dependable. The family structure is not what it once was 20 years ago. The absolute, positive assurance of U. S. invulnerability is gone. The value of money has fallen to pieces. To put it briefly, things are shaking, and the people are looking for something unshakeable."

What is the result of this instability? Here are answers of some leading church authorities:

Theologian Dr. Heinhold Niebuhr: "There is a new receptivity toward the message of historic faith which is in marked contrast to the indifference and hostility of past decades."

Clarence Hall, managing editor of the Christian Herald: "Religious interest is at an all-time high. Churches are packed. People are going who had never been inside a church before."

Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.: "There is a tremendously increased interest in religion, and I hope a steadying influence. Primarily it is a revival in interest, rather than in religion itself. People no longer are writing off religion as old-fogey and outmoded. This might be a prelude to a real revival in religion."

Dr. Bernard J. Bamberger, president of the Synagogue Council of America: "Unquestionably there is a very much greater degree of affiliation and participation. Parents are demonstrating much greater concern for the religious training of their children."

Episcopal Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill: "The number going into the ministry and life vocations in the church has increased tremendously. The atmosphere in university and college circles is more friendly to religion than at any time in a generation. There are indications in my correspondence that more people are laying greater emphasis on prayer."

Monsignor Thomas J. McCarthy, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, Washington, D. C.: "Particularly since the end of the war, there has been a notable rallying to the church. The tremendous struggle the Catholic Church is waging against communism has attracted a great deal of attention, not only to the church's historical position but to its teachings. The high percentage of converts being received into the church is witness to the growing interest."

Dangers Are Viewed

While church leaders applaud heightened concern with religion, they also note its potential dangers.

Since periods of stress, such as the present, usually spark wider religious inquiry, they say, the impulse is often partly due to fear, and possibly to psychological panic.

When this motive is great, they feel that many persons may be driven into erratic and unwholesome "fringe expressions" of religion, such as weird cults and mysticism.

These activities, together with a host of strange psychological fads and mental-balm theories, have become a part of the modern scene.

The hope of church leaders is that men's present search for spiritual security can be channeled into stable areas, without extremism.

"If we make a sound ministry available to the growing sense of need," one churchman said, "then there is a real possibility of a tremendous upsurge in the basic religious life of America."

Evidences Appear

Concrete evidences of such a possibility appear on many fronts.

The interest that religion has stirred in purely business circles is reflected in the two-year-old, countrywide program, "religion in American life," which is planning increased work this year.

Backed by the advertising council, public service agency of American industry and advertising men, the program embraces all faiths. Last year, it put out hundreds of radio broadcasts, 8,000 newspaper advertisements and 94,000 bus and trolley cards to promote religion. It set up 5,000 billboards across the nation, saying: "Take Your Problems to Church This Week. Millions leave them there."

On college campuses, spiritual matters are drawing more notice. In the last year, interfaith evangelistic meetings were held at 48 universities and colleges, most of them attracting overflow crowds.

Although there are no tangible indications that students are more pious, it appears that religion is getting more consideration in dormitory "bull sessions."

Courses Are Broadened

As a result, many coleges have broadened religious courses, and some in recent years have set up new departments in this field.

Evangelism, both of the old revival-meeting type and of some newer varities, is having a heyday.

Most of the headlines have gone to emotion-charged revivalists like Billy Graham, whose flailing arms, flashing eyes and "old-time religion" preaching have packed auditoriums in many parts of the country.

Others have had similar success.

In the Baltimore area, 400 guests preachers took to the pulpits, and in 10 days, won 4,000 church members. In the Syracuse-Rochester-Buffalo, N. Y., area, 600 guest preachers in 10 days gained 14,000 new members, more than the area's 300 churches had added in the past year. Similar affairs were held in 44 other areas.

Ever since World War 2, young men—and women—have flocked into the ministry. Seminaries are full, and flooding over into improvised facilities.

The Methodist Church, reporting larger enrollments than ever before in its theological schools, said it had to turn applicants away for the first time last year.

A Congregational-Christian Church spokesman said 75 men are now entering the ministry, where 15 were doing so a few years ago.

The Episcopal Church last year ordained 240 new priests, an increase of 43.71 per cent over the previous figure.

Elbert M. Conover, director of the Interdenominational Bureau of Architecture, said church construction in the past year has surpassed any previous period in history.

He estimated $200,000,000 in new churches and additions went up in the past year, with another billion-dollars worth in the planning stage.

Contributions Increase

At Hillsdale, Mich., Dr. Harry S. Myers, secretary of the National Council's Stewardship Department, said the amount of church contributions has risen steadily since 1936, and last year topped the billion-dollar mark for 48 denominations for the first time.

The average per-capita yearly contribution by members last year was $30.58, compared to $27.43 for 1949.

The upswing in religious interest, in some ways, compares with the spectacular revivals just before the turn of the century, when the proportion of the population belonging to churches increased from 19.9 per cent in 1880 to 34.7 per cent in 1900.

In the present corresponding period, the proportion has climbed from 42.7 per cent to 54.2 per cent. The gain in actual numbers, about 30,000,000, is almost twice that of the previous 20-year period.

Total Membership

Total U. S. church membership last year stood at 81,862,328, including Protestants, Catholics and Jews. Although the 1950 figures will not be available until spring, gains by individual denominations indicate the total will exceed 83,000,000.

Although membership statistics are considered an inaccurate measure of religious life (because an unknown number of members are inactive, but still on the rolls) the figures show a clear pattern over the last half century.

Up to the mid-20s, the cycle moved up rapidly. Then came a slump in membership gains that lasted through the late roaring 20s, and the depression. For three years—'32, 33 and '34—the proportion of the population on church rolls lingered at the 48-per cent mark. About 1936, signs of new growth appeared, steadily climbing toward the current resurgence.

Red Cross Blood Plan Is Explained To Kiwanis Club

A field representative for the American Red Cross told members of the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday noon that the Red Cross blood program has 35 centers already operating in the U. S. and is meeting all the whole blood and blood derivative needs of the armed forces in Korea.

Blood centers in New York state are already established and operating in Rochester, Syracuse, Buffalo and New York city, Mrs. Dorothy B. Fasanella, general field representative for the Eastern Area, said.

A new center, to cover the 19 counties and their 33 chapters in Eastern New York state is being planned for Albany and Schenectady, she said.

Mrs. Fasanella, whose territory covers 14 counties and 26 chapters in this area, said that the National Blood Program will be offered to Ulster country through this upstate center upon approval by the Ulster County Medical Society.

Through this program, she said, whole blood and its derivatives is available to all people where the program is operating "regardless of race, creed, color or ability to pay." The blood is delivered to local chapters during regular visits by a mobile unit.

Mrs. Fasanella also explained the role of the Red Cross in civil defense. The organization has accepted responsibility for:

1. Teaching first aid to civil defense workers and the general public.
2. Meeting food, shelter, clothing needs on a mass care basis in an immediate emergency basis.
3. Teaching home nursing and training of nurses aids.
4. Meeting whole blood needs of the armed forces and plasma needs for civil defense stock-piling.
5. Recruiting and furnishing volunteers for civil defense.

America Is Showing Great Interest in Things Religious

By GEORGE CORNELL

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Key signs today indicate a phenomenal upsurge of interest in religion in America.

While the evidence doesn't show that the country as a whole is more devout, it does hint that organized religion is commanding new, wider attention.

A few of the clues:

1. Seminaries are packed and some of them for the first time are being forced to turn away applicants.

2. Bible sales have nearly doubled in the last decade, increasing between five and 10 per cent in the last year.

3. A radio network's broadcast on religion last month stirred the greatest letter response in the program's 16-year history.

4. The number of newspaper and magazine syndicates handling religious features has jumped from 17 to 45 in five years.

5. Church-building is at an all-time high.

Curricula Is Expanded

6. Most colleges and universities across the country have expanded religious curricula to meet student demands.

7. Present-day touring evangelists have attracted near-record crowds.

8. American industry and advertising men for the third time are backing an unusual, nationwide religion-promotion program.

9. Church contributions and attendance (a basic gauge of church vitality) are considered by officials to be at a peak.

10. Religious and inspirational books in recent years have achieved a regular place on best-seller lists.

Close observers view the sharpened religious appetite of the country as a result of the insecurity of the times.

They also see it as a possible reaction against an age of intense scientific rationalism, and a resurgent conviction that materialistic advances can never fully cope with life's basic needs.

Offers Analysis

One minister, the Rev. Ira W. Langston, of the Park Avenue Christian Church here, offered this analysis:

"People have discovered that the things they counted on most are no longer dependable. The family structure is not what it once was 20 years ago. The absolute, positive assurance of U. S. invulnerability is gone. The value of money has fallen to pieces. To put it briefly, things are shaking, and the people are looking for something unshakeable."

What is the result of this instability? Here are answers of some leading church authorities:

Theologian Dr. Heinhold Niebuhr: "There is a new receptivity toward the message of historic faith which is in marked contrast to the indifference and hostility of past decades."

Clarence Hall, managing editor of the Christian Herald: "Religious interest is at an all-time high. Churches are packed. People are going who had never been inside a church before."

Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.: "There is a tremendously increased interest in religion, and I hope a steadying influence. Primarily it is a revival in interest, rather than in religion itself. People no longer are writing off religion as old-fogey and outmoded. This might be a prelude to a real revival in religion."

Dr. Bernard J. Bamberger, president of the Synagogue Council of America: "Unquestionably there is a very much greater degree of affiliation and participation. Parents are demonstrating much greater concern for the religious training of their children."

Episcopal Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill; "The number going into the ministry and life vocations in the church has increased tremendously. The atmosphere in university and college circles is more friendly to religion than at any time in a generation. There are indications in my correspondence that more people are laying greater emphasis on prayer."

Monsignor Thomas J. McCarthy, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, Washington, D. C.: "Particularly since the end of the war, there has been a notable rallying to the church. The tremendous struggle the Catholic Church is waging against communism has attracted a great deal of attention, not only to the church's historical position but to its teachings. The high percentage of converts being received into the church is witness to the growing interest."

Dangers Are Viewed

While church leaders applaud heightened concern with religion, they also note its potential dangers.

Since periods of stress, such as the present, usually spark wider religious inquiry, they say, the impulse is often partly due to fear, and possibly to psychological panic.

When this motive is great, they feel that many persons may be driven into erratic and unwholesome "fringe expressions" of religion, such as weird cults and mysticism.

These activities, together with a host of strange psychological fads and mental-balm theories, have become a part of the modern scene.

The hope of church leaders is that men's present search for spiritual security can be channeled into stable areas, without extremism.

"If we make a sound ministry available to the growing sense of need," one churchman said, "then there is a real possibility of a tremendous upsurge in the basic religious life of America."

Evidences Appear

Concrete evidences of such a possibility appear on many fronts.

The interest that religion has stirred in purely business circles is reflected in the two-year-old, countrywide program, "religion in American life," which is planning increased work this year.

Backed by the advertising council, public service agency of American industry and advertising men, the program embraces all faiths. Last year, it put out hundreds of radio broadcasts, 8,000 newspaper advertisements and 94,000 bus and trolley cards to promote religion. It set up 5,000 billboards across the nation, saying: "Take Your Problems to Church This Week. Millions leave them there."

On college campuses, spiritual matters are drawing more notice. In the last year, interfaith evangelistic meetings were held at 48 universities and colleges, most of them attracting overflow crowds.

Although there are no tangible indications that students are more pious, it appears that religion is getting more consideration in dormitory "bull sessions."

Courses Are Broadened

As a result, many coleges have broadened religious courses, and some in recent years have set up new departments in this field.

Evangelism, both of the old revival-meeting type and of some newer varities, is having a heyday.

Most of the headlines have gone to emotion-charged revivalists like Billy Graham, whose flailing arms, flashing eyes and "old-time religion" preaching have packed auditoriums in many parts of the country.

Others have had similar success.

In the Baltimore area, 400 guests preachers took to the pulpits, and in 10 days, won 4,000 church members. In the Syracuse-Rochester-Buffalo, N. Y., area, 600 guest preachers in 10 days gained 14,000 new members, more than the area's 300 churches had added in the past year. Similar affairs were held in 44 other areas.

Ever since World War 2, young men—and women—have flocked into the ministry. Seminaries are full, and flooding over into improvised facilities.

The Methodist Church, reporting larger enrollments than ever before in its theological schools, said it had to turn applicants away for the first time last year.

A Congregational-Christian Church spokesman said 75 men are now entering the ministry, where 15 were doing so a few years ago.

The Episcopal Church last year ordained 240 new priests, an increase of 43.71 per cent over the previous figure.

Elbert M. Conover, director of the Interdenominational Bureau of Architecture, said church construction in the past year has surpassed any previous period in history.

He estimated $200,000,000 in new churches and additions went up in the past year, with another billion-dollars worth in the planning stage.

Contributions Increase

At Hillsdale, Mich., Dr. Harry S. Myers, secretary of the National Council's Stewardship Department, said the amount of church contributions has risen steadily since 1936, and last year topped the billion-dollar mark for 48 denominations for the first time.

The average per-capita yearly contribution by members last year was $30.58, compared to $27.43 for 1949.

The upswing in religious interest, in some ways, compares with the spectacular revivals just before the turn of the century, when the proportion of the population belonging to churches increased from 19.9 per cent in 1880 to 34.7 per cent in 1900.

In the present corresponding period, the proportion has climbed from 42.7 per cent to 54.2 per cent. The gain in actual numbers, about 30,000,000, is almost twice that of the previous 20-year period.

Total Membership

Total U. S. church membership last year stood at 81,862,328, including Protestants, Catholics and Jews. Although the 1950 figures will not be available until spring, gains by individual denominations indicate the total will exceed 83,000,000.

Although membership statistics are considered an inaccurate measure of religious life (because an unknown number of members are inactive, but still on the rolls) the figures show a clear pattern over the last half century.

Up to the mid-20s, the cycle moved up rapidly. Then came a slump in membership gains that lasted through the late roaring 20s, and the depression. For three years—'32, 33 and '34—the proportion of the population on church rolls lingered at the 48-per cent mark. About 1936, signs of new growth appeared, steadily climbing toward the current resurgence.

Red Cross Blood Plan Is Explained To Kiwanis Club

A field representative for the American Red Cross told members of the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday noon that the Red Cross blood program has 35 centers already operating in the U. S. and is meeting all the whole blood and blood derivative needs of the armed forces in Korea.

Blood centers in New York state are already established and operating in Rochester, Syracuse, Buffalo and New York city, Mrs. Dorothy B. Fasanella, general field representative for the Eastern Area, said.

A new center, to cover the 19 counties and their 33 chapters in Eastern New York state is being planned for Albany and Schenectady, she said.

Mrs. Fasanella, whose territory covers 14 counties and 26 chapters in this area, said that the National Blood Program will be offered to Ulster country through this upstate center upon approval by the Ulster County Medical Society.

Through this program, she said, whole blood and its derivatives is available to all people where the program is operating "regardless of race, creed, color or ability to pay." The blood is delivered to local chapters during regular visits by a mobile unit.

Mrs. Fasanella also explained the role of the Red Cross in civil defense. The organization has accepted responsibility for:

1. Teaching first aid to civil defense workers and the general public.

2. Meeting food, shelter, clothing needs on a mass care basis in an immediate emergency basis.

3. Teaching home nursing and training of nurses aids.

4. Meeting whole blood needs of the armed forces and plasma needs for civil defense stock-piling.

5. Recruiting and furnishing volunteers for civil defense.

PLANNING FOR TROUBLE

There has not been a notable degree of long-term planning in the handling of war and defense problems since the Korea affair began. There is a general impression that the move into Korea in the first place was made on the basis of a hasty and inadequate estimate of the situation, and that since then some over decisions have been made, in and out of Korea, on the basis of inadequate information or inadequate study of the information at hand.

The appointment of a special commission to study the nation's supply problems in the years ahead appears to be a better step toward better advance preparation for important decisions. The commission is to study long-range requirements for various materials, the long-range supply situation, and the appropriateness of plans by government and private industry to meet supply problems. Presumably its report is to be the basis of recommendations for future government and private planning.

Most Americans want as little as possible of government planning and controls in the operation of the industrial machine which supplies our wants. But during the period of defense emergency some controls over such things as basic materials are unavoidable. It looks as if the period of emergency, or at least of abnormal defense burden, will be a long one. Hence the long-range supply situation should be known, and should be given appropriate weight in deciding what to do about the immediate situation. This may make immediate problems harder, but will help to prevent future ones from taking us by surprise.

HEALTH EDUCATION

Health education in the public schools has been the subject of a great deal of discussion in the past decade. Selective Service experience in the Second World War disclosed that the young men of America are not, on the average, as physically fit as had been supposed. Draft experience in the last few months has shown no change in the situation.

The National Conference for Health Education has recently repeated its view that the most immediate need in the field is for more and better-trained teachers for health classes, and that this in turn indicates a need for improved teacher education in the field. This idea was first voiced by the conference in 1945 after a survey of school needs.

It would be an oversimplification to say that the disappointing state of physical fitness among young people should be laid to a shortage of expert health teachers. Besides, it would probably be more accurate to say that there is a shortage of trained health teachers because of the paucity of health programs in the schools. Students training for teaching jobs naturally tend to specialize in fields which seem to offer the greatest opportunities. The opportunities in health teaching have not been such as to attract great numbers of embryo teachers.

The immediate development of greatly expanded school health programs would be hampered by the lack of trained teachers. But until greater interest in health education is shown by school administrators and the public it can hardly be expected that the teachers will become available.

FOOTBALL FANS

Some people, especially those who do not play, take their athletic sports very seriously. Gordon Persons had been governor of Alabama just two days before coming out with a demand that the Alabama Polytechnic Institute of Auburn dismiss its football coach. It is not certain whether he speaks as an Auburn alumnus, who might be expected to be interested in the team's lack of success, or as the governor, possessing the power to remove Auburn's president if he does not conform to the governor's wishes. In either case a new governor might be expected to find on his desk matters needing earlier attention.

An even stronger feeling of the supreme importance of the game is shown in the will of the late Thomas Barr Jr., of Newark, New Jersey. He left Rutgers University his estate of more than $1,000,000, contingent upon the death of his wife, to be used for scholarships for football players. Rutgers is going to hold up its head in its long football rivalry with Princeton if Barr has his way.

Sport used to be defined in the dictionary as "recreation or amusement." Apparently the definition should now read, "the important business of educational institutions." But what happens to education under these circumstances?

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

OUR GREATEST NATIONAL ASSET

Already the United States has made a capital investment of $3,000,000,000 in atomic developments. It is estimated that within a few years, this amount will be doubled. Thomas E. Murray, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, says of this:

". . . Large as this may seem it is ridiculously small when compared with other, less essential national expenditures. For your atomic energy plants and their products are our greatest national asset and cannot be measured in dollars. Piling up gold reserves at Fort Knox will never stop the Communist strategy of world conquest, but stockpiling bomb-level material—material that does not rust—may well be the only barrier, outside of prayer, like tanks and guns nor become obsolete overnight than pan-communism, cannot scale to steal fires to enflame the world."

At present, this amazing power is government-owned. Applied to peacetime uses, atomic energy can revolutionize the means of production and distribution. Is the government to own the new power permanently? Then the means of production and distribution will be government-owned. It is an interesting problem to speculate. Shall we purchase atomic energy from the government as folks in cities buy water from municipalities? Such a revolutionary process would bring us socialism, which is essentially government ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange.

Mr. Murray describes these amazing developments:

". . . Jules Verne dreamed that men could penetrate 20,000 leagues under (the sea). He did not in the wildest spasm of his imagination foresee a submarine which could cruise the submerged kingdoms for untold periods without the need of returning to port for refueling. Yet, this is precisely what an atomic submarine will be able to do. The atomic airplane will follow. Aircraft capable of circling the globe for long periods of time without refueling are also within our reach."

Once we are through worrying about Stalin and his Russians, imagine what the application of the principles involved in the atomic submarine and atomic airplane will do to our railroads, automobiles and airplanes! Also, what will the elimination of coal, gas and oil from our economy do? Thomas Murray describes this:

"From present day knowledge we know that stationary nuclear reactors can be loaded with uranium to generate heat for power continuously for periods of years without the necessity of having to look at the fuel gauge."

It is a new world we are moving into, a world conceived in war that may alter all our ways of life. We can harly envisage this new life nor what it will do to our environment. But shall we in our new world have new and different ideas about life? Will it make any real difference to us as human beings in our relationship to each other?

The Roman rode a chariot or walked; we have forgotten how to walk. We ride even short distances. We ride planes, buses, trains, automobiles. Our soldiers use jeeps. But have we had a single idea different from the Romans on the fundamentals of life? Confucius never heard of rayon or nylon or any such commodities, but have we progressed far beyond Confucius in his conception of the relations among members of a family? We have general, even universal education, but have we greater wisdom than Job?

None of us shall really live to see what this revolution has wrought, but this we know, that there has been no improvement on the Ten Commandments, which are about 3,500 years old in their present form, and no greater wisdom appears anywhere than in the Sermon on the Mount, which is nearly 20 centuries old.

Time marches on but it makes few real, fundamental changes. No matter what our environment or tools, we come back to the same problems of what is right and what is wrong and where we shall restrain ourselves and how we can gain and hold freedom.

Atomic fission has, in a way, shocked this generation by its fearful drama; yet, in essence, its application and discovery can mean no more than the first use of electricity or steam or fire itself. Even as a weapon of war, the dread of it is no longer as horrible as it was after Hiroshima. Man adjusts to everything—and comes out of his fears, still the same man.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

CHRONIC ILLNESS

Nursing homes, those which are carefully inspected by community health departments, fill a need in the lives of our elderly men and women and certainly relieve our general hospitals from some of the overcrowding that exists. The fact that a graduate nurse resides in or is in charge of these nursing homes, and a physician visits them regularly, likewise takes some of the strain off general hospitals and insures reasonable care for the elderly and those chronically ill.

That nursing homes are of great help to the chronically ill, those that are never well yet have none of the specific diseases that require skilled and constant attention, is now admitted and home care under the supervision of a nearby hospital physician gives a service that is equal or nearly equal to actual care in hospital.

What is chronic illness?

An editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association defines it as any deviation or departure from health that affects a person's total life pattern in a significant way, because of the length of the illness and its effects, which may last for a long time after the illness proper has passed.

We can readily see that prolonged illness not only requires the medical knowledge and skill of the practicing physician but also his help in the patient's reestablishment of himself in everyday life.

For a long time practitioners have met difficulties in finding proper hospital facilities for their chronically ill patients and have observed the lack of adequate visiting nurse, housekeeping and other services by which patients might be cared for, and the inadequacy of many nursing homes. This need is being met to some extent by the Commission of Chronic Illness, founded in 1949 by the American Medical Association, American Hospital Association, American Public Health Association, and the American Public Welfare Association.

Ain't Human Nature Wonderful?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The two men who rule the Chicago underworld today are Tony Accardo and Jack Guzik. Not only have they taken over the vast and profitable domain of Al Capone along the shores of Lake Michigan, but they have spread out into the lush crime fields of Florida and California.

Four years ago Accardo and Guzik, long operating informally as a team, legalized their partnership and notified the government that for the year 1946 they had earned a total of $130,000.

The source of this profit they listed merely as "other income," which poses an obvious problem for Uncle Sam's tax collectors. Internal revenue solved it that year by writing the following notation at the bottom of Guzik's and Accardo's tax return:

"The partners refused to divulge the source of this income. Insomuch as the partnership reports a substantial amount, the correctness of which is impossible to check, it is opined that further investigation is impracticable.—(Signed) Ned Klein, revenue agent."

This was about the best Agent Klein could do under the circumstances. However, if Secretary of the Treasury Snyder wanted to set up a special tax squad to watch the big racketeers, and if Congress wanted to give him the money for this, the effect would be:

1. To bring considerably more revenue into the treasury.
2. To hamper if not drive the hoodlums out of business.

For no hoodlum can operate when he knows that internal revenue men are breathing down his neck every minute, not only watching his operations but checking on his so-called business deductions.

Protection Payoffs

The latter is the Achilles' Heel of the underworld. For the chief business deductions of the hoodlums are protection money paid to police and local politicians. This is not a legal business deduction under the tax laws, and by watching this, revenue agents not only can help clean up city politics but help drive the hoodlums out of business.

To illustrate, let's take a closer look at the profits of Jack Guzik, No. 2 inheritor of the old Al Capone rackets. Last year Guzik and Accardo reported an income of $278,667.89 from the Erie and Buffalo Co., which happens to be a policy wheel. This was operated by Caesar and Leo Venvenuit up until 1947, when their home was bombed.

The reason their home was bombed was fairly obvious. They were making too much money. So the Guzik-Accardo crowd decided profits should be shared. They muscled in.

Income-tax returns at this point make it fairly clear as to what happened. After the 1947 bombing, Sam Pardy and Tom Manno took over the policy wheel, leaving only small commissions for the two Benvenuti brothers. The real money went to the two men who muscled in, and the Erie and Buffalo's Company's tax return under Pardy and Manno shows $278,667.89 paid as "salaries, fees and commissions for A. J. Accardo."

Profitable Partnership

Accardo then split this with Guzik, giving the later $134,207.54. Along with this revenue, Guzik listed in his 1949 tax return an additional $25,500 which he attributed simply to "miscellaneous various sources." He also deducted $6,803.32 for contributions though he didn't list them by name, which is against regulations.

In 1948 Guzik simply reported a nice, round income of $100,000 which he attributed to "various sources." This left Internal Revenue agents with the problem of making a long, exhaustive investigation; and, lacking both the time and personnel, nothing further was done.

In 1947, things weren't quite so lush for the Chicago lord of the underworld. He listed a profit of only $51,000, though in 1946 he made $65,000 from his partnership with Accardo plus another $7,500 of "various income."

Guzik's income was somewhat similar in the war years. In 1944, for instance, he claimed a total income of only $16,000, while in 1943 he listed $8,080 from "wagering," $2,500 from "football," $6,000 from "miscellaneous sources," and $4,000 from "Dome." This is the name of a night club licensed in the name of Guzik's brother-in-law. There was no explanation as to how Guzik made his money from "football."

Presumably Guzik ought to be careful about his income tax now, for he was sentenced to five years for tax evasion in 1930. This was in the Hoover administration, when the Treasury was a lot tougher on gangsters than they are today. The Treasury at that time claimed that Guzik, then business manager for the Capone syndicate, netted $1,000,000 during the years 1927-28-29, and owed the government $250,000. He got five years in Leavenworth, plus a fine of $17,500.

Rearming the South

The south is getting so many defense projects that northern congressman have been kidding their colleagues about the danger of a new Civil War.

It happened when chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia was delivering a closed-door report on prooosed air force projects—practically every one of them below the Mason-Dixon Line. Finally, Congressman Gary Clemente of New York interrupted.

"Mr. chairman," he said, "the list your are reading gives me pause. There is this for Tennessee, that for Alabama, and, of course, Texas is never forgotten.

"In addition, I see by the newspapers that the new H-bomb project is slated for South Carolina, while the atom-bomb plant is located in North Carolina. Am I to be led to believe that the south is rearming?"

Chairman Vinson of Georgia informed the New Yorker that another Civil War was not in the offing.

Administration Lets Switchmen's Strike Go Along Without Taking Positive Action

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 2—The American people have been asked for several days to believe that the switchmen's union is no longer a responsible body, that its officers have lost control of its members, and that when the switchmen report "sick" at 43 railroad terminals in 32 cities, this is a spontaneous act of individuals and not a concerted action.

Such a travesty and obvious piece of trickery is resorted to on the assumption that the public will believe there is no strike going on and that it is a so-called "wildcat" affair.

Yet millions of dollars of damage are being done to innocent bystanders, and there is apparently no means of redress to injured citizens.

Whatever machinery of mediation or negotiation has been available has been used. Technically, all the railroads of the country are in the hands of the army. The national administration has known of this situation for many weeks and still it has not faced up to the dangers of letting it drift without positive action.

The administration did intervene to try to work out a settlement, and an agreement was reached between top representatives of the railroads and of the unions involved. But when the agreement was submitted to the members, there was a refusal to ratify. Then the members took matters into their own hands and began a series of sporadic walkouts which the union officers clamed were not authorized.

Action by the Department of Justice to invoke injunction proceedings was taken on December 14, but there has now been a defiance of court orders.

What appears amazing is that a labor union can flout a court order and bring on a paralysis of transportation and yet escape penalty. Nobody could interfere with recruiting of troops or with distribution of army supplies and escape prosecution but a labor union, as John L. Lewis demonstrated, can get away with a so-called "spontaneous" strike that shuts down military production.

Plainly there is an absence of firmness somewhere. The present administration has been trifling with this issue of "wildcat" strikes for some time. It never prosecuted with sufficient vigor the same question when it arose in the coal industry and it failed until this week to follow up intensively the court proceedings instituted several weeks ago. It never did pursue vigorously enough the case of the recalcitrant miners who defied a court order.

The real difficulty is that the labor unions know the Truman administration is owned body and soul by the labor vote and hesitates to take drastic action against labor unions when they do become irresponsible.

There is no law which can compel members of labor unions to accept agreements made by their negotiators but, on the other hand, the rights of labor unions to carry on their concerted activities are predicated on the assumption that the officers are responsible for the acts of their members.

The Taft-Hartley Law makes this principle clear, but the rail unions have been exempted by Congress from both the Wagner Act and the Taft-Hartley Act. It may be that the need now is for a blanket coverage of all labor unions in a single law and the passage by Congress of an amendment to existing statutes stipulating ways and means of settling strikes that vitally affect the national interest.

What would be helpful in the present emergency is a declaration by the President of the issues involved so that the people could be informed and so that Congress might be persuaded by public opinion to take legislative action.

It seems strange that a government which has the power to draft young men into military service, to fix price and to freeze wages, to allocate materials and otherwise to restrict freedom of individual action in the economic life of the country should appear so helpless to prevent "wildcat" strikes or to punish those responsible for such actions.

Shipment of some of the food and supplies for our fighting forces overseas has been interfered with and industrial production for military purposes has been impaired—yet the Truman administration has waited for the paralysis to mount before resorting to further court proceedings. Meanwhile, Congress looks on with no sign of interest from the legislative viewpoint.

One wonders what damage any rebellious group would be able to do in America before the national government awakened to its responsibility. The railroad controversy is no sudden affair. The merits of the dispute have long been under discussion, but the national administration has not called a spade a spade nor directed public attention to the agreement actually made at the White House which has been flouted this week by rank-and-file behavior camouflaged as "sickness."

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, Feb. 1—In his office in the new House office building Congressman Frank Buchanan, Democrat, of McKeesport, Pa., chairman of the committee on lobbying, admitted that he had been indicted twice on charges of fraud but insisted that he had been "cleared" without trial in either case. I have evidence that Buchanan was indicted three times and that in each case the indictment was dismissed with the proviso, however, that the defendant Buchanan must pay the costs of prosecution.

This disposition does not signify that he was "cleared." I invited Mr. Buchanan to examine photographs of the three indictments. He declined. His committee, now defunct, harassed societies which uphold the constitution and oppose communism. The committee doggedly refrained from making a similar investigation of the affairs of the non-sectarian anti-Nazi League and the Society for the Prevention of World War 3, which for years has been whooping up, with variations, the Morgenthau plan to abandon a prostrate, helpless Germany exposed to seizure by Soviet Russia. Both of these organizations are letterhead private enterprises of Isidore Lipschutz, the Belgian emigre diamond dealer. The sources and scope of his income are not necessarily explained by the mere statement that he deals in diamonds.

With no insinuation intended but as a general observation, a distinguished American diplomat who served as minister to Belgium has expressed an opinion of the diamond traders of Brussels which is not complimentary to them as a group. He said that at one gala dinner at which it was necessary for delicate reasons to entertain the diamond dealers they segregated themselves and were markedly let alone. He said they were not an attractive company. On the other hand, American dealers in precious stones are conspicuous neither for lack of grace, aloofness nor mysterious political activities.

The anti-Nazi League is notorious. It has been repudiated by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. An officer on the staff of General Lucius Clay, in Berlin, during the prolonged blockade by the Soviet army and the American air-lift, reports that, notwithstanding the need for every inch of space for food, coal and other vital necessities, packages of Lipschutz's propaganda weighing hundreds of pounds were flown into Berlin. He thought this propaganda was favorable to the Russian political position.

Quentin Reynolds, who wrote very cordially concerning phases of Russia under Stalin and put himself in sharp disagreement with Father Leopold Braun, the resident Catholic chaplain of Moscow, regarding religious freedom there, is named on the masthead of the society's publication as a member of the "Advisory Council." Louis M. Nizer, his attorney, also is named as a member of this "Council." Among the others listed there are Jo Davidson, the sculptor who is cited many times in the records of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, and Bartley Crum, an extreme New Deal attorney who held forth briefly as publisher of the violent but ill-starred New York Star, which was facetiously called "The Red Star." Crum currently is attorney for Drew Pearson, who

Students training for teaching jobs naturally tend to specialize in fields which seem to offer the greatest opportunities. The opportunities in health teaching have not been such as to attract great numbers of embryo teachers.

The immediate development of greatly expanded school health programs would be hampered by the lack of trained teachers. But until greater interest in health education is shown by school administrators and the public it can hardly be expected that the teachers will become available.

FOOTBALL FANS

Some people, especially those who do not play, take their athletic sports very seriously. Gordon Persons had been governor of Alabama just two days before coming out with a demand that the Alabama Polytechnic Institute of Auburn dismiss its football coach. It is not certain whether he speaks as an Auburn alumnus, who might be expected to be interested in the team's lack of success, or as the governor, possessing the power to remove Auburn's president if he does not conform to the governor's wishes. In either case a new governor might be expected to find on his desk matters needing earlier attention.

An even stronger feeling of the supreme importance of the game is shown in the will of the late Thomas Barr Jr., of Newark, New Jersey. He left Rutgers University his estate of more than $1,000,000, contingent upon the death of his wife, to be used for scholarships for football players. Rutgers is going to hold up its head in its long football rivalry with Princeton if Barr has his way.

Sport used to be defined in the dictionary as "recreation or amusement." Apparently the definition should now read, "the important business of educational institutions." But what happens to education under these circumstances?

OUR GREATEST NATIONAL ASSET

Already the United States has made a capital investment of $3,000,000,000 in atomic developments. It is estimated that within a few years, this amount will be doubled. Thomas E. Murray, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, says of this:

". . . Large as this may seem it is ridiculously small when compared with other, less essential national expenditures. For your atomic energy plants and their products are our greatest national asset and cannot be measured in dollars. Piling up gold reserves at Fort Knox will never stop the Communist strategy of world conquest, but stockpiling bomb-level material—material that does not rust—may well be the only barrier, outside of prayer, like tanks and guns nor become obsolete overnight than pan-communism, cannot scale to steal fires to enflame the world."

At present, this amazing power is government-owned. Applied to peacetime uses, atomic energy can revolutionize the means of production and distribution. Is the government to own the new power permanently? Then the means of production and distribution will be government-owned. It is an interesting problem to speculate. Shall we purchase atomic energy from the government as folks in cities buy water from municipalities? Such a revolutionary process would bring us socialism, which is essentially government ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange.

Mr. Murray describes these amazing developments:

". . . Jules Verne dreamed that men could penetrate 20,000 leagues under (the sea). He did not in the wildest spasm of his imagination foresee a submarine which could cruise the submerged kingdoms for untold periods without the need of returning to port for refueling. Yet, this is precisely what an atomic submarine will be able to do. The atomic airplane will follow. Aircraft capable of circling the globe for long periods of time without refueling are also within our reach."

Once we are through worrying about Stalin and his Russians, imagine what the application of the principles involved in the atomic submarine and atomic airplane will do to our railroads, automobiles and airplanes! Also, what will the elimination of coal, gas and oil from our economy do? Thomas Murray describes this:

"From present day knowledge we know that stationary nuclear reactors can be loaded with uranium to generate heat for power continuously for periods of years without the necessity of having to look at the fuel gauge."

It is a new world we are moving into, a world conceived in war that may alter all our ways of life. We can hardly envisage this new life nor what it will do to our environment. But shall we in our new world have new and different ideas about life? Will it make any real difference to us as human beings in our relationship to each other?

The Roman rode a chariot or walked; we have forgotten how to walk. We ride even short distances. We ride planes, buses, trains, automobiles. Our soldiers use jeeps. But have we had a single idea different from the Romans on the fundamentals of life? Confucius never heard of rayon or nylon or any such commodities, but have we progressed far beyond Confucius in his conception of the relations among members of a family? We have general, even universal education, but have we greater wisdom than Job?

None of us shall really live to see what this revolution has wrought, but this we know, that there has been no improvement on the Ten Commandments, which are about 3,500 years old in their present form, and no greater wisdom appears anywhere than in the Sermon on the Mount, which is nearly 20 centuries old.

Time marches on but it makes few real, fundamental changes. No matter what our environment or tools, we come back to the same problems of what is right and what is wrong and where we shall restrain ourselves and how we can gain and hold freedom.

Atomic fission has, in a way, shocked this generation by its fearful drama; yet, in essence, its application and discovery can mean no more than the first use of electricity or steam or fire itself. Even as a weapon of war, the dread of it is no longer as horrible as it was after Hiroshima. Man adjusts to everything—and comes out of his fears, still the same man.

CHRONIC ILLNESS

Nursing homes, those which are carefully inspected by community health departments, fill a need in the lives of our elderly men and women and certainly relieve our general hospitals from some of the overcrowding that exists. The fact that a graduate nurse resides in or is in charge of these nursing homes, and a physician visits them regularly, likewise takes some of the strain off general hospitals and insures reasonable care for the elderly and those chronically ill.

That nursing homes are of great help to the chronically ill, those that are never well yet have none of the specific diseases that require skilled and constant attention, is now admitted and home care under the supervision of a nearby hospital physician gives a service that is equal or nearly equal to actual care in hospital.

What is chronic illness?

An editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association defines it as any deviation or departure from health that affects a person's total life pattern in a significant way, because of the length of the illness and its effects, which may last for a long time after the illness proper has passed.

We can readily see that prolonged illness not only requires the medical knowledge and skill of the practicing physician but also his help in the patient's reestablishment of himself in everyday life.

For a long time practitioners have met difficulties in finding proper hospital facilities for their chronically ill patients and have observed the lack of adequate visiting nurse, housekeeping and other services by which patients might be cared for, and the inadequacy of many nursing homes. This need is being met to some extent by the Commission of Chronic Illness, founded in 1949 by the American Medical Association, American Hospital Association, American Public Health Association, and the American Public Welfare Association.

Ain't Human Nature Wonderful?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The two men who rule the Chicago underworld today are Tony Accardo and Jack Guzik. Not only have they taken over the vast and profitable domain of Al Capone along the shores of Lake Michigan, but they have spread out into the lush crime fields of Florida and California.

Four years ago Accardo and Guzik, long operating informally as a team, legalized their partnership and notified the government that for the year 1946 they had earned a total of $130,000.

The source of this profit they listed merely as "other income," which poses an obvious problem for Uncle Sam's tax collectors. Internal revenue solved it that year by writing the following notation at the bottom of Guzik's and Accardo's tax return:

"The partners refused to divulge the source of this income. Insomuch as the partnership reports a substantial amount, the correctness of which is impossible to check, it is opined that further investigation is impracticable.—(Signed) Ned Klein, revenue agent."

This was about the best Agent Klein could do under the circumstances. However, if Secretary of the Treasury Snyder wanted to set up a special tax squad to watch the big racketeers, and if Congress wanted to give him the money for this, the effect would be:

1. To bring considerably more revenue into the treasury.

2. To hamper if not drive the hoodlums out of business.

For no hoodlum can operate when he knows that internal revenue men are breathing down his neck every minute, not only watching his operations but checking on his so-called business deductions.

Protection Payoffs

The latter is the Achilles' Heel of the underworld. For the chief business deductions of the hoodlums are protection money paid to police and local politicians. This is not a legal business deduction under the tax laws, and by watching this, revenue agents not only can help clean up city politics but help drive the hoodlums out of business.

To illustrate, let's take a closer look at the profits of Jack Guzik, No. 2 inheritor of the old Al Capone rackets. Last year Guzik and Accardo reported an income of $278,667.89 from the Erie and Buffalo Co., which happens to be a policy wheel. This was operated by Caesar and Leo Venvenuit up until 1947, when their home was bombed.

The reason their home was bombed was fairly obvious. They were making too much money. So the Guzik-Accardo crowd decided profits should be shared. They muscled in.

Income-tax returns at this point make it fairly clear as to what happened. After the 1947 bombing, Sam Pardy and Tom Manno took over the policy wheel, leaving only small commissions for the two Benvenuti brothers. The real money went to the two men who muscled in, and the Erie and Buffalo's Company's tax return under Pardy and Manno shows $278,667.89 paid as "salaries, fees and commissions for A. J. Accardo."

Profitable Partnership

Accardo then split this with Guzik, giving the later $134,207.54. Along with this revenue, Guzik listed in his 1949 tax return an additional $25,500 which he attributed simply to "miscellaneous various sources." He also deducted $6,803.32 for contributions though he didn't list them by name, which is against regulations.

In 1948 Guzik simply reported a nice, round income of $100,000 which he attributed to "various sources." This left Internal Revenue agents with the problem of making a long, exhaustive investigation; and, lacking both the time and personnel, nothing further was done.

In 1947, things weren't quite so lush for the Chicago lord of the underworld. He listed a profit of only $51,000, though in 1946 he made $65,000 from his partnership with Accardo plus another $7,500 of "various income."

Guzik's income was somewhat similar in the war years. In 1944, for instance, he claimed a total income of only $16,000, while in 1943 he listed $8,080 from "wagering," $2,500 from "football," $6,000 from "miscellaneous sources," and $4,000 from "Dome." This is the name of a night club licensed in the name of Guzik's brother-in-law. There was no explanation as to how Guzik made his money from "football."

Presumably Guzik ought to be careful about his income tax now, for he was sentenced to five years for tax evasion in 1930. This was in the Hoover administration, when the Treasury was a lot tougher on gangsters than they are today. The Treasury at that time claimed that Guzik, then business manager for the Capone syndicate, netted $1,000,000 during the years 1927-28-29, and owed the government $250,000. He got five years in Leavenworth, plus a fine of $17,500.

Rearming the South

The south is getting so many defense projects that northern congressman have been kidding their colleagues about the danger of a new Civil War.

It happened when chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia was delivering a closed-door report on proposed air force projects—practically every one of them below the Mason-Dixon Line. Finally, Congressman Gary Clemente of New York interrupted.

"Mr. chairman," he said, "the list your are reading gives me pause. There is this for Tennessee, that for Alabama, and, of course, Texas is never forgotten.

"In addition, I see by the newspapers that the new H-bomb project is slated for South Carolina, while the atom-bomb plant is located in North Carolina. Am I to be led to believe that the south is rearming?"

Chairman Vinson of Georgia informed the New Yorker that another Civil War was not in the offing.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 2—The American people have been asked for several days to believe that the switchmen's union is no longer a responsible body, that its officers have lost control of its members, and that when the switchmen report "sick" at 43 railroad terminals in 32 cities, this is a spontaneous act of individuals and not a concerted action.

Such a travesty and obvious piece of trickery is resorted to on the assumption that the public will believe there is no strike going on and that it is a so-called "wildcat" affair.

Yet millions of dollars of damage are being done to innocent bystanders, and there is apparently no means of redress to injured citizens.

Whatever machinery of mediation or negotiation has been available has been used. Technically, all the railroads of the country are in the hands of the army. The national administration has known of this situation for many weeks and still it has not faced up to the dangers of letting it drift without positive action.

The administration did intervene to try to work out a settlement, and an agreement was reached between top representatives of the railroads and of the unions involved. But when the agreement was submitted to the members, there was a refusal to ratify. Then the members took matters into their own hands and began a series of sporadic walkouts which the union officers clamed were not authorized.

Action by the Department of Justice to invoke injunction proceedings was taken on December 14, but there has now been a defiance of court orders.

What appears amazing is that a labor union can flout a court order and bring on a paralysis of transportation and yet escape penalty. Nobody could interfere with recruiting of troops or with distribution of army supplies and escape prosecution but a labor union, as John L. Lewis demonstrated, can get away with a so-called "spontaneous" strike that shuts down military production.

Plainly there is an absence of firmness somewhere. The present administration has been trifling with this issue of "wildcat" strikes for some time. It never prosecuted with sufficient vigor the same question when it arose in the coal industry and it failed until this week to follow up intensively the court proceedings instituted several weeks ago. It never did pursue vigorously enough the case of the rebellious miners who defied a court order.

The real difficulty is that the labor unions know the Truman administration is owned body and soul by the labor vote and hesitates to take drastic action against labor unions when they do become irresponsible.

There is no law which can compel members of labor unions to accept agreements made by their negotiators but, on the other hand, the rights of labor unions to carry on their concerted activities are predicated on the assumption that the officers are responsible for the acts of their members.

The Taft-Hartley Law makes this principle clear, but the rail unions have been exempted by Congress from both the Wagner Act and the Taft-Hartley Act. It may be that the need now is for a blanket coverage of all labor unions in a single law and the passage by Congress of an amendment to existing statutes stipulating ways and means of settling strikes that vitally affect the national interest.

What would be helpful in the present emergency is a declaration by the President of the issues involved so that the people could be informed and so that Congress might be persuaded by public opinion to take legislative action.

It seems strange that a government which has the power to draft young men into military service, to fix price and to freeze wages, to allocate materials and otherwise to restrict freedom of individual action in the economic life of the country should appear so helpless to prevent "wildcat" strikes or to punish those responsible for such actions.

Shipment of some of the food and supplies for our fighting forces overseas has been interfered with and industrial production for military purposes has been impaired—yet the Truman administration has waited for the paralysis to mount before resorting to further court proceedings. Meanwhile, Congress looks on with no sign of interest from the legislative viewpoint.

One wonders what damage any rebellious group would be able to do in America before the national government awakened to its responsibility. The railroad controversy is no sudden affair. The merits of the dispute have long been under discussion, but the national administration has not called a spade a spade nor directed public attention to the agreement actually made at the White House which has been flouted this week by rank-and-file behavior camouflaged as "sickness."

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, Feb. 1—In his office in the new House office building Congressman Frank Buchanan, Democrat, of McKeesport, Pa., chairman of the committee on lobbying, admitted that he had been indicted twice on charges of fraud but insisted that he had been "cleared" without trial in either case. I have evidence that Buchanan was indicted three times and that in each case the indictment was dismissed with the proviso, however, that the defendant Buchanan must pay the costs of prosecution.

This disposition does not signify that he was "cleared." I invited Mr. Buchanan to examine photographs of the three indictments. He declined. His committee, now defunct, harassed societies which uphold the constitution and oppose communism. The committee doggedly refrained from making a similar investigation of the affairs of the non-sectarian anti-Nazi League and the Society for the Prevention of World War 3, which for years has been whooping up, with variations, the Morgenthau plan to abandon a prostrate, helpless Germany exposed to seizure by Soviet Russia. Both of these organizations are letterhead private enterprises of Isidore Lipschutz, the Belgian emigre diamond dealer. The sources and scope of his income are not necessarily explained by the mere statement that he deals in diamonds.

With no insinuation intended but as a general observation, a distinguished American diplomat who served as minister to Belgium has expressed an opinion of the diamond traders of Brussels which is not complimentary to them as a group. He said that at one gala dinner at which it was necessary for delicate reasons to entertain the diamond dealers they segregated themselves and were markedly let alone. He said they were not an attractive company. On the other hand, American dealers in precious stones are conspicuous neither for lack of grace, aloofness nor mysterious political activities.

The anti-Nazi League is notorious. It has been repudiated by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. An officer on the staff of General Lucius Clay, in Berlin, during the prolonged blockade by the Soviet army and the American air-lift, reports that, notwithstanding the need for every inch of space for food, coal and other vital necessities, packages of Lipschutz's propaganda weighing hundreds of pounds were flown into Berlin. He thought this propaganda was favorable to the Russian political position.

Quentin Reynolds, who wrote very cordially concerning phases of Russia under Stalin and put himself in sharp disagreement with Father Leopold Braun, the resident Catholic chaplain of Moscow, regarding religious freedom there, is named on the masthead of the society's publication as a member of the "Advisory Council." Louis M. Nizer, his attorney, also is named as a member of this "Council." Among the others listed there are Jo Davidson, the sculptor who is cited many times in the records of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, and Bartley Crum, an extreme New Deal attorney who held forth briefly as publisher of the violent but ill-starred New York Star, which was facetiously called "The Red Star." Crum currently is attorney for Drew Pearson, who

There has not been a notable degree of long-term planning in the handling of war and defense problems since the Korea affair began. There is a general impression that the move into Korea in the first place was made on the basis of a hasty and inadequate estimate of the situation, and that since then some over decisions have been made, in and out of Korea, on the basis of inadequate information or inadequate study of the information at hand.

The appointment of a special commission to study the nation's supply problems in the years ahead appears to be a better step toward better advance preparation for important decisions. The commission is to study long-range requirements for various materials, the long-range supply situation, and the appropriateness of plans by government and private industry to meet supply problems. Presumably its report is to be the basis of recommendations for future government and private planning.

Most Americans want as little as possible of government planning and controls in the operation of the industrial machine which supplies our wants. But during the period of defense emergency some controls over such things as basic materials are unavoidable. It looks as if the period of emergency, or at least of abnormal defense burden, will be a long one. Hence the long-range supply situation should be known, and should be given appropriate weight in deciding what to do about the immediate situation. This may make immediate problems harder, but will help to prevent future ones from taking us by surprise.

HEALTH EDUCATION

Health education in the public schools has been the subject of a great deal of discussion in the past decade. Selective Service experience in the Second World War disclosed that the young men of America are not, on the average, as physically fit as had been supposed. Draft experience in the last few months has shown no change in the situation.

The National Conference for Health Education has recently repeated its view that the most immediate need in the field is for more and better-trained teachers for health classes, and that this in turn indicates a need for improved teacher education in the field. This idea was first voiced by the conference in 1945 after a survey of school needs.

It would be an oversimplification to say that the disappointing state of physical fitness among young people should be laid to a shortage of expert health teachers. Besides, it would probably be more accurate to say that there is a shortage of trained health teachers because of the paucity of health programs in the schools. Students training for teaching jobs naturally tend to specialize in fields which seem to offer the greatest opportunities. The opportunities in health teaching have not been such as to attract great numbers of embryo teachers.

The immediate development of greatly expanded school health programs would be hampered by the lack of trained teachers. But until greater interest in health education is shown by school administrators and the public it can hardly be expected that the teachers will become available.

FOOTBALL FANS

Some people, especially those who do not play, take their athletic sports very seriously. Gordon Persons had been governor of Alabama just two days before coming out with a demand that the Alabama Polytechnic Institute of Auburn dismiss its football coach. It is not certain whether he speaks as an Auburn alumnus, who might be expected to be interested in the team's lack of success, or as the governor, possessing the power to remove Auburn's president if he does not conform to the governor's wishes. In either case a new governor might be expected to find on his desk matters needing earlier attention.

An even stronger feeling of the supreme importance of the game is shown in the will of the late Thomas Barr Jr., of Newark, New Jersey. He left Rutgers University his estate of more than $1,000,000, contingent upon the death of his wife, to be used for scholarships for football players. Rutgers is going to hold up its head in its long football rivalry with Princeton if Barr has his way.

Sport used to be defined in the dictionary as "recreation or amusement." Apparently the definition should now read, "the important business of educational institutions." But what happens to education under these circumstances?

That nursing homes are of great help to the chronically ill, those that are never well yet have none of the specific diseases that require skilled and constant attention, is now admitted and home care under the supervision of a nearby hospital physician gives a service that is equal or nearly equal to actual care in hospital.

What is chronic illness?

An editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association defines it as any deviation or departure from health that affects a person's total life pattern in a significant way, because of the length of the illness and its effects, which may last for a long time after the illness proper has passed.

We can readily see that prolonged illness not only requires the medical knowledge and skill of the practicing physician but also his help in the patient's reestablishment of himself in everyday life.

For a long time practitioners have met difficulties in finding proper hospital facilities for their chronically ill patients and have observed the lack of adequate visiting nurse, housekeeping and other services by which patients might be cared for, and the inadequacy of many nursing homes. This need is being met to some extent by the Commission of Chronic Illness, founded in 1949 by the American Medical Association, American Hospital Association, American Public Health Association, and the American Public Welfare Association.

Ain't Human Nature Wonderful?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The two men who rule the Chicago underworld today are Tony Accardo and Jack Guzik. Not only have they taken over the vast and profitable domain of Al Capone along the shores of Lake Michigan, but they have spread out into the lush crime fields of Florida and California.

Four years ago Accardo and Guzik, long operating informally as a team, legalized their partnership and notified the government that for the year 1946 they had earned a total of $130,000.

The source of this profit they listed merely as "other income," which poses an obvious problem for Uncle Sam's tax collectors. Internal revenue solved it that year by writing the following notation at the bottom of Guzik's and Accardo's tax return:

"The partners refused to divulge the source of this income. Insomuch as the partnership reports a substantial amount, the correctness of which is impossible to check, it is opined that further investigation is impracticable.—(Signed) Ned Klein, revenue agent."

This was about the best Agent Klein could do under the circumstances. However, if Secretary of the Treasury Snyder wanted to set up a special tax squad to watch the big racketeers, and if Congress wanted to give him the money for this, the effect would be:

1. To bring considerably more revenue into the treasury.

2. To hamper if not drive the hoodlums out of business.

For no hoodlum can operate when he knows that internal revenue men are breathing down his neck every minute, not only watching his operations but checking on his so-called business deductions.

Protection Payoffs

The latter is the Achilles' Heel of the underworld. For the chief business deductions of the hoodlums are protection money paid to police and local politicians. This is not a legal business deduction under the tax laws, and by watching this, revenue agents not only can help clean up city politics but help drive the hoodlums out of busness.

To illustrate, let's take a closer look at the profits of Jack Guzik, No. 2 inheritor of the old Al Capone rackets. Last year Guzik and Accardo reported an income of $278,667.89 from the Erie and Buffalo Co., which happens to be a policy wheel. This was operated by Caesar and Leo Venvenuit up until 1947, when their home was bombed.

The reason their home was bombed was fairly obvious. They were making too much money. So the Guzik-Accardo crowd decided profits should be shared. They muscled in.

Income-tax returns at this point make it fairly clear as to what happened. After the 1947 bombing, Sam Pardy and Tom Manno took over the policy wheel, leaving only small commissions for the two Benvenuti brothers. The real money went to the two men who muscled in, and the Erie and Buffalo's Company's tax return under Pardy and Manno shows $278,667.89 paid as "salaries, fees and commissions for A. J. Accardo."

Profitable Partnership

Accardo then split this with Guzik, giving the later $134,207.54. Along with this revenue, Guzik listed in his 1949 tax return an additional $25,500 which he attributed simply to "miscellaneous various sources." He also deducted $6,803.32 for contributions though he didn't list them by name, which is against regulations.

In 1948 Guzik simply reported a nice, round income of $100,000 which he attributed to "various sources." This left Internal Revenue agents with the problem of making a long, exhaustive investigation; and, lacking both the time and personnel, nothing further was done.

In 1947, things weren't quite so lush for the Chicago lord of the underworld. He listed a profit of only $51,000, though in 1946 he made $65,000 from his partnership with Accardo plus another $7,500 of "various income."

Guzik's income was somewhat similar in the war years. In 1944, for instance, he claimed a total income of only $16,000, while in 1943 he listed $8,080 from "wagering," $2,500 from "football," $6,000 from "miscellaneous sources," and $4,000 from "Dome." This is the name of a night club licensed in the name of Guzik's brother-in-law. There was no explanation as to how Guzik made his money from "football."

Presumably Guzik ought to be careful about his income tax now, for he was sentenced to five years for tax evasion in 1930. This was in the Hoover administration, when the Treasury was a lot tougher on gangsters than they are today. The Treasury at that time claimed that Guzik, then business manager for the Capone syndicate, netted $1,000,000 during the years 1927-28-29, and owed the government $250,000. He got five years in Leavenworth, plus a fine of $17,500.

Rearming the South

The south is getting so many defense projects that northern congressman have been kidding their colleagues about the danger of a new Civil War.

It happened when chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia was delivering a closed-door report on proposed air force projects—practically every one of them below the Mason-Dixon Line. Finally, Congressman Gary Clemente of New York interrupted.

"Mr. chairman," he said, "the list your are reading gives me pause. There is this for Tennessee, that for Alabama, and, of course, Texas is never forgotten.

"In addition, I see by the newspapers that the new H-bomb project is slated for South Carolina, while the atom-bomb plant is located in North Carolina. Am I to be led to believe that the south is rearming?"

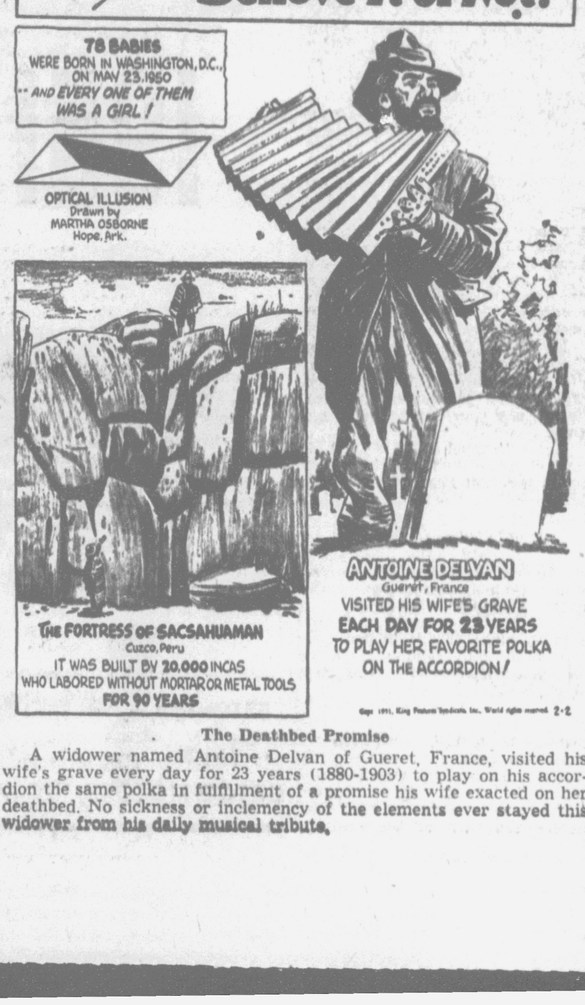

Chairman Vinson of Georgia informed the New Yorker that another Civil War was not in the offing.

The Deathbed Promise

A widower named Antoine Delvan of Gueret, France, visited his wife's grave every day for 23 years (1880-1903) to play on his accordion the same polka in fulfillment of a promise his wife exacted on her deathbed. No sickness or inclemency of the elements ever stayed this widower from his daily musical tribute.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 2—The American people have been asked for several days to believe that the switchmen's union is no longer a responsible body, that its officers have lost control of its members, and that when the switchmen report "sick" at 43 railroad terminals in 32 cities, this is a spontaneous act of individuals and not a concerted action.

Such a travesty and obvious piece of trickery is resorted to on the assumption that the public will believe there is no strike going on and that it is a so-called "wildcat" affair.

Yet millions of dollars of damage are being done to innocent bystanders, and there is apparently no means of redress to injured citizens.

Whatever machinery of mediation or negotiation has been available has been used. Technically, all the railroads of the country are in the hands of the army. The national administration has known of this situation for many weeks and still it has not faced up to the dangers of letting it drift without positive action.

The administration did intervene to try to work out a settlement, and an agreement was reached between top representatives of the railroads and of the unions involved. But when the agreement was submitted to the members, there was a refusal to ratify. Then the members took matters into their own hands and began a series of sporadic walkouts which the union officers clamed were not authorized.

Action by the Department of Justice to invoke injunction proceedings was taken on December 14, but there has now been a defiance of court orders.

What appears amazing is that a labor union can flout a court order and bring on a paralysis of transportation and yet escape penalty. Nobody could interfere with recruiting of troops or with distribution of army supplies and escape prosecution but a labor union, as John L. Lewis demonstrated, can get away with a so-called "spontaneous" strike that shuts down military production.

Plainly there is an absence of firmness somewhere. The present administration has been trifling with this issue of "wildcat" strikes for some time. It never prosecuted with sufficient vigor the same question when it arose in the coal industry and it failed until this week to follow up intensively the court proceedings instituted several weeks ago. It never did pursue vigorously enough the case of the rebellious miners who defied a court order.

The real difficulty is that the labor unions know the Truman administration is owned body and soul by the labor vote and hesitates to take drastic action against labor unions when they do become irresponsible.

There is no law which can compel members of labor unions to accept agreements made by their negotiators but, on the other hand, the rights of labor unions to carry on their concerted activities are predicated on the assumption that the officers are responsible for the acts of their members.

The Taft-Hartley Law makes this principle clear, but the rail unions have been exempted by Congress from both the Wagner Act and the Taft-Hartley Act. It may be that the need now is for a blanket coverage of all labor unions in a single law and the passage by Congress of an amendment to existing statutes stipulating ways and means of settling strikes that vitally affect the national interest.

What would be helpful in the present emergency is a declaration by the President of the issues involved so that the people could be informed and so that Congress might be persuaded by public opinion to take legislative action.

It seems strange that a government which has the power to draft young men into military service, to fix price and to freeze wages, to allocate materials and otherwise to restrict freedom of individual action in the economic life of the country should appear so helpless to prevent "wildcat" strikes or to punish those responsible for such actions.

Shipment of some of the food and supplies for our fighting forces overseas has been interfered with and industrial production for military purposes has been impaired—yet the Truman administration has waited for the paralysis to mount before resorting to further court proceedings. Meanwhile, Congress looks on with no sign of interest from the legislative viewpoint.

One wonders what damage any rebellious group would be able to do in America before the national government awakened to its responsibility. The railroad controversy is no sudden affair. The merits of the dispute have long been under discussion, but the national administration has not called a spade a spade nor directed public attention to the agreement actually made at the White House which has been flouted this week by rank-and-file behavior camouflaged as "sickness."

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, Feb. 1—In his office in the new House office building Congressman Frank Buchanan, Democrat, of McKeesport, Pa., chairman of the committee on lobbying, admitted that he had been indicted twice on charges of fraud but insisted that he had been "cleared" without trial in either case. I have evidence that Buchanan was indicted three times and that in each case the indictment was dismissed with the proviso, however, that the defendant Buchanan must pay the costs of prosecution.

This disposition does not signify that he was "cleared." I invited Mr. Buchanan to examine photographs of the three indictments. He declined. His committee, now defunct, harassed societies which uphold the constitution and oppose communism. The committee doggedly refrained from making a similar investigation of the affairs of the non-sectarian anti-Nazi League and the Society for the Prevention of World War 3, which for years has been whooping up, with variations, the Morgenthau plan to abandon a prostrate, helpless Germany exposed to seizure by Soviet Russia. Both of these organizations are letterhead private enterprises of Isidore Lipschutz, the Belgian emigre diamond dealer. The sources and scope of his income are not necessarily explained by the mere statement that he deals in diamonds.

With no insinuation intended but as a general observation, a distinguished American diplomat who served as minister to Belgium has expressed an opinion of the diamond traders of Brussels which is not complimentary to them as a group. He said that at one gala dinner at which it was necessary for delicate reasons to entertain the diamond dealers they segregated themselves and were markedly let alone. He said they were not an attractive company. On the other hand, American dealers in precious stones are conspicuous neither for lack of grace, aloofness nor mysterious political activities.

The anti-Nazi League is notorious. It has been repudiated by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. An officer on the staff of General Lucius Clay, in Berlin, during the prolonged blockade by the Soviet army and the American air-lift, reports that, notwithstanding the need for every inch of space for food, coal and other vital necessities, packages of Lipschutz's propaganda weighing hundreds of pounds were flown into Berlin. He thought this propaganda was favorable to the Russian political position.

Quentin Reynolds, who wrote very cordially concerning phases of Russia under Stalin and put himself in sharp disagreement with Father Leopold Braun, the resident Catholic chaplain of Moscow, regarding religious freedom there, is named on the masthead of the society's publication as a member of the "Advisory Council." Louis M. Nizer, his attorney, also is named as a member of this "Council." Among the others listed there are Jo Davidson, the sculptor who is cited many times in the records of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, and Bartley Crum, an extreme New Deal attorney who held forth briefly as publisher of the violent but ill-starred New York Star, which was facetiously called "The Red Star." Crum currently is attorney for Drew Pearson, who

Superintendent's Report for Children's Home Is Given at Annual Meeting Monday

The annual report of Superintendent Mrs. Margaret White, was released for publication today by Mrs. Frederic W. Holcomb, president of the Children's Home of Kingston. The report was given at the annual meeting held Monday, Jan. 29, at the home, 77 East Chester street.

Mrs. Holcomb also expressed her appreciation to The Kingston Daily Freeman for their cooperation, and for the many photographs taken of the children during the year.

"The superintendent and staff of the home deserve much praise and thanks for the health, happiness, and good behavior of the young people," Mrs. Holcomb said.

Mrs. Holcomb in hebalf of the home's board of managers also expressed appreciation to WKNY for their "time," and to the dentists who have done "an outstanding piece of work without remuneration," as well as to the home's "innumerable kind friends and benefactors."

The following officers for 1951 also were announced: Mrs. Frederic Holcomb, president; Mrs. Lloyd LeFever, first vice president; Mrs. Herbert C. Fister, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Arnold, secretary; Mrs. Joseph H. Craig, treasurer; Mrs. John Garon, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Richard Shults, assistant treasurer.

Superintendent's Report

Following is the superintendent's annual report.

"The years pass quickly, and with the years, ideas of social service and welfare advance at an equally quick pace. During the past year, to keep pace, and go along with the newer trends of thinking, we have given closer scrutiny to the educational and social content of our program.

"This, with the thought of developing more assistance for our children in areas where supportive help was needed. With 11 children in junior high school the need for a more comprehensive program in accordance with their age has been presented with the purpose of better equipping them to meet their more mature needs.

School Visitation

"Mrs. Herbert Fister, one of the board members, and a teacher, visited the schools this past fall. These visits were made for the purpose of finding out how the home and board of managers could better cooperate with the schools for the benefit of the child. The visits really reached the significance of a survey, and had two beneficial results.

"First, it established a parent-school relationship, and was successful enough so that we feel that the visits should be continued periodically.

"Second, as a result of these conferences held with the teachers, principals and guidance committees, specific recommendations were made regarding the emotional and educational needs of the children. We have made some supplementary plans to follow up these recommendations.

"While the reports of the children on the whole were very good, there is still some need for us to meet the challenge that they present to us with more remedial study and individual guidance of the child.

Reports Good Health

"During the past year the health of the children was excellent. There was no serious illness, and they showed a normal and steady gain in weight. Again we attribute this to dietary care, close observation of the home nurse, and the regular physical check-ups of the home doctor. Also the constant dental care given to the children by so many loyal and willing dentists certainly helped to keep the children physically fit.

"Christmas is always a happy time in the home. The trimming of the tree, making favors and special decorations for the dining room, and all departments, become a demonstration of a partnership in which all may have a part and make a contribution. This gives a very close and intimate family feeling. The spirit of giving and making others happy seemed more pronounced among the children this past Christmas than ever before.

"This spirit of giving was climaxed Christmas morning when the children opened their presents. All received lovely gifts from old friends and additional ones from new friends. Also, before and after Christmas, and during the New Year, the children were entertained at many enjoyable parties.

Summer Outings

"The kindness of our friends was not confined to the Christmas holidays. During the past summer there were many enjoyable outings given to the children, and they helped toward giving the children two weeks in camp during the month of August.

"During 1950 the home cared for 40 children. There were eight admittances and nine discharges. We now have 31 children in the home.

"We are grateful to our friends who have helped to give comfort and happiness to the children, and to the board of managers who are constantly working toward the progress and improvement of the home."

Respectfully submitted,
MARGARET WHITE
Superintendent

Superintendent's Report for Children's Home Is Given at Annual Meeting Monday

The annual report of Superintendent Mrs. Margaret White, was released for publication today by Mrs. Frederic W. Holcomb, president of the Children's Home of Kingston. The report was given at the annual meeting held Monday, Jan. 29, at the home, 77 East Chester street.

Mrs. Holcomb also expressed her appreciation to The Kingston Daily Freeman for their cooperation, and for the many photographs taken of the children during the year.

"The superintendent and staff of the home deserve much praise and thanks for the health, happiness, and good behavior of the young people," Mrs. Holcomb said.

Mrs. Holcomb in behalf of the home's board of managers also expressed appreciation to WKNY for their "time," and to the dentists who have done "an outstanding piece of work without remuneration," as well as to the home's "innumerable kind friends and benefactors."

The following officers for 1951 also were announced: Mrs. Frederic Holcomb, president; Mrs. Lloyd LeFever, first vice president; Mrs. Herbert C. Fister, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Arnold, secretary; Mrs. Joseph H. Craig, treasurer; Mrs. John Garon, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Richard Shults, assistant treasurer.

Superintendent's Report

Following is the superintendent's annual report.

"The years pass quickly, and with the years, ideas of social service and welfare advance at an equally quick pace. During the past year, to keep pace, and go along with the newer trends of thinking, we have given closer scrutiny to the educational and social content of our program.

"This, with the thought of developing more assistance for our children in areas where supportive help was needed. With 11 children in junior high school the need for a more comprehensive program in accordance with their age has been presented with the purpose of better equipping them to meet their more mature needs.

School Visitation

"Mrs. Herbert Fister, one of the board members, and a teacher, visited the schools this past fall. These visits were made for the purpose of finding out how the home and board of managers could better cooperate with the schools for the benefit of the child. The visits really reached the significance of a survey, and had two beneficial results.

"First, it established a parent-school relationship, and was successful enough so that we feel that the visits should be continued periodically.

"Second, as a result of these conferences held with the teachers, principals and guidance committees, specific recommendations were made regarding the emotional and educational needs of the children. We have made some supplementary plans to follow up these recommendations.

"While the reports of the children on the whole were very good, there is still some need for us to meet the challenge that they present to us with more remedial study and individual guidance of the child.

Reports Good Health

"During the past year the health of the children was excellent. There was no serious illness, and they showed a normal and steady gain in weight. Again we attribute this to dietary care, close observation of the home nurse, and the regular physical check-ups of the home doctor. Also the constant dental care given to the children by so many loyal and willing dentists certainly helped to keep the children physically fit.

"Christmas is always a happy time in the home. The trimming of the tree, making favors and special decorations for the dining room, and all departments, become a demonstration of a partnership in which all may have a part and make a contribution. This gives a very close and intimate family feeling. The spirit of giving and making others happy seemed more pronounced among the children this past Christmas than ever before.

"This spirit of giving was climaxed Christmas morning when the children opened their presents. All received lovely gifts from old friends and additional ones from new friends. Also, before and after Christmas, and during the New Year, the children were entertained at many enjoyable parties.

Summer Outings

"The kindness of our friends was not confined to the Christmas holidays. During the past summer there were many enjoyable outings given to the children, and they helped toward giving the children two weeks in camp during the month of August.

"During 1950 the home cared for 40 children. There were eight admittances and nine discharges. We now have 31 children in the home.

"We are grateful to our friends who have helped to give comfort and happiness to the children, and to the board of managers who are constantly working toward the progress and improvement of the home."

Respectfully submitted,
MARGARET WHITE
Superintendent

John Depkiewicz, visiting pastor at that parish.

Miss Theresa Gehringer served as organist, and soloist Valentine Skop, cousin of the groom, sang "Ave Maria."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white slipper satin gown, en train, with a Chantilly lace yoke edged with a tiny ruffle, and an inset lace over satin panel in the front, which stretched from the gown's waistline to hem. Her fingertip veil trimmed with Chantilly lace, was secured by a satin, heart shaped bonnet, fastened under the chin. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and sweet peas, tied with a satin ribbon.

Miss Elaine McElrath, niece of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss McElrath was dressed in a shell pink slipper satin gown, fashioned with a sheer marquisette yoke, a fitted bodice, and a full skirt. She wore a heart shaped bonnet with matching mitts, and carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses and blue iris, tied with a yellow satin ribbon.

Miss Berenice McElrath, sister of the bride, and Miss Rose Lukaszewski, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. Their gowns were of ice blue slipper satin with mandarin necklines, and fitted bodices. The gowns' skirts were cut with gathered hip detail, and bustle backs. Both wore heart shaped bonnets and matching mitts. They carried cascade bouquets of pink roses, and blue iris, tied with pink satin ribbons.

Edward Lukaszewski was best man for his brother. Ushers were Gerald Smith and Dan Raichle of this city.

A reception for approximately 125 guests was held at White Eagle Hall, this city, following the ceremony. The couple then left for a short wedding trip to New York. They will make their home here at 12 Brown avenue.

The bride attended Kingston High School, and is now employed at the Manhattan Shirt Co.

The groom also attended Kingston High School and is employed by F. Jacobson and Sons.

Superintendent's Report for Children's Home Is Given at Annual Meeting Monday

The annual report of Superintendent Mrs. Margaret White, was released for publication today by Mrs. Frederic W. Holcomb, president of the Children's Home of Kingston. The report was given at the annual meeting held Monday, Jan. 29, at the home, 77 East Chester street.

Mrs. Holcomb also expressed her appreciation to The Kingston Daily Freeman for their cooperation, and for the many photographs taken of the children during the year.

"The superintendent and staff of the home deserve much praise and thanks for the health, happiness, and good behavior of the young people," Mrs. Holcomb said.

Mrs. Holcomb in hebalf of the home's board of managers also expressed appreciation to WKNY for their "time," and to the dentists who have done "an outstanding piece of work without remuneration," as well as to the home's "innumerable kind friends and benefactors."

The following officers for 1951 also were announced: Mrs. Frederic Holcomb, president; Mrs. Lloyd LeFever, first vice president; Mrs. Herbert C. Fister, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Arnold, secretary; Mrs. Joseph H. Craig, treasurer; Mrs. John Garon, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Richard Shults, assistant treasurer.

Superintendent's Report

Following is the superintendent's annual report.

"The years pass quickly, and with the years, ideas of social service and welfare advance at an equally quick pace. During the past year, to keep pace, and go along with the newer trends of thinking, we have given closer scrutiny to the educational and social content of our program.

"This, with the thought of developing more assistance for our children in areas where supportive help was needed. With 11 children in junior high school the need for a more comprehensive program in accordance with their age has been presented with the purpose of better equipping them to meet their more mature needs.

School Visitation

"Mrs. Herbert Fister, one of the board members, and a teacher, visited the schools this past fall. These visits were made for the purpose of finding out how the home and board of managers could better cooperate with the schools for the benefit of the child. The visits really reached the significance of a survey, and had two beneficial results.

"First, it established a parent-school relationship, and was successful enough so that we feel that the visits should be continued periodically.

"Second, as a result of these conferences held with the teachers, principals and guidance committees, specific recommendations were made regarding the emotional and educational needs of the children. We have made some supplementary plans to follow up these recommendations.

"While the reports of the children on the whole were very good, there is still some need for us to meet the challenge that they present to us with more remedial study and individual guidance of the child.

Reports Good Health

"During the past year the health of the children was excellent. There was no serious illness, and they showed a normal and steady gain in weight. Again we attribute this to dietary care, close observation of the home nurse, and the regular physical check-ups of the home doctor. Also the constant dental care given to the children by so many loyal and willing dentists certainly helped to keep the children physically fit.

"Christmas is always a happy time in the home. The trimming of the tree, making favors and special decorations for the dining room, and all departments, become a demonstration of a partnership in which all may have a part and make a contribution. This gives a very close and intimate family feeling. The spirit of giving and making others happy seemed more pronounced among the children this past Christmas than ever before.

"This spirit of giving was climaxed Christmas morning when the children opened their presents. All received lovely gifts from old friends and additional ones from new friends. Also, before and after Christmas, and during the New Year, the children were entertained at many enjoyable parties.

Summer Outings

"The kindness of our friends was not confined to the Christmas holidays. During the past summer there were many enjoyable outings given to the children, and they helped toward giving the children two weeks in camp during the month of August.

"During 1950 the home cared for 40 children. There were eight admittances and nine discharges. We now have 31 children in the home.

"We are grateful to our friends who have helped to give comfort and happiness to the children, and to the board of managers who are constantly working toward the progress and improvement of the home."

Respectfully submitted,
MARGARET WHITE
Superintendent

Studd Will Give Dinner Address

Howard R. Studd, executive director of the Albany Council of Community Services, will be the guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Ulster County Council of Social Agencies, scheduled to be held at 6 p. m. Monday, February 5, at the Y.W.C.A. building on Clinton avenue.

Studd, a graduate of the University of Buffalo School of Social Work, was for five years a case worker with the Children's Aid Society of Erie county, worked with the Social Planning Council of Atlanta, Ga., and the Council of Social Agencies of Metropolitan Detroit. After serving as a psychiatric case worker in the Army during World War 2, he went overseas with the Displaced Persons Program of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in Germany, where he served as deputy director of the Department of Welfare Services and as a field inspector for Central Headquarters of UNRRA.

Works Two Years

He transferred to Military Government and worked there for another two years as deputy director of the Public Welfare Branch, Berlin sector, and as chief of Public Assistance Section of that division.

In September, 1949, he came to Albany as executive director of the Council of Social Agencies, which in December of 1950 became the Council of Community Services.

The meeting Monday night will be the first dinner meeting scheduled by the Ulster Council of Social Agencies, which was organized a little over a year ago. About 50 members of the council and invited guests are expected to attend. Henry J. Fisher, president, will preside.

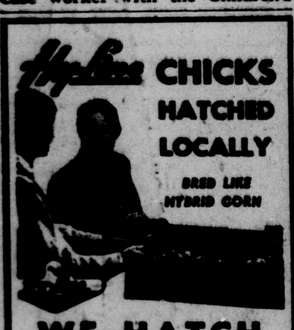

Howard Shurter, director of Ulster County Civil Defense, will give a short address on the place of social agencies in the civil defense program.

Ice Isn't Profitable

Malone, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—Ice isn't profitable any more in this icy area. The House Ice Company, only commercial ice firm for miles around, announced yesterday it would close Feb. 15 because of the price freeze and rising labor and transportation costs. The company has sold about 4,500 tons a season. Malone is 15 miles from Owls Head, traditional "icebox" of the state.

Typhus Hits Enemy

Tokyo, Feb. 2 (AP)—Communist forces in Korea are suffering from typhus, frostbite, trench foot and other diseases, reliable sources said today. No typhus cases were reported among the inoculated United Nations troops. In Washington, army officials said that Russian satellite countries have had trouble preparing an effective vaccine.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2—During the last war many young men gave up their jobs, or closed out their businesses, before it was necessary. I said at the time they were making a big mistake.

Filling stations, for which a good trade had been built up, were sold in the early 1940's for one-half their value or less. In fact, I then often said in this column that "closed filling stations are the best real estate investment which a person could make." Well, the fact is that these gas stations now are selling at three or four times what those panic-stricken G.I. men sold them for 10 years ago. The same applied to other businesses which could well have been carried on by some relative or friend. So don't do something foolish now.

But then there was a real war on; but no World War III exists today. It may be many years before such a war comes; and much could happen in the meantime. Congress has not even passed the Compulsory Military Training Bill. Because President Conant of Harvard has written a scary article on Military Training for ALL 18-20 years old in a national magazine is no reason why a young man should suddenly change his life plans by giving up college or a good job. Besides, even if he is inducted for two years, these years will go very quickly. If you doubt this, just look back two years.

Business Different Today

Conditions are very different now than in 1940. There are now 10,000,000 more people in the United States. This means not only 10,000,000 potential customers but your chance of being drafted is proportionately less. The national income is now almost double what it was at the beginning of World War II. People now have better health, better education and better wages. Don't look back to what happened before World War II. Forget those days and recognize you are living in an entirely different age.

Although manufacturing is passing into bigger units, this is not true of merchandising and service businesses. There are more successful independent merchants today than ever; while attempts to make chains of dry cleansing, beauty, and specialty shops have failed. Therefore, don't get panicky and sell out your business just because of war threats, labor troubles or competition. Remember that for every one who gets scared and sells out, there is so much more opportunity for those who stick. Only don't borrow money to do so. Keep out of debt.

Final Advice

Whatever you do or don't do, take up some systematic study to enable you to do better work for yourself or your employer. Write tonight to your State University for a list of its Extension Courses. Some of these courses are truly "gold mines". Pick out one or more and "dig in" at once. They will not only help you in forging ahead here at home but will go a long way to prevent you from being used as cannon fodder abroad.

Onteora Board

whether or not the bond issue for the new school should be increased $300,000.

Right to Opinions

We recognize the right of all the people of the district to have different opinions on the question. It is for the people of the district themselves to decide. On the other hand, we feel that an opinion as to whether or not the additional bonds should be issued should be based on facts.

At the outset we wish to point out that we have been elected by the residents of the district and have the responsibility of making decisions. In doing that we try to keep as our guiding objective the best interests of the children and people of our district. We serve without compensation and give countless hours to the problems of the Board. Many of our meetings have lasted through the night to early morning.

Deny False Representation

The accusation is first made that a fraud was perpetrated by representing to the people of Olive that if they joined the school district a new school would cost no more than $1,850,000. The district was formed in May 1948. This was long prior to the time that anyone knew what the cost of a new school would be. No such false representation could have been made for the specific information alleged to have been conveyed did not exist. Studies were published as to the effect of tentative costs but they were tentative only.

The accusation is next made that the board "dilly-dallied from 1948 to 1951 or over three years before seeking bids. As a matter of fact an architect was hired in July 1949. He then undertook the preparation of preliminary plans. They were submitted to the board and approved. It appeared that the cost would be $1,850,000. The nature of the building and the plans were fully explained to the district at various meetings throughout the district. On April 14, 1950 the people of the district approved a bond issue at a public meeting in the amount of $1,850,000. Only after that date could the architect proceed to draw the final plans and specifications. This laborious work takes time.

No Marble Palace

Accusations are further hurled against the board for hiring an architect from Buffalo. Before hiring any architect, the board interviewed several and took the time to inspect various schools built by the different architects. The architect finally selected is of recognized competence, of unassailable integrity and an architect who specializes in school construction. The board was impressed by his outstanding qualifications and the work he had done on other schools. The architect selected agreed to keep a licensed architect right on the job for a period of 18 months. This none of the other architects agreed to do and was one of the principal reasons for the selection of the architect employed. In selecting him the board was actuated by no motive except to secure the person who was in its opinion the best man available.

The accusation that the architect deliberately planned a "marble palace" to increase his fees is vicious, without foundation and unworthy of any supervisor of Ulster county. The fees of architects are generally standardized and any architect would be paid on the same scale.

Same School as Planned

The building that will now cost $300,00 more than expected last April is the same building that was planned then. It was the same building that was fully explained to all the voters prior to April 14, 1950 when the majority approved it. The only reason that it will cost $300,000 more is because of the terrific inflation that has occurred since that time. The building is characterized by simplicity rather than ornateness. Its ultimate cost is mainly dependent upon its size.

We ourselves are taxpayers. We represent taxpayers. It never has been and is not now our determination to inflict an "unbearable" tax burden on the people of our district. It is for the people themselves to decide what taxes they are willing to pay for school bonds. They have already expressed their willingness to pay taxes to pay off school bonds in the amount of $1,850,000. To get exactly the same school planned in April 1950 would now cost $300,000 more.

To pay this $300,000 over a 30-year period increases the tax rate from 90 cents to one dollar and 20 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation in the various towns in the school district. In other words if a person is assessed $1,000 he would pay from 90 cents to one dollar twenty cents more in taxes dependent on the town in the district in which the person lives.

Meetings Scheduled

The board is now working on the problem of building a school within the limits of $1,850,000. To do this will require the elimination of essential items completely unrelated to the fantastic charge that a building is contemplated with marble halls.

The board has set up a schedule of public meetings to go over the request of an increased appropriation. They will take place at Olive Bridge on February 7; Phoenicia on February 8; Shady February 9 and Allaben February 12. We urge the attendance of interested voters since at those times the board will be open for suggestions. It has always been the policy of this board to keep the people of the district informed.

Many Disqualified

A total of 79 persons were disqualified for refusing a suitable job; 253 for failure to report to insurance or placement section as required, and four for loss of employment due to labor dispute.

In releasing information as to disqualifications and penalties, the Division of Unemployment Insurance stated that in more than 12 years of experience most wage earners have learned the unemployment insurance rules and do not claim benefits unless they think they meet the tests.

Complaints from the public that individuals are collecting unemployment insurance improperly are "fairly common," the division stated, and are always investigated. Some of these cases are supported by facts, while others are cases where persons are working but have received overdue checks for previous periods unemployment, or where persons are working two or three days a week but are entitled to unemployment insurance for partial unemployment.

Most Cases Worthy

"This report and the experience of the unemployment insurance office over the years shows conclusively that actual fraud in the unemployment insurance system is negligible," Hart said. "Most of the people who are receiving unemployment insurance are entitled to it, and their primary interest is to get off the insurance rolls as quickly as possible."

Hart commended the claim examiners for their work on cases where claimants were found not to be available for work, or not able to work. "This kind of disqualification usually results from (the examiners') own self-starting activity," he said.

Hitch-Hikes Way To Front to Join Army Against Reds

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Feb. 2 (AP)—A 26-year-old man who said he came all the way from New York to join the army was brought from the battlefront today to take a physical examination.

"That does not mean we will take him in," an officer said. "But it will determine for one thing whether he is physically qualified to become a soldier."

William Jesse Newton, Jr., hitch-hiked to the front yesterday and tried to enlist in the famed U. S. Wolfhound 27th Infantry regiment.

"Fellows with spirit like that don't come very often," commented Col. John (Mike) Michaelis, the regiment's commander.

Newton wore army khaki.

He identified himself thus: a commercial pilot in civilian life; married—his wife and two children living at 2148 Nadine street, Temple City, Calif.; a navy gunner's mate in World War 2 and later a year with the U. S. air force in 1948.

Earlier, Newton showed 27th Infantry regiment officers a paper entitled, "United States government versus William Jess Newton alias Guglielmo San Sebastian."

Asked what that meant, Newton said:

"Aw that's nothing. To fly in Mexico, you must be a Mexican citizen. I had to buy myself a Mexican name."

Called Red Spy

His own account of why he came over:

A plane he had rented at Teterboro, N. J., landed in the sea off New Jersey last year. He was picked up by the Polish ship Batory, aboard which Gerhardt Eisler, Communist leader, escaped to Europe.

"Ever since, everyone still thinks little Willie is a Red spy," Newton elaborated.

"I came out here to shoot the Communists. People back home will think that's a funny way for a Communist to act. They will have to change their opinion of me."

Newton's faith in his ability to get into the army wavered a bit after he was returned from the front and placed in custody of a military police officer, Lt. James Dwyer, Curtis, Mich.

Must Fight Army First

"I suppose they are going to take me to Fort Dix (N.J.)," he said. "I guess you have to fight this army before you can fight Chinese."

But, having worked his way to Korea on $50 "more or less," he was confident he could pass army examinations.

"I've been examined before," he said, "and I find I'm usually a little saner than the psychiatrist who examined me. Don't think the F.B.I. didn't examine me after the Batory thing."

As Pegler Sees It

pleaded for commissions for Communists in the American army during the war without revealing that they were Communists.

Buchanan's first indictment by the "grand inquest" of Allegheny county, Pa., of February, 1930, charged he had "fraudulently" made a written instrument, Grant L. Stoner, of McKeesport, Buchanan's home city, one of the complaining witnesses, was interviewed by Chester Harris, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, who reports that Stoner said the charge rose out of the purchase of an automobile by his son, George Stoner, and that the indictment concerned the question whether one document was substituted for another, altering the terms.

Harris writes that Grant Stoner said he told his story to the grand jury in Pittsburgh and that "just before he (Buchanan) was supposed to go to trial, the case was dropped. He straightened up with my son. And he also paid the costs of the case."

Mr. Buchanan's statement that there were only two cases, not three, may be explained by the fact that true bills Nos. 193 and 194, of March, 1931, arose out of one transaction. He said at first, "as I remember one of those cases, a salesman promised a man $25 on a used car. Instead of suing me, civilly, he sued me criminally. I was never convicted of a crime. An indictment is simply a warrant in Pennsylvania. It's just a warrant."

Questioned further, Mr. Buchanan admitted that a warrant was not an indictment. He agreed that an indictment was in Pennsylvania, as elsewhere, a true bill voted by a grand jury.

There are unexplained facts in the queer conduct of Buchanan's committee. Two anti-Communist propagandists were indicted for contempt of Congress in refusing to expose to persecution by Communist fronts and others the persons who had given their organizations money to oppose communism. Buchanan agreed that the two Lipschutz societies should have been similarly examined. Now it begins to come out that Buchanan himself was cordial to the notorious Electrical Union, which has been thrown out of the C.I.O. as a Communist front, and that two of the committee's executives had spectacular records of association, one Congressional committee never investigates another so it may fall to the grand jury of the District of Columbia to investigate Buchanan's committee. However, the grand jury may be subservient to the Truman Department of Justice, which has been trying to sabotage all exposures of Communist treachery.

Studd Will Give Dinner Address

Howard R. Studd, executive director of the Albany Council of Community Services, will be the guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Ulster County Council of Social Agencies, scheduled to be held at 6 p. m. Monday, February 5, at the Y.W.C.A. building on Clinton avenue.

Studd, a graduate of the University of Buffalo School of Social Work, was for five years a case worker with the Children's Aid Society of Erie county, worked with the Social Planning Council of Atlanta, Ga., and the Council of Social Agencies of Metropolitan Detroit. After serving as a psychiatric case worker in the Army during World War 2, he went overseas with the Displaced Persons Program of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in Germany, where he served as deputy director of the Department of Welfare Services and as a field inspector for Central Headquarters of UNRRA.

Works Two Years

He transferred to Military Government and worked there for another two years as deputy director of the Public Welfare Branch, Berlin sector, and as chief of Public Assistance Section of that division.

In September, 1949, he came to Albany as executive director of the Council of Social Agencies, which in December of 1950 became the Council of Community Services.

The meeting Monday night will be the first dinner meeting scheduled by the Ulster Council of Social Agencies, which was organized a little over a year ago. About 50 members of the council and invited guests are expected to attend. Henry J. Fisher, president, will preside.

Howard Shurter, director of Ulster County Civil Defense, will give a short address on the place of social agencies in the civil defense program.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2—During the last war many young men gave up their jobs, or closed out their businesses, before it was necessary. I said at the time they were making a big mistake.

Filling stations, for which a good trade had been built up, were sold in the early 1940's for one-half their value or less. In fact, I then often said in this column that "closed filling stations are the best real estate investment which a person could make." Well, the fact is that these gas stations now are selling at three or four times what those panic-stricken G.I. men sold them for 10 years ago. The same applied to other businesses which could well have been carried on by some relative or friend. So don't do something foolish now.

But then there was a real war on; but no World War III exists today. It may be many years before such a war comes; and much could happen in the meantime. Congress has not even passed the Compulsory Military Training Bill. Because President Conant of Harvard has written a scary article on Military Training for ALL 18-20 years old in a national magazine is no reason why a young man should suddenly change his life plans by giving up college or a good job. Besides, even if he is inducted for two years, these years will go very quickly. If you doubt this, just look back two years.

Business Different Today

Conditions are very different now than in 1940. There are now 10,000,000 more people in the United States. This means not only 10,000,000 potential customers but your chance of being drafted is proportionately less. The national income is now almost double what it was at the beginning of World War II. People now have better health, better education and better wages. Don't look back to what happened before World War II. Forget those days and recognize you are living in an entirely different age.

Although manufacturing is passing into bigger units, this is not true of merchandising and service businesses. There are more successful independent merchants today than ever; while attempts to make chains of dry cleansing, beauty, and specialty shops have failed. Therefore, don't get panicky and sell out your business just because of war threats, labor troubles or competition. Remember that for every one who gets scared and sells out, there is so much more opportunity for those who stick. Only don't borrow money to do so. Keep out of debt.

Final Advice

Whatever you do or don't do, take up some systematic study to enable you to do better work for yourself or your employer. Write tonight to your State University for a list of its Extension Courses. Some of these courses are truly "gold mines". Pick out one or more and "dig in" at once. They will not only help you in forging ahead here at home but will go a long way to prevent you from being used as cannon fodder abroad.

Onteora Board

whether or not the bond issue for the new school should be increased $300,000.

Right to Opinions

We recognize the right of all the people of the district to have different opinions on the question. It is for the people of the district themselves to decide. On the other hand, we feel that an opinion as to whether or not the additional bonds should be issued should be based on facts.

At the outset we wish to point out that we have been elected by the residents of the district and have the responsibility of making decisions. In doing that we try to keep as our guiding objective the best interests of the children and people of our district. We serve without compensation and give countless hours to the problems of the Board. Many of our meetings have lasted through the night to early morning.

Deny False Representation

The accusation is first made that a fraud was perpetrated by representing to the people of Olive that if they joined the school district a new school would cost no more than $1,850,000. The district was formed in May 1948. This was long prior to the time that anyone knew what the cost of a new school would be. No such false representation could have been made for the specific information alleged to have been conveyed did not exist. Studies were published as to the effect of tentative costs but they were tentative only.

The accusation is next made that the board "dilly-dallied from 1948 to 1951 or over three years before seeking bids. As a matter of fact an architect was hired in July 1949. He then undertook the preparation of preliminary plans. They were submitted to the board and approved. It appeared that the cost would be $1,850,000. The nature of the building and the plans were fully explained to the district at various meetings throughout the district. On April 14, 1950 the people of the district approved a bond issue at a public meeting in the amount of $1,850,000. Only after that date could the architect proceed to draw the final plans and specifications. This laborious work takes time.

No Marble Palace

Accusations are further hurled against the board for hiring an architect from Buffalo. Before hiring any architect, the board interviewed several and took the time to inspect various schools built by the different architects. The architect finally selected is of recognized competence, of unassailable integrity and an architect who specializes in school construction. The board was impressed by his outstanding qualifications and the work he had done on other schools. The architect selected agreed to keep a licensed architect right on the job for a period of 18 months. This none of the other architects agreed to do and was one of the principal reasons for the selection of the architect employed. In selecting him the board was actuated by no motive except to secure the person who was in its opinion the best man available.

The accusation that the architect deliberately planned a "marble palace" to increase his fees is vicious, without foundation and unworthy of any supervisor of Ulster county. The fees of architects are generally standardized and any architect would be paid on the same scale.

Same School as Planned

The building that will now cost $300,00 more than expected last April is the same building that was planned then. It was the same building that was fully explained to all the voters prior to April 14, 1950 when the majority approved it. The only reason that it will cost $300,000 more is because of the terrific inflation that has occurred since that time. The building is characterized by simplicity rather than ornateness. Its ultimate cost is mainly dependent upon its size.

They have already expressed their willingness to pay taxes to pay off school bonds in the amount of $1,850,000. To get exactly the same school planned in April 1950 would now cost $300,000 more.

To pay this $300,000 over a 30-year period increases the tax rate from 90 cents to one dollar and 20 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation in the various towns in the school district. In other words if a person is assessed $1,000 he would pay from 90 cents to one dollar twenty cents more in taxes dependent on the town in the district in which the person lives.

We urge the attendance of interested voters since at those times the board will be open for suggestions. It has always been the policy of this board to keep the people of the district informed.

Studd Will Give Dinner Address

Howard R. Studd, executive director of the Albany Council of Community Services, will be the guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Ulster County Council of Social Agencies, scheduled to be held at 6 p. m. Monday, February 5, at the Y.W.C.A. building on Clinton avenue.

Studd, a graduate of the University of Buffalo School of Social Work, was for five years a case worker with the Children's Aid Society of Erie county, worked with the Social Planning Council of Atlanta, Ga., and the Council of Social Agencies of Metropolitan Detroit. After serving as a psychiatric case worker in the Army during World War 2, he went overseas with the Displaced Persons Program of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in Germany, where he served as deputy director of the Department of Welfare Services and as a field inspector for Central Headquarters of UNRRA.

Works Two Years

He transferred to Military Government and worked there for another two years as deputy director of the Public Welfare Branch, Berlin sector, and as chief of Public Assistance Section of that division.

In September, 1949, he came to Albany as executive director of the Council of Social Agencies, which in December of 1950 became the Council of Community Services.

The meeting Monday night will be the first dinner meeting scheduled by the Ulster Council of Social Agencies, which was organized a little over a year ago. About 50 members of the council and invited guests are expected to attend, Henry J. Fisher, president, will preside.

Howard Shurter, director of Ulster County Civil Defense, will give a short address on the place of social agencies in the civil defense program.

Ice Isn't Profitable

Malone, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—Ice isn't profitable any more in this icy area. The House Ice Company, only commercial ice firm for miles around, announced yesterday it would close Feb. 15 because of the price freeze and rising labor and transportation costs. The company has sold about 4,500 tons a season. Malone is 15 miles from Owls Head, traditional "icebox" of the state.

Typhus Hits Enemy

Tokyo, Feb. 2 (AP)—Communist forces in Korea are suffering from typhus, frostbite, trench foot and other diseases, reliable sources said today. No typhus cases were reported among the inoculated United Nations troops. In Washington, army officials said that Russian satellite countries have had trouble preparing an effective vaccine.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2—During the last war many young men gave up their jobs, or closed out their businesses, before it was necessary. I said at the time they were making a big mistake.

Filling stations, for which a good trade had been built up, were sold in the early 1940's for one-half their value or less. In fact, I then often said in this column that "closed filling stations are the best real estate investment which a person could make." Well, the fact is that these gas stations now are selling at three or four times what those panic-stricken G.I. men sold them for 10 years ago. The same applied to other businesses which could well have been carried on by some relative or friend. So don't do something foolish now.

But then there was a real war on; but no World War III exists today. It may be many years before such a war comes; and much could happen in the meantime. Congress has not even passed the Compulsory Military Training Bill. Because President Conant of Harvard has written a scary article on Military Training for ALL 18-20 years old in a national magazine is no reason why a young man should suddenly change his life plans by giving up college or a good job. Besides, even if he is inducted for two years, these years will go very quickly. If you doubt this, just look back two years.

Business Different Today

Conditions are very different now than in 1940. There are now 10,000,000 more people in the United States. This means not only 10,000,000 potential customers but your chance of being drafted is proportionately less. The national income is now almost double what it was at the beginning of World War II. People now have better health, better education and better wages. Don't look back to what happened before World War II. Forget those days and recognize you are living in an entirely different age.

Although manufacturing is passing into bigger units, this is not true of merchandising and service businesses. There are more successful independent merchants today than ever; while attempts to make chains of dry cleansing, beauty, and specialty shops have failed. Therefore, don't get panicky and sell out your business just because of war threats, labor troubles or competition. Remember that for every one who gets scared and sells out, there is so much more opportunity for those who stick. Only don't borrow money to do so. Keep out of debt.

Final Advice

Whatever you do or don't do, take up some systematic study to enable you to do better work for yourself or your employer. Write tonight to your State University for a list of its Extension Courses. Some of these courses are truly "gold mines". Pick out one or more and "dig in" at once. They will not only help you in forging ahead here at home but will go a long way to prevent you from being used as cannon fodder abroad.

Onteora Board

whether or not the bond issue for the new school should be increased $300,000.

Right to Opinions

We recognize the right of all the people of the district to have different opinions on the question. It is for the people of the district themselves to decide. On the other hand, we feel that an opinion as to whether or not the additional bonds should be issued should be based on facts.

At the outset we wish to point out that we have been elected by the residents of the district and have the responsibility of making decisions. In doing that we try to keep as our guiding objective the best interests of the children and people of our district. We serve without compensation and give countless hours to the problems of the Board. Many of our meetings have lasted through the night to early morning.

Deny False Representation

The accusation is first made that a fraud was perpetrated by representing to the people of Olive that if they joined the school district a new school would cost no more than $1,850,000. The district was formed in May 1948. This was long prior to the time that anyone knew what the cost of a new school would be. No such false representation could have been made for the specific information alleged to have been conveyed did not exist. Studies were published as to the effect of tentative costs but they were tentative only.

The accusation is next made that the board "dilly-dallied from 1948 to 1951 or over three years before seeking bids. As a matter of fact an architect was hired in July 1949. He then undertook the preparation of preliminary plans. They were submitted to the board and approved. It appeared that the cost would be $1,850,000. The nature of the building and the plans were fully explained to the district at various meetings throughout the district. On April 14, 1950 the people of the district approved a bond issue at a public meeting in the amount of $1,850,000. Only after that date could the architect proceed to draw the final plans and specifications. This laborious work takes time.

No Marble Palace

Accusations are further hurled against the board for hiring an architect from Buffalo. Before hiring any architect, the board interviewed several and took the time to inspect various schools built by the different architects. The architect finally selected is of recognized competence, of unassailable integrity and an architect who specializes in school construction. The board was impressed by his outstanding qualifications and the work he had done on other schools. The architect selected agreed to keep a licensed architect right on the job for a period of 18 months. This none of the other architects agreed to do and was one of the principal reasons for the selection of the architect employed. In selecting him the board was actuated by no motive except to secure the person who was in its opinion the best man available.

The accusation that the architect deliberately planned a "marble palace" to increase his fees is vicious, without foundation and unworthy of any supervisor of Ulster county. The fees of architects are generally standardized and any architect would be paid on the same scale.

Same School as Planned

The building that will now cost $300,00 more than expected last April is the same building that was planned then. It was the same building that was fully explained to all the voters prior to April 14, 1950 when the majority approved it. The only reason that it will cost $300,000 more is because of the terrific inflation that has occurred since that time. The building is characterized by simplicity rather than ornateness. Its ultimate cost is mainly dependent upon its size.

We ourselves are taxpayers. We represent taxpayers. It never has been and is not now our determination to inflict an "unbearable" tax burden on the people of our district. It is for the people themselves to decide what taxes they are willing to pay for school bonds. They have already expressed their willingness to pay taxes to pay off school bonds in the amount of $1,850,000. To get exactly the same school planned in April 1950 would now cost $300,000 more.

To pay this $300,000 over a 30-year period increases the tax rate from 90 cents to one dollar and 20 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation in the various towns in the school district. In other words if a person is assessed $1,000 he would pay from 90 cents to one dollar twenty cents more in taxes dependent on the town in the district in which the person lives.

Meetings Scheduled

The board is now working on the problem of building a school within the limits of $1,850,000. To do this will require the elimination of essential items completely unrelated to the fantastic charge that a building is contemplated with marble halls.

The board has set up a schedule of public meetings to go over the request of an increased appropriation. They will take place at Olive Bridge on February 7; Phoenicia on February 8; Shady February 9 and Allaben February 12. We urge the attendance of interested voters since at those times the board will be open for suggestions. It has always been the policy of this board to keep the people of the district informed.

for alleged misconduct in connection with the last job.

Many Disqualified

A total of 79 persons were disqualified for refusing a suitable job; 253 for failure to report to insurance or placement section as required, and four for loss of employment due to labor dispute.

In releasing information as to disqualifications and penalties, the Division of Unemployment Insurance stated that in more than 12 years of experience most wage earners have learned the unemployment insurance rules and do not claim benefits unless they think they meet the tests.

Complaints from the public that individuals are collecting unemployment insurance improperly are "fairly common," the division stated, and are always investigated. Some of these cases are supported by facts, while others are cases where persons are working but have received overdue checks for previous periods unemployment, or where persons are working two or three days a week but are entitled to unemployment insurance for partial unemployment.

Most Cases Worthy

"This report and the experience of the unemployment insurance office over the years shows conclusively that actual fraud in the unemployment insurance system is negligible," Hart said. "Most of the people who are receiving unemployment insurance are entitled to it, and their primary interest is to get off the insurance rolls as quickly as possible."

Hart commended the claim examiners for their work on cases where claimants were found not to be available for work, or not able to work. "This kind of disqualification usually results from (the examiners') own self-starting activity," he said.

Hitch-Hikes Way To Front to Join Army Against Reds

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Feb. 2 (AP)—A 26-year-old man who said he came all the way from New York to join the army was brought from the battlefront today to take a physical examination.

"That does not mean we will take him in," an officer said. "But it will determine for one thing whether he is physically qualified to become a soldier."

William Jesse Newton, Jr., hitch-hiked to the front yesterday and tried to enlist in the famed U. S. Wolfhound 27th Infantry regiment.

"Fellows with spirit like that don't come very often," commented Col. John (Mike) Michaelis, the regiment's commander.

Newton wore army khaki.

He identified himself thus: a commercial pilot in civilian life; married—his wife and two children living at 2148 Nadine street, Temple City, Calif.; a navy gunner's mate in World War 2 and later a year with the U. S. air force in 1948.

Earlier, Newton showed 27th Infantry regiment officers a paper entitled, "United States government versus William Jess Newton alias Guglielmo San Sebastian."

Asked what that meant, Newton said:

"Aw that's nothing. To fly in Mexico, you must be a Mexican citizen. I had to buy myself a Mexican name."

Called Red Spy

His own account of why he came over:

A plane he had rented at Teterboro, N. J., landed in the sea off New Jersey last year. He was picked up by the Polish ship Batory, aboard which Gerhardt Eisler, Communist leader, escaped to Europe.

"Ever since, everyone still thinks little Willie is a Red spy," Newton elaborated.

"I came out here to shoot the Communists. People back home will think that's a funny way for a Communist to act. They will have to change their opinion of me."

Newton's faith in his ability to get into the army wavered a bit after he was returned from the front and placed in custody of a military police officer, Lt. James Dwyer, Curtis, Mich.

Must Fight Army First

"I suppose they are going to take me to Fort Dix (N.J.)," he said. "I guess you have to fight this army before you can fight Chinese."

But, having worked his way to Korea on $50 "more or less," he was confident he could pass army examinations.

"I've been examined before," he said, "and I find I'm usually a little saner than the psychiatrist who examined me. Don't think the F.B.I. didn't examine me after the Batory thing."

As Pegler Sees It

pleaded for commissions for Communists in the American army during the war without revealing that they were Communists.

Buchanan's first indictment by the "grand inquest" of Allegheny county, Pa., of February, 1930, charged he had "fraudulently" made a written instrument. Grant L. Stoner, of McKeesport, Buchanan's home city, one of the complaining witnesses, was interviewed by Chester Harris, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, who reports that Stoner said the charge rose out of the purchase of an automobile by his son, George Stoner, and that the indictment concerned the question whether one document was substituted for another, altering the terms.

Harris writes that Grant Stoner said he told his story to the grand jury in Pittsburgh and that "just before he (Buchanan) was supposed to go to trial, the case was dropped. He straightened up with my son. And he also paid the costs of the case."

Mr. Buchanan's statement that there were only two cases, not three, may be explained by the fact that true bills Nos. 193 and 194, of March, 1931, arose out of one transaction. He said at first, "as I remember one of those cases, a salesman promised a man $25 on a used car. Instead of suing me, civilly, he sued me criminally. I was never convicted of a crime. An indictment is simply a warrant in Pennsylvania. It's just a warrant."

Questioned further, Mr. Buchanan admitted that a warrant was not an indictment. He agreed that an indictment was in Pennsylvania, as elsewhere, a true bill voted by a grand jury.

There are unexplained facts in the queer conduct of Buchanan's committee. Two anti-Communist propagandists were indicted for contempt of Congress in refusing to expose to persecution by Communist fronts and others the persons who had given their organizations money to oppose communism. Buchanan agreed that the two Lipschutz societies should have been similarly examined. Now it begins to come out that Buchanan himself was cordial to the notorious Electrical Union, which has been thrown out of the C.I.O. as a Communist front, and that two of the committee's executives had spectacular records of association, one Congressional committee never investigates another so it may fall to the grand jury of the District of Columbia to investigate Buchanan's committee. However, the grand jury may be subservient to the Truman Department of Justice, which has been trying to sabotage all exposures of Communist treachery.

Poughkeepsie High's resounding 58-26 victory over Kingston Tuesday in Sam Kalloch's glorified cigar box chased us into the record books to see if any club had ever beaten a G. Warren Kias-coached team by that margin before.

We ran across several interesting items and the startling information that Monticello High had drubbed the Maroon, 46 to 13, during the 1931-32 campaign. That shades Poughkeepsie's 32-point margin by one marker.

• The Marlborough Series:

A telephone call to Tony Erena, who works just across the street in the downtown post office, confirmed a suspicion, that, while Kingston had twice been subjected to defeats of worse than 30 points, that was sheer horseplay compared to the job Coach Kias' first squad (1927-28) did on little Marlborough High.

The '27-'28 squad humbled Marlborough on its home court by the unbelievable score of 109 to 4! In those days of possession basketball and set shooting, a hundred-point total was a truly phenomenal accomplishment.

A few days later, Marlborough invaded the K.H.S. "chicken coop gym" and suffered a 68-3 setback. The impotence of the Maroon attack that day caused Erena to quip:

"Either we were slipping, or they were getting wise to our stuff."

Jay Molyneaux captained that powerful aggregation that won 11 and lost 4. The third lopsided score of the campaign was a 44-9 rout of Port Jervis.

Molyneaux's teammates included, besides Erena, "Flip" Jones, Tuffick Maroon, Bill Merrill, Bill Wonderly, Johnny Burgevin, John Watts, Paul Joyce, Harold Brown, Herbie Clarke and Phil McDonald, the income tax man. Clarke and Burgevin apparently were freshmen.

• Beating Chandlers Was Tops:

The scoring orgies against Marlborough and Port Jervis failed to evoke the enthusiasm among those boys as did victories over the highly regarded Chandlers and the K.H.S. varsity of the following season. This same varsity was to produce Coach Kias' first DUSO pennant.

Whipping the Chandlers—the best independent club of the day—was a cherished feat Erena and the gang still like to brag about. And with good reason. Just check back on the Chandler roster and you'll find such all-time local worthies as Normie Niles, Chet Fox, Harold "Chicken" Smith, Red Kennedy, Joe Blass, Joe Hoffman and Joe Dulin. The Maroons did it 32-22, Bill Wonderly hitting for 16 points and Erena with 10.

The following season Capt. Molyneaux's basketeers returned to nose out the varsity 26-25. That was the varsity that captured the DUSO League title and went to the finals of the sectional Tournament where it bowed to Albany Academy, 52-26. Those young men came on to play some great basketball in their own right, fellows like Herbie Clarke, Arthur Chipp, the coroner, Al Blackwell, Bob Cullum, Stu Parks, Myron Gaddis and a few others.

If you want scores to the other extreme, you can have that rousing home and home series between Kingston and Newburgh Academy in 1925-26. Newburgh won the opener, 10-9, and Kingston retaliated 12-11. Must have been a great series for the relief pitchers.

In the 1923-25 schedule, Poughkeepsie edged Kingston, 10 to 8, and later in the season, Kingston romped over Middletown, 47 to 9. They licked St. Stephens Juniors, 42-8, in 1922-23 and a year earlier had lost to Poughkeepsie, 28-8. During the 1930-31 sectional tournament, little Wappingers Falls came a 64-13 cropper against a Maroon powerhouse.

One of Kingston's greatest heartbreaks was the 28-27 loss to Liberty High during 1937-38. It spoiled an otherwise perfect record for the season (17-1) and inspired Kingston to wreak revenge by a 54-25 margin in their second meeting.

That was a dilly in Poughkeepsie on Tuesday, but through the years, the ledger is stacked heavily in Kingston's favor in the matter of lopsided basketball scores.

Gehrmann Points For Dodds' Record

Boston, Feb. 2 (AP)—Don Gehrmann, the seemingly unbeatable thin man among the nation's milers, not only is expected to win his 37th consecutive race tomorrow night but some think he might break Gil Dodds' indoor mark of 4:05.3.

And if he should be hustled into better time by a pair of FBI agents—Fred Wilt and Horace Ashenfelter — the Rev. Gilbert Dodds will be at Boston Garden as a witness.

Dodds, now track coach at Wheaton (Ill.) College, is scheduled to start the Hunter Mile, one of the features of the 62nd Boston A. A. meet.

Last week in New York Gehrmann was forced to run the mile in 4:05.7.

Also in the field are last year's winner, John Joe Barry, an American born Irishman from Villanova, and Sweden's Ingvar Bengtsson.

84 Teams Enter City Tourney

Entries for the annual city bowling tournament closed with 84 five-man teams registered, Ad Jones, tournament manager, reported today. This total is 24 under the all-time record set last year but is considered excellent in the light of controversy over the no-handicap rule. About 70 sets of doubles are expected to compete.

An important meeting of all committee chairmen for the tourney and all executive committeemen of the city association has been called for Sunday at 2 p. m. at the county court house.

Softball hurler Eddie Dasher reached the "600" class in the Commercial League last night, with his 232-189-184 blast at the Bowlatorium.

E. Rowe shot 222-568; Herm Sellbach 214-544, L. Miller 219-529; G. Stoutenburg 518, W. Stenson ditto, Hans Maylahn 513; Frank Grimaldi 505 and Moe Lazarowitz 502.

Johnny Lowe was on his way to big things in the No-Can-Do League last night, until he ran into a mess of splits in the final game. Opening counts of 232 and 246 gave him a hefty 478 and he started in pursuit of the elusive "700." Then came the splits.

Stan Colvin posted 201-575 for the runnerup honors and Allan Hoey's 222-565 was good for show money. Other top triples were J. Fatum's 562, Jack Parslow 214-551; Joe Magnino 547, Harry Pierce 201-546, Frank Norman 214-540; W. Pieper 539, Ralph Frederick 216-537, Ray Otto 204-533 and W. Ferguson 532.

Frank Martin's 569, with 220-167-182, was the series in the Freeman League session at the Bowlatorium as scores dipped from last week's bumper crop of 500s. Roland Post shot 534 and Art Shelightner wound up with 533, after a 224 opener. Art Parks posted 210-530 and Frank Bruno, the high average kegler, had 202-526. Other "500" shooters were John Howard 516, B. Felton 512 and Irwin Thomas 505. Near-misses included Curtis Clair's 496 and Jack Hartman's 490.

The Ferraro Major League proceeded without the usual amateur fisticuffs last night and Frank "Boots" Leskie rolled the best of seven "600" triples and Bob Hanley powered a brilliant 276 in his third game.

Leskie turned in the hat trick with 222-215-216 for 653 and Hanley's big game enabled him to finish with 651. He had other counts of 205 and 170.

SPORTS

Robert Cutler set a new high single record with 268 in his final set in the Junior Major League, behind opening scores of 144 and 189.

League leading honors went to Richie Dulin with 186-215-204-605. J. McGrane posted 213-201-594, Joe Kwasney 226-594, B. Davis 201-212-592, Chris Robinson 206-216-577, L. High School Plays Monticello Tonight

Kingston High found Poughkeepsie too tough the second time around but Coach G. Warren Kias' cagers are hoping to flatten Monticello High in their DUSO clash tonight at the municipal auditorium.

Monticello is the club that tossed the Maroon for their first setback of the season, a trick that was later duplicated by Ellenville and Poughkeepsie.

Their DUSO hopes virtually eliminated by the Poughkeepsie debacle, the Kiasmen can still salvage second or third place and finish the season with a respectable record.

The tentative lineups:

Leroy Hooker	Forward	Joyce
George Carpouzis	Forward	McCullough
Moll Leonard	Center	Kushner
Chil Caruso	Guard	Strassner
Pete Camp	Guard	Gitlin

Turnesa's 64 Paces Tucson Open Golf

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 2 (AP)—The $15,000 Tucson Open golf tourney is still without a cut and dried favorite today as experienced Jim Turnesa, Briarcliff, N. Y., leads a well scrambled field into the second round.

Although 14 men are ahead and another eight are even, Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, and Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn., strengthened their positions with the gallery yesterday.

Turnesa could do no wrong with his approach shots. They carried him to a six under par 64. Of course there was nothing the matter with his driving and putting. "But," he said, "when you get as close to the pin with your irons as I did, you don't have to worry about putting."

As far as Turnesa is concerned the flat, 6,492-yard El Rio Golf and Country Club course, isn't easy." So far I've never found an easy course," the stocky New Yorker claimed. "But I sure liked those six birdies."

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. FIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

Poughkeepsie High's resounding 58-26 victory over Kingston Tuesday in Sam Kalloch's glorified cigar box chased us into the record books to see if any club had ever beaten a G. Warren Kias-coached team by that margin before.

We ran across several interesting items and the startling information that Monticello High had drubbed the Maroon, 46 to 13, during the 1931-32 campaign. That shades Poughkeepsie's 32-point margin by one marker.

• The Marlborough Series:

A telephone call to Tony Erena, who works just across the street in the downtown post office, confirmed a suspicion that, while Kingston had twice been subjected to defeats of worse than 30 points, that was sheer horseplay compared to the job Coach Kias' first squad (1927-28) did on little Marlborough High.

The '27-'28 squad humbled Marlborough on its home court by the unbelievable score of 109 to 4! In those days of possession basketball and set shooting, a hundred-point total was a truly phenomenal accomplishment.

A few days later, Marlborough invaded the K.H.S. "chicken coop gym" and suffered a 68-3 setback. The impotence of the Maroon attack that day caused Erena to quip:

"Either we were slipping, or they were getting wise to our stuff."

Jay Molyneaux captained that powerful aggregation that won 11 and lost 4. The third lopsided score of the campaign was a 44-9 rout of Port Jervis.

Molyneaux's teammates included, besides Erena, "Flip" Jones, Tuffick Maroon, Bill Merrill, Bill Wonderly, Johnny Burgevin, John Watts, Paul Joyce, Harold Brown, Herbie Clarke and Phil McDonald, the income tax man. Clarke and Burgevin apparently were freshmen.

• Beating Chandlers Was Tops:

The scoring orgies against Marlborough and Port Jervis failed to evoke the enthusiasm among those boys as did victories over the highly regarded Chandlers and the K.H.S. varsity of the following season. This same varsity was to produce Coach Kias' first DUSO pennant.

Whipping the Chandlers—the best independent club of the day—was a cherished feat Erena and the gang still like to brag about. And with good reason. Just check back on the Chandler roster and you'll find such all-time local worthies as Normie Niles, Chet Fox, Harold "Chicken" Smith, Red Kennedy, Joe Blass, Joe Hoffman and Joe Dulin. The Maroons did it 32-22, Bill Wonderly hitting for 16 points and Erena with 10.

The following season Capt. Molyneaux's basketeers returned to nose out the varsity 26-25. That was the varsity that captured the DUSO League title and went to the finals of the sectional Tournament where it bowed to Albany Academy, 53-36. Those young men came on to play some great basketball in their own right, fellows like Herbie Clarke, Arthur Chipp, the coroner, Al Blackwell, Bob Cullum, Stu Parks, Myron Gaddis and a few others.

If you want scores to the other extreme, you can have that rousing home and home series between Kingston and Newburgh Academy in 1925-26. Newburgh won the opener, 10-9, and Kingston retaliated 12-11. Must have been a great series for the relief pitchers.

In the 1923-25 schedule, Poughkeepsie edged Kingston, 10 to 8, and later in the season, Kingston romped over Middletown, 47 to 9. They licked St. Stephens Juniors, 42-8, in 1922-23 and a year earlier had lost to Poughkeepsie, 28-8. During the 1930-31 sectional tournament, little Wappingers Falls came a 64-13 cropper against a Maroon powerhouse.

One of Kingston's greatest heartbreaks was the 33-27 loss to Liberty High during 1937-38. It spoiled an otherwise perfect record for the season (17-1) and inspired Kingston to wreak revenge by a 54-25 margin in their second meeting.

That was a dilly in Poughkeepsie on Tuesday, but through the years, the ledger is stacked heavily in Kingston's favor in the matter of lopsided basketball scores.

Gehrmann Points For Dodds' Record

Boston, Feb. 2 (AP)—Don Gehrmann, the seemingly unbeatable thin man among the nation's milers, not only is expected to win his 37th consecutive race tomorrow night but some think he might break Gil Dodds' indoor mark of 4:05.3.

And if he should be hustled into better time by a pair of FBI agents—Fred Wilt and Horace Ashenfelter — the Rev. Gilbert Dodds will be at Boston Garden as a witness.

Dodds, now track coach at Wheaton (Ill.) College, is scheduled to start the Hunter Mile, one of the features of the 62nd Boston A. A. meet.

Last week in New York Gehrmann was forced to run the mile in 4:05.7.

Also in the field are last year's winner, John Joe Barry, an American born Irishman from Villanova, and Sweden's Ingvar Bengtsson.

84 Teams Enter City Tourney

Entries for the annual city bowling tournament closed with 84 five-man teams registered, Ad Jones, tournament manager, reported today. This total is 24 under the all-time record set last year but is considered excellent in the light of controversy over the no-handicap rule. About 70 sets of doubles are expected to compete.

An important meeting of all committee chairmen for the tourney and all executive committeemen of the city association has been called for Sunday at 2 p. m. at the county court house.

Meeting Change

The place for the February 8 meeting of the Federated Sportsmen's Club of Ulster county has been changed to the 1776 Colonial Inn on the road between Wallkill and Pine Bush. To reach the Colonial Inn, turn south off Routes 55 and 44 at Benton Corners and proceed six miles on the macadam road.

Colgate At Army

Army meets Colgate University in basketball at the West Point field house on Saturday at 2:30 p. m. The game will be televised on Channel 2.

Johnny Lowe was on his way to big things in the No-Can-Do League last night, until he ran into a mess of splits in the final game. Opening counts of 232 and 246 gave him a hefty 478 and he started in pursuit of the elusive "700." Then came the splits.

Stan Colvin posted 201-575 for the runnerup honors and Allan Hoey's 222-565 was good for show money. Other top triples were J. Fatum's 562, Jack Parslow 214-551; Joe Magnino 547, Harry Pierce 201-546, Frank Norman 214-540; W. Pieper 539, Ralph Frederick 216-537, Ray Otto 204-533 and W. Ferguson 532.

Frank Martin's 569, with 220-167-182, was the series in the Freeman League session at the Bowlatorium as scores dipped from last week's bumper crop of 500s. Roland Post shot 534 and Art Shelightner wound up with 533, after a 224 opener. Art Parks posted 210-530 and Frank Bruno, the high average kegler, had 202-526. Other "500" shooters were John Howard 516, B. Felton 512 and Irwin Thomas 505. Near-misses included Curtis Clair's 496 and Jack Hartman's 490.

The Ferraro Major League proceeded without the usual amateur fisticuffs last night and Frank "Boots" Leskie rolled the best of seven "600" triples and Bob Hanley powered a brilliant 276 in his third game.

Leskie turned in the hat trick with 222-215-216 for 653 and Hanley's big game enabled him to finish with 651. He had other counts of 205 and 170.

Dick Howard, high average leader in the circuit, rolled 218-238-644. Tommy Amato 218-210-616, Harry Wilber 236-605, Harold Broskie 214-605, George Robinson 222-604, Larry Weishaupt 205-218-591, Lou Guadagnola 247-589, Ad Jones 212-205-581, Clifton Quick 213-581, Charlie Manfro 576 and George Shufeldt 202-571.

Jake Chichelsky was the hot man in the Jacobson Mixed wheel, his 192-185-189-566 setting the pace by a wide margin. Runnerup Bob Gorslin shot 474, Hap Rockwell 200-462.

Jack Blinder sandwiched a 222 with 190 and 171 for 583 in the Colonial Men's League and Bill Murray hit for 211-200-571. Murray Greene rolled 205-568, Rube Leventhal 203-563, Phil Levy 254-560, Ed Koskie 215-555, George Uhl 537, J. Roberts 534, J. Ausanio 510, F. Embree 509 and Bud Greenburg 521.

High School Plays Monticello Tonight

Kingston High found Poughkeepsie too tough the second time around but Coach G. Warren Kias' cagers are hoping to flatten Monticello High in their DUSO clash tonight at the municipal auditorium.

Monticello is the club that tossed the Maroon for their first setback of the season, a trick that was later duplicated by Ellenville and Poughkeepsie.

Their DUSO hopes virtually eliminated by the Poughkeepsie debacle, the Kiasmen can still salvage second or third place and finish the season with a respectable record.

George Carpouzis	Forward	McCullough

Turnesa's 64 Paces Tucson Open Golf

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 2 (AP)—The $13,000 Tucson Open golf tourney is still without a cut and dried favorite today as experienced Jim Turnesa, Briarcliff, N. Y., leads a well scrambled field into the second round.

Although 14 men are ahead and another eight are even, Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, and Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn., strengthened their positions with the gallery yesterday.

Turneso could do no wrong with his approach shots. They carried him to a six under par 64. Of course there was nothing the matter with his driving and putting. "But," he said, "when you get as close to the pin with your irons as I did, you don't have to worry about putting."

As far as Turnesa is concerned the flat, 6,492-yard El Rio Golf and Country Club course, isn't easy." So far I've never found an easy course," the stocky New Yorker claimed. "But I sure liked those six birdies."

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. FIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

Poughkeepsie High's resounding 58-26 victory over Kingston Tuesday in Sam Kalloch's glorified cigar box chased us into the record books to see if any club had ever beaten a G. Warren Kias-coached team by that margin before.

We ran across several interesting items and the startling information that Monticello High had drubbed the Maroon, 46 to 13, during the 1931-32 campaign. That shades Poughkeepsie's 32-point margin by one marker.

• The Marlborough Series:

A telephone call to Tony Erena, who works just across the street in the downtown post office, confirmed a suspicion that, while Kingston had twice been subjected to defeats of worse than 30 points, that was sheer horseplay compared to the job Coach Kias' first squad (1927-28) did on little Marlborough High.

The '27-'28 squad humbled Marlborough on its home court by the unbelievable score of 109 to 4! In those days of possession basketball and set shooting, a hundred-point total was a truly phenomenal accomplishment.

A few days later, Marlborough invaded the K.H.S. "chicken coop gym" and suffered a 68-3 setback. The impotence of the Maroon attack that day caused Erena to quip:

"Either we were slipping, or they were getting wise to our stuff."

Jay Molyneaux captained that powerful aggregation that won 11 and lost 4. The third lopsided score of the campaign was a 44-9 rout of Port Jervis.

Molyneaux's teammates included, besides Erena, "Flip" Jones, Tuffick Maroon, Bill Merrill, Bill Wonderly, Johnny Burgevin, John Watts, Paul Joyce, Harold Brown, Herbie Clarke and Phil McDonald, the income tax man. Clarke and Burgevin apparently were freshmen.

• Beating Chandlers Was Tops:

The scoring orgies against Marlborough and Port Jervis failed to evoke the enthusiasm among those boys as did victories over the highly regarded Chandlers and the K.H.S. varsity of the following season. This same varsity was to produce Coach Kias' first DUSO pennant.

Whipping the Chandlers—the best independent club of the day—was a cherished feat Erena and the gang still like to brag about. And with good reason. Just check back on the Chandler roster and you'll find such all-time local worthies as Normie Niles, Chet Fox, Harold "Chicken" Smith, Red Kennedy, Joe Blass, Joe Hoffman and Joe Dulin. The Maroons did it 32-22, Bill Wonderly hitting for 16 points and Erena with 10.

The following season Capt. Molyneaux's basketeers returned to nose out the varsity 26-25. That was the varsity that captured the DUSO League title and went to the finals of the sectional Tournament where it bowed to Albany Academy, 53-36. Those young men came on to play some great basketball in their own right, fellows like Herbie Clarke, Arthur Chipp, the coroner, Al Blackwell, Bob Cullum, Stu Parks, Myron Gaddis and a few others.

If you want scores to the other extreme, you can have that rousing home and home series between Kingston and Newburgh Academy in 1925-26. Newburgh won the opener, 10-9, and Kingston retaliated 12-11. Must have been a great series for the relief pitchers.

In the 1923-25 schedule, Poughkeepsie edged Kingston, 10 to 8, and later in the season, Kingston romped over Middletown, 47 to 9. They licked St. Stephens Juniors, 42-8, in 1922-23 and a year earlier had lost to Poughkeepsie, 28-8. During the 1930-31 sectional tournament, little Wappingers Falls came a 64-13 cropper against a Maroon powerhouse.

One of Kingston's greatest heartbreaks was the 33-27 loss to Liberty High during 1937-38. It spoiled an otherwise perfect record for the season (17-1) and inspired Kingston to wreak revenge by a 54-25 margin in their second meeting.

That was a dilly in Poughkeepsie on Tuesday, but through the years, the ledger is stacked heavily in Kingston's favor in the matter of lopsided basketball scores.

Gehrmann Points For Dodds' Record

Boston, Feb. 2 (AP)—Don Gehrmann, the seemingly unbeatable thin man among the nation's milers, not only is expected to win his 37th consecutive race tomorrow night but some think he might break Gil Dodds' indoor mark of 4:05.3.

And if he should be hustled into better time by a pair of FBI agents—Fred Wilt and Horace Ashenfelter — the Rev. Gilbert Dodds will be at Boston Garden as a witness.

Dodds, now track coach at Wheaton (Ill.) College, is scheduled to start the Hunter Mile, one of the features of the 62nd Boston A. A. meet.

Last week in New York Gehrmann was forced to run the mile in 4:05.7.

Also in the field are last year's winner, John Joe Barry, an American born Irishman from Villanova, and Sweden's Ingvar Bengtsson.

84 Teams Enter City Tourney

Entries for the annual city bowling tournament closed with 84 five-man teams registered, Ad Jones, tournament manager, reported today. This total is 24 under the all-time record set last year but is considered excellent in the light of controversy over the no-handicap rule. About 70 sets of doubles are expected to compete.

An important meeting of all committee chairmen for the tourney and all executive committeemen of the city association has been called for Sunday at 2 p. m. at the county court house.

Meeting Change

The place for the February 8 meeting of the Federated Sportsmen's Club of Ulster county has been changed to the 1776 Colonial Inn on the road between Wallkill and Pine Bush. To reach the Colonial Inn, turn south off Routes 55 and 44 at Benton Corners and proceed six miles on the macadam road.

Johnny Lowe was on his way to big things in the No-Can-Do League last night, until he ran into a mess of splits in the final game. Opening counts of 232 and 246 gave him a hefty 478 and he started in pursuit of the elusive "700." Then came the splits.

Stan Colvin posted 201-575 for the runnerup honors and Allan Hoey's 222-565 was good for show money. Other top triples were J. Fatum's 562, Jack Parslow 214-551; Joe Magnino 547, Harry Pierce 201-546, Frank Norman 214-540; W. Pieper 539, Ralph Frederick 216-537, Ray Otto 204-533 and W. Ferguson 532.

Frank Martin's 569, with 220-167-182, was the series in the Freeman League session at the Bowlatorium as scores dipped from last week's bumper crop of 500s. Roland Post shot 534 and Art Shelightner wound up with 533, after a 224 opener. Art Parks posted 210-530 and Frank Bruno, the high average kegler, had 202-526. Other "500" shooters were John Howard 516, B. Felton 512 and Irwin Thomas 505. Near-misses included Curtis Clair's 496 and Jack Hartman's 490.

The Ferraro Major League proceeded without the usual amateur fisticuffs last night and Frank "Boots" Leskie rolled the best of seven "600" triples and Bob Hanley powered a brilliant 276 in his third game.

Leskie turned in the hat trick with 222-215-216 for 653 and Hanley's big game enabled him to finish with 651. He had other counts of 205 and 170.

Dick Howard, high average leader in the circuit, rolled 218-238-644, Tommy Amato 218-210-616, Harry Wilber 236-605, Harold Broskie 214-605, George Robinson 222-604, Larry Weishaupt 205-218-591, Lou Guadagnola 247-589, Ad Jones 212-205-581, Clifton Quick 213-581, Charlie Manfro 576 and George Shufeldt 202-571.

Jake Chichelsky was the hot man in the Jacobson Mixed wheel, his 192-185-189-566 setting the pace by a wide margin. Runnerup Bob Gorslin shot 474, Hap Rockwell 200-462.

Jack Blinder sandwiched a 222 with 190 and 171 for 583 in the Colonial Men's League and Bill Murray hit for 211-200-571. Murray Greene rolled 205-568, Rube Leventhal 203-563, Phil Levy 254-560, Ed Koskie 215-555, George Uhl 537, J. Roberts 534, J. Ausanio 510, F. Embree 509 and Bud Greenburg 521.

High School Plays Monticello Tonight

Kingston High found Poughkeepsie too tough the second time around but Coach G. Warren Kias' cagers are hoping to flatten Monticello High in their DUSO clash tonight at the municipal auditorium.

Monticello is the club that tossed the Maroon for their first setback of the season, a trick that was later duplicated by Ellenville and Poughkeepsie.

Their DUSO hopes virtually eliminated by the Poughkeepsie debacle, the Kiasmen can still salvage second or third place and finish the season with a respectable record.

The tentative lineups:

Leroy Hooker	Forward	Joyce
George Carpouzis	Forward	McCullough
Moll Leonard	Center	Kushner
Chil Caruso	Guard	Strassner
Pete Camp	Guard	Gitlin

Turnesa's 64 Paces Tucson Open Golf

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 2 (AP)—The $15,000 Tucson Open golf tourney is still without a cut and dried favorite today as experienced Jim Turnesa, Briarcliff, N. Y., leads a well scrambled field into the second round.

Although 14 men are ahead and another eight are even, Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, and Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn., strengthened their positions with the gallery yesterday.

Turneso could do no wrong with his approach shots. They carried him to a six under par 64. Of course there was nothing the matter with his driving and putting. "But," he said, "when you get as close to the pin with your irons as I did, you don't have to worry about putting."

As far as Turnesa is concerned the flat, 6,492-yard El Rio Golf and Country Club course, isn't easy." So far I've never found an easy course," the stocky New Yorker claimed. "But I sure liked those six birdies."

Button Leads National Skating

Button, 21-year-old Harvard sophomore, made a clean sweep of last year's event, but ran into his toughest competition yesterday in the person of Jimmy Grogan of Colorado Springs, sidelined a year ago with a pair of fractured ankles.

Three of the five judges rated Button best in school figures, but two gave the call to Grogan and the decision will be in doubt until the free-skating competition tonight.

Would Dam Hackensack

Spring Valley, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—Permission was sought to dam the headwaters of the Hackensack river to create a new 1,000-acre lake to improve the water supply in southern Rockland county and northern New Jersey. George M. Buck, president of the Spring Valley Water Works and Supply Company, which provides water from artesian wells to a dozen communities in southern Rockland, announced the plan yesterday. He said his company had petitioned the New York Water Power and Control Commission for approval of a plan to dam the river at Valley Cottage, N. Y., creating a lake four miles long. The Hackensack river at present supplies lakes and reservoirs providing water for northern New Jersey communities.

Glasses With Mirror

Southbridge, Mass., Feb. 2 (AP)—New eyeglasses with a mirror to let you see sideways were announced today by the American Optical Company. They were made for a person partially blind in the right eye, unable to see obects to his right. The side-view mirror picks up light and images to his right, and reflects them onto the still-good part of his right eye. The mirror is ¾ths of an inch long, and a quarter inch wide. It is mounted at right angles behind the right lens, next to the nose. The spectacles were prepared for a Connecticut opthamologist, in what the company calls its most unique prescription.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

P.-T.A. Approves Move To Open Membership

Woodstock, Feb. 2—The regular monthly meeting of the Woodstock Parent-Teacher Association was held at the Woodstock School Thursday night. Owing to the storm and icy road conditions, the scheduled speaker, Alex Banyo, of Kingston, was unable to attend. The program on corrective reading has been tentatively planned for May.

A resolution was passed that the by-laws be amended to read that membership be open to all interested in the P.-T. A. Heretofore, membership had only been open to residents of the School District No. 2.

It was announced that election of officers will be held in May instead of June.

Mrs. Austin Mecklem, president, announced that Mrs. John Wolven has been appointed as the class mother for the third and fourth grades.

Mrs. Mecklem also stated that as a result of the many problems encountered, the transportation and safety committee has been divided into two groups. The transportation committee will be concerned with the car pool and anyone interested in furnishing transportation should call Earl Christiana. Walter Riseley was appointed chairman of the safety committee and volunteers to assist him are needed.

It was reported that the organization now has a total of 82 members, an increase of 31 members over last month's membership.

Another program inaugurated will be the weekly dances following the Friday night basketball games, which will be chaperoned by a number of parents under the direction of Mrs. Margot King.

Also to be appointed in the near future will be a fund raising committee for a P.T.A. dance, to be held after graduation for the faculty and graduates of the Woodstock school.

Mrs. Mecklem said that plans have been made for a bulletin board to be placed in the school along with a collection box for items contributed by the students. All notices will be considered and edited before being placed on the bulletin board.

Loft Opening Delayed Until Tonight's Show

Woodstock, Feb. 2—Because of license difficulties beyond their control, the Loft Players who presented a summer season last year at the Maverick Theatre, were forced to postpone their New York opening planned for December 24 at the Sheridan Square Arena Theatre. The players have announced the official opening of "The Circle in the Square" at 5 Sheridan Square in Greenwich Village, with a production of "Dark of the Moon" tonight.

The building, now occupied by the Loft Players, was formerly known as the Greenwich Village Inn, was at first called the Sheridan Square Arena Theatre. It will henceforth be known as the "Circle in the Square."

Performances will be given every night except Mondays at 8:40 p. m., and matinees will be Saturday at 2:40 p. m. A permanent art gallery will be a feature of the lobby and the first exhibition now on view is presenting etchings from Stanley William Haytner's Atelier 17.

Eileen B. Cramer, Woodstock, will continue as publicity representative for the Loft Players, the position she held last summer in addition to duties both as featured player and director of a number of productions.

Dissent in Burma

Rangoon (AP) — A North Burma newspaper "Myanma Lanzin" (Burmese Way") has editorially commented that the Burmese situation has been unsatisfactory since independence was achieved on Jan. 4, 1948. It observed that the government claim to have restored 95 per cent peace may be true of towns garrisoned by government troops, but was not applicable to outlying villages. The paper said that there is every likelihood of general elections being postponed again.

Everybody knows the tradition that the stage comedian yearns to play Hamlet and that the Saint Bernard may fancy itself as a lap-dog. Likewise, our old friend Hard Luck Joe sometimes tries to act like Larceny Lou. The results are funny to everybody but Joe.

West opened the four of hearts, and dummy won with the ace. Joe saw that he could eventually discard the losing heart on a high spade if East held the ace of spades. Therefore Joe drew three rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, and led the king of spades through East.

When East played the ace of spades, Joe's face lit up like a five-cent cigar, in fact like a trick cigar that blows up. Joe ruffed with his four trump and looked triumphantly at the dummy for about one second. Then his face changed from triumph to despair.

If Joe led his last trump to dummy he could discard his losing heart on the queen of spades but then could not bring in the diamonds. Joe would have no trumps to prevent the opponents from running spades and hearts in huge quantities.

It was at this point that a look of cunning came on Joe's guileless face. He led a low diamond from his hand in the hope that West would play low and allow dummy's nine to win the trick. If West had done so, Joe would have discarded the losing heart on dummy's queen of spades and would still have a trump left to assure an entry after the ace of diamonds had been knocked out.

However, Joe's face is a little too easy to read, so that he will never be able to get away with the exploits of Larceny Lou. West saw at a glance what Joe was after, so he promptly put up the ace of diamonds and returned his remaining heart. This set the contract immediately.

Of course Joe would have made his contract if he hadn't tried to draw trump so quickly.

After winning the first trick with the ace of hearts, he should have led the king of spades at once. Then he would have been able to ruff out the ace of spades, draw three rounds of trumps, get his discard, and still bring in the diamond suit.

Button Leads National Skating

Button, 21-year-old Harvard sophomore, made a clean sweep of last year's event, but ran into his toughest competition yesterday in the person of Jimmy Grogan of Colorado Springs, sidelined a year ago with a pair of fractured ankles.

Three of the five judges rated Button best in school figures, but two gave the call to Grogan and the decision will be in doubt until the free-skating competition tonight.

P.-T.A. Approves Move To Open Membership

Woodstock, Feb. 2—The regular monthly meeting of the Woodstock Parent-Teacher Association was held at the Woodstock School Thursday night. Owing to the storm and icy road conditions, the scheduled speaker, Alex Banyo, of Kingston, was unable to attend. The program on corrective reading has been tentatively planned for May.

A resolution was passed that the by-laws be amended to read that membership be open to all interested in the P.-T. A. Heretofore, membership had only been open to residents of the School District No. 2.

It was announced that election of officers will be held in May instead of June.

Mrs. Austin Mecklem, president, announced that Mrs. John Wolven has been appointed as the class mother for the third and fourth grades.

Mrs. Mecklem also stated that as a result of the many problems encountered, the transportation and safety committee has been divided into two groups. The transportation committee will be concerned with the car pool and anyone interested in furnishing transportation should call Earl Christiana. Walter Riseley was appointed chairman of the safety committee and volunteers to assist him are needed.

It was reported that the organization now has a total of 82 members, an increase of 31 members over last month's membership.

Another program inaugurated will be the weekly dances following the Friday night basketball games, which will be chaperoned by a number of parents under the direction of Mrs. Margot King.

Also to be appointed in the near future will be a fund raising committee for a P.T.A. dance, to be held after graduation for the faculty and graduates of the Woodstock school.

Mrs. Mecklem said that plans have been made for a bulletin board to be placed in the school along with a collection box for items contributed by the students. All notices will be considered and edited before being placed on the bulletin board.

Everybody knows the tradition that the stage comedian yearns to play Hamlet and that the Saint Bernard may fancy itself as a lap-dog. Likewise, our old friend Hard Luck Joe sometimes tries to act like Larceny Lou. The results are funny to everybody but Joe.

West opened the four of hearts, and dummy won with the ace. Joe saw that he could eventually discard the losing heart on a high spade if East held the ace of spades. Therefore Joe drew three rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, and led the king of spades through East.

When East played the ace of spades, Joe's face lit up like a five-cent cigar, in fact like a trick cigar that blows up. Joe ruffed with his four trump and looked triumphantly at the dummy for about one second. Then his face changed from triumph to despair.

If Joe led his last trump to dummy he could discard his losing heart on the queen of spades but then could not bring in the diamonds. Joe would have no trumps to prevent the opponents from running spades and hearts in huge quantities.

It was at this point that a look of cunning came on Joe's guileless face. He led a low diamond from his hand in the hope that West would play low and allow dummy's nine to win the trick. If West had done so, Joe would have discarded the losing heart on dummy's queen of spades and would still have a trump left to assure an entry after the ace of diamonds had been knocked out.

However, Joe's face is a little too easy to read, so that he will never be able to get away with the exploits of Larceny Lou. West saw at a glance what Joe was after, so he promptly put up the ace of diamonds and returned his remaining heart. This set the contract immediately.

Of course Joe would have made his contract if he hadn't tried to draw trump so quickly.

After winning the first trick with the ace of hearts, he should have led the king of spades at once. Then he would have been able to ruff out the ace of spades, draw three rounds of trumps, get his discard, and still bring in the diamond suit.

Written for NEA Service

Everybody knows the tradition that the stage comedian yearns to play Hamlet and that the Saint Bernard may fancy itself as a lap-dog. Likewise, our old friend Hard Luck Joe sometimes tries to act like Larceny Lou. The results are funny to everybody but Joe.

West opened the four of hearts, and dummy won with the ace. Joe saw that he could eventually discard the losing heart on a high spade if East held the ace of spades. Therefore Joe drew three rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, and led the king of spades through East.

When East played the ace of spades, Joe's face lit up like a five-cent cigar, in fact like a trick cigar that blows up. Joe ruffed with his four trump and looked triumphantly at the dummy for about one second. Then his face changed from triumph to despair.

If Joe led his last trump to dummy he could discard his losing heart on the queen of spades but then could not bring in the diamonds. Joe would have no trumps to prevent the opponents from running spades and hearts in huge quantities.

It was at this point that a look of cunning came on Joe's guileless face. He led a low diamond from his hand in the hope that West would play low and allow dummy's nine to win the trick. If West had done so, Joe would have discarded the losing heart on dummy's queen of spades and would still have a trump left to assure an entry after the ace of diamonds had been knocked out.

However, Joe's face is a little too easy to read, so that he will never be able to get away with the exploits of Larceny Lou. West saw at a glance what Joe was after, so he promptly put up the ace of diamonds and returned his remaining heart. This set the contract immediately.

Of course Joe would have made his contract if he hadn't tried to draw trump so quickly.

After winning the first trick with the ace of hearts, he should have led the king of spades at once. Then he would have been able to ruff out the ace of spades, draw three rounds of trumps, get his discard, and still bring in the diamond suit.

Legion Seeks Okay On Liquor Permit

A request has been received by the Board of Education from Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion, for the board's permission or consent on an application for a liquor license in the Legion Home adjoining the high school property.

Under a provision which is contained in the O'Reilly deed, it is necessary for the board to consent to certain use of the adjoining property. Included in this category is the operation of pool rooms, saloons, etc.

For some time the Legion members have had under advisement an application to the ABC board for a license to operate a bar.

A communication was received by the board Thursday evening stating that the Legion was considering making such an application. The bar would be, according to the letter, operated for members of the Legion only and would be located on the lower floor with access to members only by means of a key. Outsiders and students would be excluded, the latter stated.

At present the Legion is operating a "snack bar" in the building for light lunches. Many students patronize this lunch bar.

The letter stated that Legion members felt a men's club was no place for young children to habitate and if a license to sell liquors is granted the Legion would exclude all students from the place. There would be no neon lights and the bar would be open only to members who would have their own private key. The liquor bar would be kept locked at all times.

The matter was discussed at some length by the board members and it was pointed out that under the ABC law no bar can be licensed within 200 feet of a school entrance, if that entrance is on the same street as the bar. The Legion building is on West O'Reilly street around the corner from the high school entrance but the two properties immediately adjoin on the side and rear. There is an entrance to the M.J.M. a short distance up West O'Reilly street but members expressed an opinion that this entrance may not be within the 200-foot distance.

After a thorough discussion the matter was referred to the special problems committee to investigate and report back at the next meeting.

Legion Seeks Okay On Liquor Permit

A request has been received by the Board of Education from Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion, for the board's permission or consent on an application for a liquor license in the Legion Home adjoining the high school property.

Under a provision which is contained in the O'Reilly deed, it is necessary for the board to consent to certain use of the adjoining property. Included in this category is the operation of pool rooms, saloons, etc.

For some time the Legion members have had under advisement an application to the ABC board for a license to operate a bar.

A communication was received by the board Thursday evening stating that the Legion was considering making such an application. The bar would be, according to the letter, operated for members of the Legion only and would be located on the lower floor with access to members only by means of a key. Outsiders and students would be excluded, the latter stated.

At present the Legion is operating a "snack bar" in the building for light lunches. Many students patronize this lunch bar.

The letter stated that Legion members felt a men's club was no place for young children to habitate and if a license to sell liquors is granted the Legion would exclude all students from the place. There would be no neon lights and the bar would be open only to members who would have their own private key. The liquor bar would be kept locked at all times.

The matter was discussed at some length by the board members and it was pointed out that under the ABC law no bar can be licensed within 200 feet of a school entrance, if that entrance is on the same street as the bar. The Legion building is on West O'Reilly street around the corner from the high school entrance but the two properties immediately adjoin on the side and rear. There is an entrance to the M.J.M. a short distance up West O'Reilly street but members expressed an opinion that this entrance may not be within the 200-foot distance.

After a thorough discussion the matter was referred to the special problems committee to investigate and report back at the next meeting.

Not Sabotage, He Says

Three Rivers, Que., Feb. 2 (AP)—Suggestions that sabotage might have caused the $3,000,000 Duplessis highway bridge to buckle and collapse were denied last night by Mayor J. A. Mongrain. The charges were made by Quebec Premier Maurice Duplessis, who declared Wednesday that "subversive elements" were responsible for Tuesday's disaster in which four motorists died. "No one in Three Rivers believes sabotage had any connection with the disaster," Mayor Mongrain said. "There is nothing to indicate it." Duplessis has promised that an investigation of the accident will be made. A Toronto engineer, meanwhile, has suggested that metal contraction during cold weather might be the explanation. It was 26 below zero when the bridge snapped.

Levitt Asks Housing Get Lasting Economic Value

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—William Levitt of the house-building Levitt brothers urged yesterday that the necessary materials to give defense housing lasting economic value be provided under the nation's mobilization program.

He also told senators at a hearing on the administration's $3,000,000,000 defense housing bill that there is "something wrong" with any builder who can't build a good two bedroom house for $9,000.

Levitt, who said his New York firm is the largest builder of houses in the nation, also disclosed in rapid-fire testimony before the Senate Banking Committee he hoped to build a permanent community for the Savannah River atomic project in South Carolina.

"We are going to try to do the job in South Carolina," he said. "We would like to do it very much."

Levitt said his firm has built about 20,000 houses, of which about 17,000 were sold at a profit for less than $8,000.

He noted that this included Levittown, a community developed on Long Island, and said his company was able to build and sell two bedroom houses "in the highest cost area" for $7,990.

Includes Equipment

The price, he said, included all kinds of equipment, land development, a proportionate share of a swimming pool (one for each 1,000 houses), a year's advance taxes, free fire insurance for a year and other extras.

Levitt detailed this in answer to questions about price limitations proposed in the bill for defense housing.

The measure would authorize $3,000,000,000 in additional federal mortgage authority, with a price limit of $9,000 on government-insured single-family houses. Federal mortgages could not exceed 90 per cent of the value, or a top of $8,100.

Levitt said he thought the price limitations were "fine" and, citing his own experience, said builders certainly ought to be able to put up single-family houses for $9,000.

He testified that "we've got to have war housing legislation" of some kind and added that the proposed bill was "no better or worse" than others, subject to some modifications and omissions.

Levitt said the "big" omission was a declaration of policy that housing built under the defense program must have "economic soundness."

Would Add to Wealth

By that, he said he meant housing that would add to the economic wealth of the nation and have lasting value after the present emergency is over.

He said this would require that builders be allowed the necessary copper, brass, mill products, steel and other essential materials, instead of being forced to use substitutes.

Levitt told the committee that if 400,000 war housing units were constructed annually—the maximum he thought likely — they would require less than one per cent of annual copper production. Similarly he said, it would take only 1/20th of one per cent of steel production.

He said the bill somehow should prevent a repetition of the type of war-housing built during the last war. And Levitt said he included houses he built as well as others.

He referred to 1,600-Levitt-built units in Norfolk, Va., and described them as "wholesale junk." He said they were constructed during the war where and how the government directed. They were never more than 30 per cent occupied, he said.

Private Building Needed

Levitt also said that any permanent housing under the defense program must be built by private industry. In this he was objecting to a part of the bill that directs that housing built by the government must be permanent.

The government would be authorized by the measure to build houses in defense areas in cases where private industry was unable or unwilling to build them.

Levitt said he did not believe that there was any permanent housing needed in the defense effort that private industry would not build.

As for any temporary housing needed in the defense program, Levitt said "we'd like the government to do that." He added that "it is what we refer to as junk and private industry ought not to lend its name to it."

Senator Douglas (D.-Ill.) asked if government would not be forced to build temporary housing for workers at its atomic project in South Carolina—a plan designed to turn out materials either for the atom bomb or the hydrogen bomb.

On the contrary, said Levitt, "every builder and his brother has been down there" looking into the possibilities.

He said he had been informed by the Atomic Energy Commission that the South Carolina plant is to be a permanent project and added he hoped to be able to develop a community there in which people would like to live.

He later told reporters that his plans call for "a very complete city" of about 30,000 persons, with some 8,000 houses. But he added that nothing can be done until the proposed bill or something like it is passed.

Levitt previously had indorsed the bill's provisions for coordinated development of defense communities in isolated areas and for government grants or loans for constructing community facilities, such as schools, hospitals and sewers.

Democrats Afraid Of McCarthy on Funds Committee

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Senate Republicans today cold-shouldered a Democrat's angry demand that Senator McCarthy (R.-Wis.) be ousted from a committee which passes on funds for the State Department.

Senator Benton (D.-Conn.) formerly an assistant secretary of state, lit into McCarthy yesterday in an unusually blunt Senate speech.

Benton called the Wisconsin lawmaker an "implacable and irresponsible enemy" of the State Department, a "ruthless propagandist" in the pattern of the Kremlin, and a libeler.

McCarthy was not present for Benton's speech. Later he issued a statement which alluded to Benton as "this defender of the State Department's Yalta crowd" who "squeals and beats his breast in agony because the day of judgment is at hand for the crimson clique in the State Department."

McCarthy stirred up a hot controversy last year with his charges that Communists and fellow travelers had infiltrated the State Department—charges the department denied. He repeatedly has demanded that Secretary of State Acheson be fired.

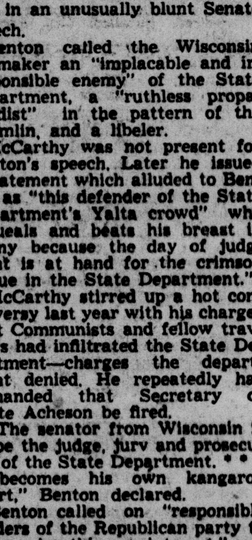

"The senator from Wisconsin is to be the judge, jury and prosecutor of the State Department. * * * he becomes his own kangaroo court," Benton declared.

Benton called on "responsible leaders of the Republican party to re-examine this appointment," and he asked the G.O.P. committee on committees to meet with him to discuss the matter. McCarthy is a member.

Senator Butler (R.-Neb.), chairman of the assignment committee, told a reporter the group would meet with Benton if he insisted, "but I don't know of a thing he could tell us that would change the appointment of Senator McCarthy."

Charles Bunse New Rapid Hose Head

At a meeting of Rapid Hose Company, Thursday, Charles Bunse was elected president to succeed Claude Heron, who resigned.

Bunse, a 25-year-member of the volunteer fire company, is the second of his family to serve as president, his father, the late Augustus Bunse, having occupied the post for 20 years.

When he was elected at the regular annual meeting, Heron was considered one of the most active members of Rapid Hose and had plans for a big year until he was advised to move to Arizona for his health.

Woman Stabbed to Death

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—A 19-year-old mother of four children was stabbed to death today as she was leading her lower east side apartment to go to work. Her estranged husband, Sixto Picard, 26, police said, stabbed the girl, Mrs. America Picard, several times in the chest, threw away the weapon and took poison. An ambulance surgeon used a stomach pump to remove the poison and Picard was taken to a police station for questioning. Police said the couple had been separated for several weeks. Picard approached his wife in the first-floor hallway of her home, police said, and a quarrel developed.

Not Sabotage, He Says

Three Rivers, Que., Feb. 2 (AP)—Suggestions that sabotage might have caused the $3,000,000 Duplessis highway bridge to buckle and collapse were denied last night by Mayor J. A. Mongrain. The charges were made by Quebec Premier Maurice Duplessis, who declared Wednesday that "subversive elements" were responsible for Tuesday's disaster in which four motorists died. "No one in Three Rivers believes sabotage had any connection with the disaster," Mayor Mongrain said. "There is nothing to indicate it." Duplessis has promised that an investigation of the accident will be made. A Toronto engineer, meanwhile, has suggested that metal contraction during cold weather might be the explanation. It was 26 below zero when the bridge snapped.

Levitt Asks Housing Get Lasting Economic Value

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—William Levitt of the house-building Levitt brothers urged yesterday that the necessary materials to give defense housing lasting economic value be provided under the nation's mobilization program.

He also told senators at a hearing on the administration's $3,000,000,000 defense housing bill that there is "something wrong" with any builder who can't build a good two bedroom house for $9,000.

Levitt, who said his New York firm is the largest builder of houses in the nation, also disclosed in rapid-fire testimony before the Senate Banking Committee he hoped to build a permanent community for the Savannah River atomic project in South Carolina.

"We are going to try to do the job in South Carolina," he said. "We would like to do it very much."

Levitt said his firm has built about 20,000 houses, of which about 17,000 were sold at a profit for less than $8,000.

He noted that this included Levittown, a community developed on Long Island, and said his company was able to build and sell two bedroom houses "in the highest cost area" for $7,990.

Includes Equipment

The price, he said, included all kinds of equipment, land development, a proportionate share of a swimming pool (one for each 1,000 houses), a year's advance taxes, free fire insurance for a year and other extras.

Levitt detailed this in answer to questions about price limitations proposed in the bill for defense housing.

The measure would authorize $3,000,000,000 in additional federal mortgage authority, with a price limit of $9,000 on government-insured single-family houses. Federal mortgages could not exceed 90 per cent of the value, or a top of $8,100.

Levitt said he thought the price limitations were "fine" and, citing his own experience, said builders certainly ought to be able to put up single-family houses for $9,000.

He testified that "we've got to have war housing legislation" of some kind and added that the proposed bill was "no better or worse" than others, subject to some modifications and omissions.

Levitt said the "big" omission was a declaration of policy that housing built under the defense program must have "economic soundness."

Would Add to Wealth

By that, he said he meant housing that would add to the economic wealth of the nation and have lasting value after the present emergency is over.

He said this would require that builders be allowed the necessary copper, brass, mill products, steel and other essential materials, instead of being forced to use substitutes.

Levitt told the committee that if 400,000 war housing units were constructed annually—the maximum he thought likely — they would require less than one per cent of annual copper production. Similarly he said, it would take only 1/20th of one per cent of steel production.

He said the bill somehow should prevent a repetition of the type of war-housing built during the last war. And Levitt said he included houses he built as well as others.

He referred to 1,600-Levitt-built units in Norfolk, Va., and described them as "wholesale junk." He said they were constructed during the war where and how the government directed. They were never more than 30 per cent occupied, he said.

Private Building Needed

Levitt also said that any permanent housing under the defense program must be built by private industry. In this he was objecting to a part of the bill that directs that housing built by the government must be permanent.

The government would be authorized by the measure to build houses in defense areas in cases where private industry was unable or unwilling to build them.

Levitt said he did not believe that there was any permanent housing needed in the defense effort that private industry would not build.

As for any temporary housing needed in the defense program, Levitt said "we'd like the government to do that." He added that "it is what we refer to as junk and private industry ought not to lend its name to it."

Senator Douglas (D.-Ill.) asked if government would not be forced to build temporary housing for workers at its atomic project in South Carolina—a plan designed to turn out materials either for the atom bomb or the hydrogen bomb.

On the contrary, said Levitt, "every builder and his brother has been down there" looking into the possibilities.

He said he had been informed by the Atomic Energy Commission that the South Carolina plant is to be a permanent project and added he hoped to be able to develop a community there in which people would like to live.

He later told reporters that his plans call for "a very complete city" of about 30,000 persons, with some 8,000 houses. But he added that nothing can be done until the proposed bill or something like it is passed.

Levitt previously had indorsed the bill's provisions for coordinated development of defense communities in isolated areas and for government grants or loans for constructing community facilities, such as schools, hospitals and sewers.

Democrats Afraid Of McCarthy on Funds Committee

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Senate Republicans today cold-shouldered a Democrat's angry demand that Senator McCarthy (R.-Wis.) be ousted from a committee which passes on funds for the State Department.

Senator Benton (D.-Conn.) formerly an assistant secretary of state, lit into McCarthy yesterday in an unusually blunt Senate speech.

Benton called the Wisconsin lawmaker an "implacable and irresponsible enemy" of the State Department, a "ruthless propagandist" in the pattern of the Kremlin, and a libeler.

McCarthy was not present for Benton's speech. Later he issued a statement which alluded to Benton as "this defender of the State Department's Yalta crowd" who "squeals and beats his breast in agony because the day of judgment is at hand for the crimson clique in the State Department."

McCarthy stirred up a hot controversy last year with his charges that Communists and fellow travelers had infiltrated the State Department—charges the department denied. He repeatedly has demanded that Secretary of State Acheson be fired.

"The senator from Wisconsin is to be the judge, jury and prosecutor of the State Department. * * * he becomes his own kangaroo court," Benton declared.

Benton called on "responsible leaders of the Republican party to re-examine this appointment," and he asked the G.O.P. committee on committees to meet with him to discuss the matter. McCarthy is a member.

Senator Butler (R.-Neb.), chairman of the assignment committee, told a reporter the group would meet with Benton if he insisted, "but I don't know of a thing he could tell us that would change the appointment of Senator McCarthy."

The Lindbergh baby was 19 months old when he was kidnapped from the Lindbergh home near Hopewell, N. J., on March 1, 1932.

Charles Bunse New Rapid Hose Head

At a meeting of Rapid Hose Company, Thursday, Charles Bunse was elected president to succeed Claude Heron, who resigned.

Bunse, a 25-year-member of the volunteer fire company, is the second of his family to serve as president, his father, the late Augustus Bunse, having occupied the post for 20 years.

When he was elected at the regular annual meeting, Heron was considered one of the most active members of Rapid Hose and had plans for a big year until he was advised to move to Arizona for his health.

Members of the company expressed regret at his leaving the city and wished him well in the west.

Heron's sentiments are that Rapid Hose will continue as one of the outstanding volunteer companies under the guidance of President Bunse.

Woman Stabbed to Death

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—A 19-year-old mother of four children was stabbed to death today as she was leading her lower east side apartment to go to work. Her estranged husband, Sixto Picard, 26, police said, stabbed the girl, Mrs. America Picard, several times in the chest, threw away the weapon and took poison. An ambulance surgeon used a stomach pump to remove the poison and Picard was taken to a police station for questioning. Police said the couple had been separated for several weeks. Picard approached his wife in the first-floor hallway of her home, police said, and a quarrel developed.

Not Sabotage, He Says

Three Rivers, Que., Feb. 2 (AP)—Suggestions that sabotage might have caused the $3,000,000 Duplessis highway bridge to buckle and collapse were denied last night by Mayor J. A. Mongrain. The charges were made by Quebec Premier Maurice Duplessis, who declared Wednesday that "subversive elements" were responsible for Tuesday's disaster in which four motorists died. "No one in Three Rivers believes sabotage had any connection with the disaster," Mayor Mongrain said. "There is nothing to indicate it." Duplessis has promised that an investigation of the accident will be made. A Toronto engineer, meanwhile, has suggested that metal contraction during cold weather might be the explanation. It was 26 below zero when the bridge snapped.

Levitt Asks Housing Get Lasting Economic Value

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—William Levitt of the house-building Levitt brothers urged yesterday that the necessary materials to give defense housing lasting economic value be provided under the nation's mobilization program.

He also told senators at a hearing on the administration's $3,000,000,000 defense housing bill that there is "something wrong" with any builder who can't build a good two bedroom house for $9,000.

Levitt, who said his New York firm is the largest builder of houses in the nation, also disclosed in rapid-fire testimony before the Senate Banking Committee he hoped to build a permanent community for the Savannah River atomic project in South Carolina.

"We are going to try to do the job in South Carolina," he said. "We would like to do it very much."

Levitt said his firm has built about 20,000 houses, of which about 17,000 were sold at a profit for less than $8,000.

He noted that this included Levittown, a community developed on Long Island, and said his company was able to build and sell two bedroom houses "in the highest cost area" for $7,990.

Includes Equipment

The price, he said, included all kinds of equipment, land development, a proportionate share of a swimming pool (one for each 1,000 houses), a year's advance taxes, free fire insurance for a year and other extras.

Levitt detailed this in answer to questions about price limitations proposed in the bill for defense housing.

The measure would authorize $3,000,000,000 in additional federal mortgage authority, with a price limit of $9,000 on government-insured single-family houses. Federal mortgages could not exceed 90 per cent of the value, or a top of $8,100.

Levitt said he thought the price limitations were "fine" and, citing his own experience, said builders certainly ought to be able to put up single-family houses for $9,000.

He testified that "we've got to have war housing legislation" of some kind and added that the proposed bill was "no better or worse" than others, subject to some modifications and omissions.

Levitt said the "big" omission was a declaration of policy that housing built under the defense program must have "economic soundness."

Would Add to Wealth

By that, he said he meant housing that would add to the economic wealth of the nation and have lasting value after the present emergency is over.

He said this would require that builders be allowed the necessary copper, brass, mill products, steel and other essential materials, instead of being forced to use substitutes.

Levitt told the committee that if 400,000 war housing units were constructed annually—the maximum he thought likely — they would require less than one per cent of annual copper production. Similarly he said, it would take only 1/20th of one per cent of steel production.

He said the bill somehow should prevent a repetition of the type of war-housing built during the last war. And Levitt said he included houses he built as well as others.

He referred to 1,600-Levitt-built units in Norfolk, Va., and described them as "wholesale junk." He said they were constructed during the war where and how the government directed. They were never more than 30 per cent occupied, he said.

Private Building Needed

Levitt also said that any permanent housing under the defense program must be built by private industry. In this he was objecting to a part of the bill that directs that housing built by the government must be permanent.

The government would be authorized by the measure to build houses in defense areas in cases where private industry was unable or unwilling to build them.

Levitt said he did not believe that there was any permanent housing needed in the defense effort that private industry would not build.

As for any temporary housing needed in the defense program, Levitt said "we'd like the government to do that." He added that "it is what we refer to as junk and private industry ought not to lend its name to it."

Senator Douglas (D.-Ill.) asked if government would not be forced to build temporary housing for workers at its atomic project in South Carolina—a plan designed to turn out materials either for the atom bomb or the hydrogen bomb.

On the contrary, said Levitt, "every builder and his brother has been down there" looking into the possibilities.

He said he had been informed by the Atomic Energy Commission that the South Carolina plant is to be a permanent project and added he hoped to be able to develop a community there in which people would like to live.

He later told reporters that his plans call for "a very complete city" of about 30,000 persons, with some 8,000 houses. But he added that nothing can be done until the proposed bill or something like it is passed.

Levitt previously had indorsed the bill's provisions for coordinated development of defense communities in isolated areas and for government grants or loans for constructing community facilities, such as schools, hospitals and sewers.

Democrats Afraid Of McCarthy on Funds Committee

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Senate Republicans today cold-shouldered a Democrat's angry demand that Senator McCarthy (R.-Wis.) be ousted from a committee which passes on funds for the State Department.

Senator Benton (D.-Conn.) formerly an assistant secretary of state, lit into McCarthy yesterday in an unusually blunt Senate speech.

Benton called the Wisconsin lawmaker an "implacable and irresponsible enemy" of the State Department, a "ruthless propagandist" in the pattern of the Kremlin, and a libeler.

McCarthy was not present for Benton's speech. Later he issued a statement which alluded to Benton as "this defender of the State Department's Yalta crowd" who "squeals and beats his breast in agony because the day of judgment is at hand for the crimson clique in the State Department."

McCarthy stirred up a hot controversy last year with his charges that Communists and fellow travelers had infiltrated the State Department—charges the department denied. He repeatedly has demanded that Secretary of State Acheson be fired.

"The senator from Wisconsin is to be the judge, jury and prosecutor of the State Department. * * * he becomes his own kangaroo court," Benton declared.

Benton called on "responsible leaders of the Republican party to re-examine this appointment," and he asked the G.O.P. committee on committees to meet with him to discuss the matter. McCarthy is a member.

Senator Butler (R.-Neb.), chairman of the assignment committee, told a reporter the group would meet with Benton if he insisted, "but I don't know of a thing he could tell us that would change the appointment of Senator McCarthy."

Charles Bunse New Rapid Hose Head

At a meeting of Rapid Hose Company, Thursday, Charles Bunse was elected president to succeed Claude Heron, who resigned.

Bunse, a 25-year-member of the volunteer fire company, is the second of his family to serve as president, his father, the late Augustus Bunse, having occupied the post for 20 years.

When he was elected at the regular annual meeting, Heron was considered one of the most active members of Rapid Hose and had plans for a big year until he was advised to move to Arizona for his health.

Members of the company expressed regret at his leaving the city and wished him well in the west.

Heron's sentiments are that Rapid Hose will continue as one of the outstanding volunteer companies under the guidance of President Bunse.

Woman Stabbed to Death

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—A 19-year-old mother of four children was stabbed to death today as she was leading her lower east side apartment to go to work. Her estranged husband, Sixto Picard, 26, police said, stabbed the girl, Mrs. America Picard, several times in the chest, threw away the weapon and took poison. An ambulance surgeon used a stomach pump to remove the poison and Picard was taken to a police station for questioning. Police said the couple had been separated for several weeks. Picard approached his wife in the first-floor hallway of her home, police said, and a quarrel developed.

Officials Grapple With Formula on Wage-Price Freeze

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—The nation's wage-price freeze showed signs today of a mild thaw, but officials still grappled with the complicated problem of devising a general overall formula to govern future relaxation of controls.

The first break in last Friday's across-the-board price freeze came late yesterday when the Office of Price Stabilization announced that all strictly military items will be exempted from ceilings.

A few minutes later the agency announced approval of an increase of up to 90 cents a ton in the price of coal.

O.P.S. made it clear that the lifting of the price freeze on military goods would affect very few, if any, commodities used by civilians. And military prices still will be subject to control, the agency asserted, through contract negotiations or later renegotiations by the Defense Department to prevent excessive profits.

To Compensate Producers

In approving the coal price hike, the stabilization office said it was being made to compensate coal producers for a miners' wage increase which became effective yesterday.

Explaining the price thaw on military purchases, O.P.S. said it was made "in order to insure that price controls shall not interfere with the defense effort."

The action abolished ceilings at least until April 1 on a long specific list of commodities and services "peculiar to military needs." These ranged from "secret weapons" and "fissionable materials" to aviation gasoline, bombs, naval ships, electronic equipment such as radar, armament, military trucks—and even brass buttons with armed forces insignia.

Permits Ceiling Raise

The exemption does not affect many of the component parts which go into the manufacture of military needs, however. But the regulation does permit Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle to raise ceilings on any such supplies "whenever it appears that the ceiling price (on components) impedes or threatens to impede" defense production.

The coal price hike covers both hard and soft coal. It has the effect of permitting an average increase of 25 cents a ton on soft—or bituminous—coal and 90 cents a ton for hard—or anthracite—coal.

Price officials speculated, however, that increases might not go the full limit because of the competition between coal and such other fuels as oil and natural gas.

Applies to Producers

Yesterday's action applied only to producers. It left unchanged the ceiling at retail levels. Officials said, however, that the retail ceiling would be lifted "within a very few days" to conform.

A few hours before ceilings were dropped on military buying, the Wage Stabilization Board—like O.P.S. a division of the Economic Stabilization Agency—approved a "cost of living" pay boost of two cents an hour for 12,000 workers in California plants of the North American Aviation Company. This firm has large military contracts.

The board made it clear, however, that the approval did not mean it had okayed the general principle of "cost of living" boosts in the future.

30 Veterans Say Guilty in School Fraud Conspiracy

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Thirty veterans pleaded guilty yesterday to a GI Bill of Rights school fraud conspiracy.

No sentencing date was set, and Assistant U. S. Attorney Louis I. Kaplan said an offer they made to pay back about $1,000 each would be "taken under consideration."

The 30 veterans were among 199 ex-servicemen indicted with four operators of a beauty school in a scheme which allegedly defrauded the Veterans Administration of $250,000.

The other veterans have not pleaded yet.

The government charges the veterans committed fraud by accepting subsistence while enrolled at the Grow System Beauty School, but not actually taking courses.

The veterans, the government alleged, kicked back to the school part of their subsistence averaging $1,000 each. The school allegedly drew $66,000 from the Veterans Administration for tuition and supplies it did not have to provide.

Two employes of the school are awaiting sentence after pleading guilty to conspiracy charges. Pleas of innocent have been entered by the school director, Ora W. Grow, 47, his wife and a man charged with helping line up registrants for the school.

The 30 veterans who pleaded guilty were paroled by Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard.

Truck Hits Pole, Others Are Stalled

A milk truck owned by the Turco Transportation Company of Highland Mills skidded on the icy pavement and struck a Central Hudson pole on Route 28 near Stony Hollow about 11:15 p. m. Thursday, the sheriff's office reported. The driver, George Johnson, 24, of 35 Charlotte Place, Kingston, was not reported injured. Deputy Sheriffs Delbert Sapp and William Churchill, who investigated, said that the gas tank and left side of the cab of the truck were damaged.

Route 28 near the Zena road intersection was the location of a tie-up of trucks and automobiles due to icy conditions at 9 p. m. Thursday. Undersheriff Clayton Vredenburg of West Hurley was called out to get traffic moving, and he requested sand trucks to sand the icy hill.

Coal Shortage Is Threat to British Rearmament Plan

London, Feb. 2 (AP)—Britons yelled "crisis" today. But they were thinking about coal—not war.

A worsening coal shortage—500,000 tons more are being dug each week—threatens an industrial breakdown that would undermine Britain's rearmament program. Many fear a recurrence of the coal crisis which in the winter of 1946-47 closed factories and threw nearly 3,000,000 men out of work.

Trying to stretch fast dwindling coal stocks, the Socialist government ordered a 15 per cent cut in coal deliveries to industry—including defense plants and key export factories.

The government, which runs the nationalized mines, also boosted the price of coal by five per cent and warned some power plants they may have to shut down unless they get more coal soon. Earlier, the government had cancelled 2,500 train services of the nationalized railways.

In the House of Commons last night the Labor government, by a vote of 300 to 289, squeezed by Conservative party charges that it had bungled Britain into a critical fuel shortage.

But though Prime Minister Attlee's government rode out the Tory motion of censure, disclosures in Parliament of the nation's coal freight brought editorial howls of indignation in the nation's press.

About 9,000,000 tons of coal are needed in the pipeline between mine and fire to keep industry running smoothly. The nation was paralyzed in February, 1947, when scattered supplies dipped under that level. Stockpiles now total only about 10,000,000 tons.

The million tons leeway represents less than two days supply.

This country has no natural gas and only a tiny proportion of electricity comes from water power. Coal rules the economy.

American coal may stave off trouble. The coal board has bought 2,000,000 tons—enough to fill the gap between production and consumption for a month. But only about one-eighth of this fuel, ordered several weeks ago, has arrived.

Seven Men Are Killed

Swansea, Wales, Feb. 2 (AP)—Seven seamen were killed and 12 injured today in three explosions and a fire aboard the 8,700-ton Liberian tanker Atlantic Dutchess. The first blast, at dawn, tore away part of the bridge and was followed by an intense fire. The second explosion, in the body of the ship, came a few minutes later and a third rocked the ship while firemen were trying to bring the blaze under control. The tanker had just completed its maiden voyage with a cargo of oil from the Persian Gulf.

Esopus Group Has Meeting; Plans to Fight Assessments

A third organizational meeting was held by the Town of Esopus Taxpayers' Association at the Town Hall in Port Ewen Thursday night. About 450 persons attended.

John Grady, president, explained the aims and objects of the association, which was formed to protest reassessments on real property in the town.

Before and after the meeting, approximately 100 persons registered their names as members of the association, bringing the total membership to about 300. Two previous meetings were held, one at Rifton and one at St. Remy. Each of the three meetings was open to the taxpayers of the township and memberships were accepted from those who wished to register their names and pay a $1 assessment for legal fees, postage and other expenses.

The election of three members of the executive committee from each of the town's 13 districts was completed last night.

No Dishonesty Found

Grady made it clear to those who attended that the association has found no dishonesty nor misappropriation of funds. It charges, Grady said, that the recent reassessment was "just plain inefficiency."

Old assessment figures on real property were revised upward following a survey last spring and summer by the town assessors and other individuals from the township who were employed for that purpose. The upward revision allowed a reduction in tax rate.

The Taxpayers' Association charges, according to its president, that the revision was costly and resulted in more inequities than had been apparent under the old system.

Grady contended that the old assessments should have been doubled across the board. Then the inequities that existed under the old figures could be eliminated "over a period of two or three years" without the added expense of hiring extra individuals, he said.

To Seek Reassessments

The association will work to have the reassessment figures as they now stand thrown out, Grady explained. The organization, he said, is an independent organization "not affiliated with any party," and stands only for "fair assessments and taxation in the town of Esopus."

Officers serving with Grady are Edward Cochran, vice president; Amasa Smith, treasurer, and Edward Eckert, secretary. Peter Harp of New Paltz has been retained as legal counsel.

Citing figures which he said showed the inefficiency of the reassessment, Grady said that the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation's real property including the Dashville Dam and extending to the center of the creek was assessed at $113,530 in 1948, and when transposed to the 1949 assessment roll was listed at $16,220. After the 1950 reassessment, he said, the property was listed at $18,280.

The tax on that property, Grady claimed, was $5,520.93 in 1948; $872.53 in 1949, and is expected to be $520.98 in 1950 at the new rate.

He compared this with Callanan Road Improvement Company, which he said had an assessed valuation on its real property of $33,380 in 1949, and this was increased 95 per cent in the reassessment to $65,230. The tax paid on this property in 1949, he said, was $1,438.31, and the expected tax in 1950 will be $1,859.05. "If it was done to them, why not to the others?" he asked.

Figures Are Cited

Comparative figures were cited by Grady for other commercial and private properties.

Grady contended that the reassessment cost the town $9,000. "The Town of Ulster did the same thing, and it didn't cost them a dime," he said. The assessors of that town "looked at the old assessment figures and just said two times two is four," he said, indicating that the figures were just doubled.

There was no open discussion at the meeting, but Grady was substantially applauded during his talk when he asked, "Do you think we have a good case? Do you agree we should go ahead with it?"

Grady said that he believed the fact that so many persons came to the meeting despite weather conditions indicated that the association would succeed in its purposes.

It has been estimated that there are more than 2,000,000 golfers in the United States alone.

Thruway by 1954 Goal of Authority

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—Barring unforseen developments, the State Thruway Authority hopes to have the New York-to-Buffalo superhighway completed and open to traffic by 1954.

In its first annual report to Governor Dewey and the Legislature the authority expressed yesterday determination to press completion of the project.

The report said speed of construction would depend upon availability of materials and capacity of the road-building industry to absorb contracts.

"The serious international situation has emphasized the urgent need for the quick construction of this vital traffic artery," the authority said.

Advised Informally

Governor Dewey said in his budget message to the Legislature Tuesday that he had been advised informally by the Office of Defense Mobilization that it was not likely any steel would be available after June for general highway construction.

The authority described the proposed $50,000,000 Tappan Zee bridge across the Hudson river between South Nyack and Tarrytown as "the most important and vital part of the thruway."

The authority is "determined to complete the bridge and its connections to New York city as rapidly as possible," the report said.

Construction on Bridge

It added that bridge construction would start this summer, and would be completed in two years, if materials were available.

As of last Dec. 31, a total of 12.92 miles of the thruway were completed, and another 63.48 were under construction. Plans were completed for 12.2 miles and planning was underway for another 132.1 miles.

The report said that contracts totaling $40,507,311 had been let for thruway work thus far. Of that amount $20,538,716 were in contracts let between April 1, 1950, and last Dec. 31.

Las Vegas Quakes As Atom Is Tested

Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 2 (AP)—A new atomic test rocked Las Vegas with the force of an earthquake today.

Residents said it appeared to be the heaviest of four felt here in the past week as a result of experiments at a new government atomic range on the desert northwest of here.

"It was just like a quake," said one observer. "The building rocked and the concussion blew in swinging windows."

It took the concussion six minutes to reach here, after a brilliant orange-yellow flash lit the northwestern skies, etching buildings in this gambling resort town and the mountains which ring it.

The flash was timed at 5:49 a. m. (Pacific Standard Time). It was visible in a pale orange flash as far distant as Los Angeles, some 300 miles away.

Since Saturday, the government has been testing atomic weapons of undisclosed nature at the new 5,000 square mile range on the desert. The Atomic Energy Commission has consistently declined to comment except to confirm that tests have been held.

Strangled at Washer

Franklin Lakes, N. J., Feb. 2 (AP)—A colorful silk bandana, caught in the wringer of an electric washing machine, strangled a young mother of three small children yesterday. The body of 32-year-old Mrs. Priscilla Bagstad of Washington, D. C., was found in a basement laundry room by her oldest child, eight-year-old Faith. Her husband, air force Col. Charles Bagstad, was scheduled to fly to England on assignment today. The couple had been living with Bagstad's sister, Mrs. George P. Moody. Mrs. Moody told police she had instructed her sister-in-law in how to use the washing machine during the morning and then went shopping.

Old assessment figures on real property were revised upward following a survey last spring and summer by the town assessors and other individuals from the township who were employed for that purpose. The upward revision allowed a reduction in tax rate.

The Taxpayers' Association charges, according to its president, that the revision was costly and resulted in more inequities than had been apparent under the old system.

Grady contended that the old assessments should have been doubled across the board. Then the inequities that existed under the old figures could be eliminated "over a period of two or three years" without the added expense of hiring extra individuals, he said.

To Seek Reassessments

The association will work to have the reassessment figures as they now stand thrown out, Grady explained. The organization, he said, is an independent organization "not affiliated with any party," and stands only for "fair assessments and taxation in the town of Esopus."

Officers serving with Grady are Edward Cochran, vice president; Amasa Smith, treasurer, and Edward Eckert, secretary. Peter Harp of New Paltz has been retained as legal counsel.

Citing figures which he said showed the inefficiency of the reassessment, Grady said that the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation's real property including the Dashville Dam and extending to the center of the creek was assessed at $113,530 in 1948, and when transposed to the 1949 assessment roll was listed at $16,220. After the 1950 reassessment, he said, the property was listed at $18,280.

The tax on that property, Grady claimed, was $5,520.93 in 1948; $872.53 in 1949, and is expected to be $520.98 in 1950 at the new rate.

He compared this with Callanan Road Improvement Company, which he said had an assessed valuation on its real property of $33,380 in 1949, and this was increased 95 per cent in the reassessment to $65,230. The tax paid on this property in 1949, he said, was $1,438.31, and the expected tax in 1950 will be $1,859.05. "If it was done to them, why not to the others?" he asked.

Figures Are Cited

Comparative figures were cited by Grady for other commercial and private properties.

Grady contended that the reassessment cost the town $9,000. "The Town of Ulster did the same thing, and it didn't cost them a dime," he said. The assessors of that town "looked at the old assessment figures and just said two times two is four," he said, indicating that the figures were just doubled.

There was no open discussion at the meeting, but Grady was substantially applauded during his talk when he asked, "Do you think we have a good case? Do you agree we should go ahead with it?"

Grady said that he believed the fact that so many persons came to the meeting despite weather conditions indicated that the association would succeed in its purposes.

It has been estimated that there are more than 2,000,000 golfers in the United States alone.

Thruway by 1954 Goal of Authority

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—Barring unforseen developments, the State Thruway Authority hopes to have the New York-to-Buffalo superhighway completed and open to traffic by 1954.

In its first annual report to Governor Dewey and the Legislature the authority expressed yesterday determination to press completion of the project.

The report said speed of construction would depend upon availability of materials and capacity of the road-building industry to absorb contracts.

"The serious international situation has emphasized the urgent need for the quick construction of this vital traffic artery," the authority said.

Advised Informally

Governor Dewey said in his budget message to the Legislature Tuesday that he had been advised informally by the Office of Defense Mobilization that it was not likely any steel would be available after June for general highway construction.

The authority described the proposed $50,000,000 Tappan Zee bridge across the Hudson river between South Nyack and Tarrytown as "the most important and vital part of the thruway."

The authority is "determined to complete the bridge and its connections to New York city as rapidly as possible," the report said.

Construction on Bridge

It added that bridge construction would start this summer, and would be completed in two years, if materials were available.

As of last Dec. 31, a total of 12.92 miles of the thruway were completed, and another 63.48 were under construction. Plans were completed for 12.2 miles and planning was underway for another 132.1 miles.

The report said that contracts totaling $40,507,311 had been let for thruway work thus far. Of that amount $20,538,716 were in contracts let between April 1, 1950, and last Dec. 31.

Las Vegas Quakes As Atom Is Tested

Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 2 (AP)—A new atomic test rocked Las Vegas with the force of an earthquake today.

Residents said it appeared to be the heaviest of four felt here in the past week as a result of experiments at a new government atomic range on the desert northwest of here.

"It was just like a quake," said one observer. "The building rocked and the concussion blew in swinging windows."

It took the concussion six minutes to reach here, after a brilliant orange-yellow flash lit the northwestern skies, etching buildings in this gambling resort town and the mountains which ring it.

The flash was timed at 5:49 a. m. (Pacific Standard Time). It was visible in a pale orange flash as far distant as Los Angeles, some 300 miles away.

Since Saturday, the government has been testing atomic weapons of undisclosed nature at the new 5,000 square mile range on the desert. The Atomic Energy Commission has consistently declined to comment except to confirm that tests have been held.

Strangled at Washer

Officials Grapple With Formula on Wage-Price Freeze

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—The nation's wage-price freeze showed signs today of a mild thaw, but officials still grappled with the complicated problem of devising a general overall formula to govern future relaxation of controls.

The first break in last Friday's across-the-board price freeze came late yesterday when the Office of Price Stabilization announced that all strictly military items will be exempted from ceilings.

A few minutes later the agency announced approval of an increase of up to 90 cents a ton in the price of coal.

O.P.S. made it clear that the lifting of the price freeze on military goods would affect very few, if any, commodities used by civilians. And military prices still will be subject to control, the agency asserted, through contract negotiations or later renegotiations by the Defense Department to prevent excessive profits.

To Compensate Producers

In approving the coal price hike, the stabilization office said it was being made to compensate coal producers for a miners' wage increase which became effective yesterday.

Explaining the price thaw on military purchases, O.P.S. said it was made "in order to insure that price controls shall not interfere with the defense effort."

The action abolished ceilings at least until April 1 on a long specific list of commodities and services "peculiar to military needs." These ranged from "secret weapons" and "fissionable materials" to aviation gasoline, bombs, naval ships, electronic equipment such as radar, armament, military trucks—and even brass buttons with armed forces insignia.

Permits Ceiling Raise

The exemption does not affect many of the component parts which go into the manufacture of military needs, however. But the regulation does permit Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle to raise ceilings on any such supplies "whenever it appears that the ceiling price (on components) impedes or threatens to impede" defense production.

The coal price hike covers both hard and soft coal. It has the effect of permitting an average increase of 25 cents a ton on soft—or bituminous—coal and 90 cents a ton for hard—or anthracite—coal.

Price officials speculated, however, that increases might not go the full limit because of the competition between coal and such other fuels as oil and natural gas.

Applies to Producers

Yesterday's action applied only to producers. It left unchanged the ceiling at retail levels. Officials said, however, that the retail ceiling would be lifted "within a very few days" to conform.

A few hours before ceilings were dropped on military buying, the Wage Stabilization Board—like O.P.S. a division of the Economic Stabilization Agency—approved a "cost of living" pay boost of two cents an hour for 12,000 workers in California plants of the North American Aviation Company. This firm has large military contracts.

The board made it clear, however, that the approval did not mean it had okayed the general principle of "cost of living" boosts in the future.

30 Veterans Say Guilty in School Fraud Conspiracy

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Thirty veterans pleaded guilty yesterday to a GI Bill of Rights school fraud conspiracy.

No sentencing date was set, and Assistant U. S. Attorney Louis I. Kaplan said an offer they made to pay back about $1,000 each would be "taken under consideration."

The 30 veterans were among 199 ex-servicemen indicted with four operators of a beauty school in a scheme which allegedly defrauded the Veterans Administration of $250,000.

The other veterans have not pleaded yet.

The government charges the veterans committed fraud by accepting subsistence while enrolled at the Grow System Beauty School, but not actually taking courses.

The veterans, the government alleged, kicked back to the school part of their subsistence averaging $1,000 each. The school allegedly drew $66,000 from the Veterans Administration for tuition and supplies it did not have to provide.

Two employes of the school are awaiting sentence after pleading guilty to conspiracy charges. Pleas of innocent have been entered by the school director, Ora W. Grow, 47, his wife and a man charged with helping line up registrants for the school.

The 30 veterans who pleaded guilty were paroled by Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard.

Truck Hits Pole, Others Are Stalled

A milk truck owned by the Turco Transportation Company of Highland Mills skidded on the icy pavement and struck a Central Hudson pole on Route 28 near Stony Hollow about 11:15 p. m. Thursday, the sheriff's office reported. The driver, George Johnson, 24, of 35 Charlotte Place, Kingston, was not reported injured. Deputy Sheriffs Delbert Sapp and William Churchill, who investigated, said that the gas tank and left side of the cab of the truck were damaged.

Route 28 near the Zena road intersection was the location of a tie-up of trucks and automobiles due to icy conditions at 9 p. m. Thursday. Undersheriff Clayton Vredenburg of West Hurley was called out to get traffic moving, and he requested sand trucks to sand the icy hill.

Henderson, Catskill, deputy grand high priest; Henry Caleler Thorne, Ithaca, grand scribe; Robert Satler, Rochester, grand treasurer; Carl G. Coal Shortage Is Threat to British Rearmament Plan

London, Feb. 2 (AP)—Britons yelled "crisis" today. But they were thinking about coal—not war.

A worsening coal shortage—500,000 tons more are being burned than are being dug each week—threatens an industrial breakdown that would undermine Britain's rearmament program. Many fear a recurrence of the coal crisis which in the winter of 1946-47 closed factories and threw nearly 3,000,000 men out of work.

Trying to stretch fast dwindling coal stocks, the Socialist government ordered a 15 per cent cut in coal deliveries to industry—including defense plants and key export factories.

The government, which runs the nationalized mines, also boosted the price of coal by five per cent and warned some power plants they may have to shut down unless they get more coal soon. Earlier, the government had cancelled 2,500 train services of the nationalized railways.

In the House of Commons last night the Labor government, by a vote of 300 to 289, squeezed by Conservative party charges that it had bungled Britain into a critical fuel shortage.

But though Prime Minister Attlee's government rode out the Tory motion of censure, disclosures in Parliament of the nation's coal freight brought editorial howls of indignation in the nation's press.

About 9,000,000 tons of coal are needed in the pipeline between mine and fire to keep industry running smoothly. The nation was paralyzed in February, 1947, when scattered supplies dipped under that level. Stockpiles now total only about 10,000,000 tons.

The million tons leeway represents less than two days supply.

This country has no natural gas and only a tiny proportion of electricity comes from water power. Coal rules the economy.

American coal may stave off trouble. The coal board has bought 2,000,000 tons—enough to fill the gap between production and consumption for a month. But only about one-eighth of this fuel, ordered several weeks ago, has arrived.

Seven Men Are Killed

Swansea, Wales, Feb. 2 (AP)—Seven seamen were killed and 12 injured today in three explosions and a fire aboard the 8,700-ton Liberian tanker Atlantic Dutchess. The first blast, at dawn, tore away part of the bridge and was followed by an intense fire. The second explosion, in the body of the ship, came a few minutes later and a third rocked the ship while firemen were trying to bring the blaze under control. The tanker had just completed its maiden voyage with a cargo of oil from the Persian Gulf.

Esopus Group Has Meeting; Plans to Fight Assessments

A third organizational meeting was held by the Town of Esopus Taxpayers' Association at the Town Hall in Port Ewen Thursday night. About 450 persons attended.

John Grady, president, explained the aims and objects of the association, which was formed to protest reassessments on real property in the town.

Before and after the meeting, approximately 100 persons registered their names as members of the association, bringing the total membership to about 300. Two previous meetings were held, one at Rifton and one at St. Remy. Each of the three meetings was open to the taxpayers of the township and memberships were accepted from those who wished to register their names and pay a $1 assessment for legal fees, postage and other expenses.

The election of three members of the executive committee from each of the town's 13 districts was completed last night.

No Dishonesty Found

Grady made it clear to those who attended that the association has found no dishonesty nor misappropriation of funds. It charges, Grady said, that the recent reassessment was "just plain inefficiency."

Old assessment figures on real property were revised upward following a survey last spring and summer by the town assessors and other individuals from the township who were employed for that purpose. The upward revision allowed a reduction in tax rate.

The Taxpayers' Association charges, according to its president, that the revision was costly and resulted in more inequities than had been apparent under the old system.

Grady contended that the old assessments should have been doubled across the board. Then the inequities that existed under the old figures could be eliminated "over a period of two or three years" without the added expense of hiring extra individuals, he said.

To Seek Reassessments

The association will work to have the reassessment figures as they now stand thrown out, Grady explained. The organization, he said, is an independent organization "not affiliated with any party," and stands only for "fair assessments and taxation in the town of Esopus."

Officers serving with Grady are Edward Cochran, vice president; Amasa Smith, treasurer, and Edward Eckert, secretary. Peter Harp of New Paltz has been retained as legal counsel.

Citing figures which he said showed the inefficiency of the reassessment, Grady said that the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation's real property including the Dashville Dam and extending to the center of the creek was assessed at $113,530 in 1948, and when transposed to the 1949 assessment roll was listed at $16,220. After the 1950 reassessment, he said, the property was listed at $18,280.

The tax on that property, Grady claimed, was $5,520.93 in 1948; $872.53 in 1949, and is expected to be $520.98 in 1950 at the new rate.

He compared this with Callanan Road Improvement Company, which he said had an assessed valuation on its real property of $33,380 in 1949, and this was increased 95 per cent in the reassessment to $65,230. The tax paid on this property in 1949, he said, was $1,438.31, and the expected tax in 1950 will be $1,859.05. "If it was done to them, why not to the others?" he asked.

Figures Are Cited

Comparative figures were cited by Grady for other commercial and private properties.

Grady contended that the reassessment cost the town $9,000. "The Town of Ulster did the same thing, and it didn't cost them a dime," he said. The assessors of that town "looked at the old assessment figures and just said two times two is four," he said, indicating that the figures were just doubled.

There was no open discussion at the meeting, but Grady was substantially applauded during his talk when he asked, "Do you think we have a good case? Do you agree we should go ahead with it?"

Grady said that he believed the fact that so many persons came to the meeting despite weather conditions indicated that the association would succeed in its purposes.

It has been estimated that there are more than 2,000,000 golfers in the United States alone.

Construction on Bridge

It added that bridge construction would start this summer, and would be completed in two years, if materials were available.

As of last Dec. 31, a total of 12.92 miles of the thruway were completed, and another 63.48 were under construction. Plans were completed for 12.2 miles and planning was underway for another 132.1 miles.

The report said that contracts totaling $40,507,311 had been let for thruway work thus far. Of that amount $20,538,716 were in contracts let between April 1, 1950, and last Dec. 31.
